

Conservation of this volume was made possible through the generous support of PETER WARRIAN and the Friends of the Library

PIMS

PONTIFICAL INSTITUTE OF MEDIAEVAL STUDIES

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from University of Toronto

RERUM BRITANNICARUM MEDII ÆVI SCRIPTORES,

OR

CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND

DURING

THE MIDDLE AGES.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

ON the 26th of January 1857, the Master of the Rolls submitted to the Treasury a proposal for the publication of materials for the History of this Country from the Invasion of the Romans to the Reign of Henry VIII.

The Master of the Rolls suggested that these materials should be selected for publication under competent editors without reference to periodical or chronological arrangement, without mutilation or abridgment, preference being given, in the first instance, to such materials as were most scarce and valuable.

He proposed that each chronicle or historical document to be edited should be treated in the same way as if the editor were engaged on an Editio Princeps; and for this purpose the most correct text should be formed from an accurate collation of the best MSS.

To render the work more generally useful, the Master of the Rolls suggested that the editor should give an account of the MSS. employed by him, of their age and their peculiarities; that he should add to the work a brief account of the life and times of the author, and any remarks necessary to explain the chronology; but no other note or comment was to be allowed, except what might be necessary to establish the correctness of the text.

The works to be published in octavo, separately, as they were finished; the whole responsibility of the task resting upon the editors, who were to be chosen by the Master of the Rolls with the sanction of the Treasury.

The Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, after a careful consideration of the subject, expressed their opinion in a Treasury Minute, dated February 9, 1857, that the plan recommended by the Master of the Rolls "was well calculated for the accomplishment of this important national object, in an effectual and satisfactory manner, within a reasonable time, and provided proper attention be paid to economy, in making the detailed arrangements, without unnecessary expense."

They expressed their approbation of the proposal that each chronicle and historical document should be edited in such a manner as to represent with all possible correctness the text of each writer, derived from a collation of the best MSS., and that no notes should be added, except such as were illustrative of the various readings. They suggested, however, that the preface to each work should contain, in addition to the particulars proposed by the Master of the Rolls, a biographical account of the author, so far as authentic materials existed for that purpose, and an estimate of his historical credibility and value.

Rolls House,
December 1857.

GIRALDI CAMBRENSIS

OPERA.

EDITED

BY

JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A.,

RECTOR OF BARNBURGH, YORKSHIRE.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF THE LORDS COMMISSIONERS OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

VOL. VI.

LONDON:

LONGMANS, GREEN, READER, AND DYER.

1868.

Printed by Eyre and Spottiswoode, Her Majesty's Printers.
For Her Majesty's Stationery Office.

4214

GIRALDI CAMBRENSIS

ITINERARIUM KAMBRIÆ,

ET

DESCRIPTIO KAMBRIÆ.

EDITED

BY

JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A.,

RECTOR OF BARNBURGH, YORKSHIRE.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF THE LORDS COMMISSIONERS OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

LONDON:

LONGMANS, GREEN, READER, AND DYER.

1868:

JAN 7 1950

15410

CONTENTS.

| | Page |
|--|--------|
| PREFACE : | |
| PART I., MANUSCRIPTS - - - - - | ix |
| PART II., HISTORY, VALUE, &C., OF THESE WELSH TREATISES - - - - - | xxxiii |
| COLLATION OF THE PAGES OF CAMDEN AND WHARTON, WITH THOSE OF THE PRESENT EDITION - - | lxix |
| ITINERARIUM KAMBRLE : | |
| LIBER I. - - - - - | 3 |
| LIBER II. - - - - - | 101 |
| DESCRIPTIO KAMBRLE : | |
| LIBER I. - - - - - | 155 |
| LIBER II. - - - - - | 205 |
| GLOSSARY I, OF UNUSUAL WORDS - - - - - | 231 |
| GLOSSARY II., OF NAMES OF PERSONS AND PLACES - | 239 |
| INDEX - - - - - | 261 |

PREFACE.

DA
25
.B8
v.21

P R E F A C E

P A R T I.

M A N U S C R I P T S.

§ (1). MANUSCRIPTS OF THE ITINERARY.

OF the Welsh treatises of Giraldus, printed in the present volume, there are several manuscripts; but not nearly so many as of the Irish treatises of vol. v. A large number of the manuscripts, moreover, are late, and some of these very worthless. In the case of the Descriptio Kambrice, indeed, I have found only one manuscript, fortunately a very correct and valuable one, written anywhere near Giraldus's time. In describing the manuscripts which I have used, I shall follow the plan which I adopted in my Preface to vol. v., and shall place them, not according to their date or value, but according to the several editions of these Welsh treatises issued by our author.

Three editions of the existing manuscripts of the Itinerarium give us three very distinct editions. I am inclined to think that there may have been at least one more; but, if so, no copy of it has survived to us, so far as I have been able to ascertain. I shall always, for convenience sake, speak of the first, second, and third editions without hesitation, though, perhaps, one or more other editions of the treatise may have been issued by Giraldus, and moreover may still exist, though I have not succeeded in finding any manuscripts of them.

MSS. (R.), Manuscripts of The first edition of the Itinerary is (B.), (F.) first edition. given in the two excellent early manuscripts, Bib. Reg. 13 B. viii. of the British Museum, and Rawlinson B. 188 of the Bodleian Library, (R.) and (B.)
 of my notation; and again in the later manuscript Ff. 1, 27, of the University Library, Cambridge, (F.) of my notation, which is but a mere very accurate transcript of the far earlier manuscript (R.). These three manuscripts, as containing copies of the Irish treatises of Giraldus as well, have been sufficiently described in my Preface to vol. v., and I need not here repeat what I there said. I may remark, however, that manuscript (B.), and (R.) without its marginal additions, which give us the third edition of the Topographia Hibernica, and the first of the Expugnatio, give us also the first edition of this Itinerarium Kambricæ. The original, therefore, from which these manuscripts were derived,—for I do not suppose that either of these manuscripts, early though they be, both written in much likelihood during Giral-dus's lifetime, has any claim to be looked upon as Giral-dus's autograph,—was probably written at the time of the first appearance of the Itinerary of Wales, or soon after, and some time after the first appearance of the Irish Topography in 1188. But there is no necessity for supposing that any long time must have elapsed after 1188. Giraldus was very proud of his Irish Topography, and was given continually to revise and add to it, and this especially, we may well suppose, while the subject was still fresh and warm with him; and the third edition of it may well have appeared within two or three years after the first. The Expugnatio Hibernica of these manuscripts gives no hint as to the probable date of their original, except that this cannot have been written before the summer of 1189. This treatise

Vol. v.
 Preface,
 xx-xxii.

Ibid. xxxii.

Ibid. lviii.

first appeared at that time, but no new edition was issued until about twenty years after.

As I shall have to say before long, it seems that the first edition of the Itinerary, as here given us, must have appeared in the spring or summer of 1191: and at this time, probably, or soon after, the original was written, from which the manuscript volumes (R.) and (B.) were copied. Infra, xxxiii, &c.

In the Irish treatises in (R.) there are large additions in the margin, in an early hand not much later than that of the text, if not in the hand of the text itself. But it has no such additions to the text of the Itinerary of Wales. Vol. v. Preface, xxii, xxxii.

I have seldom thought it necessary to record the readings of (F.). As with the Irish treatises, it is certainly here also a direct and faithful copy of the earlier manuscript (R.). I collated this treatise in it carefully, in large part, if not wholly, before I set to work on (R.) and (B.); but it has seemed to me perfectly unnecessary to be always repeating (F.) after (R.). Where (F.) is not recorded, as it generally is not, in the various readings at the feet of the pages, its reading is the same as that of (R.) Ibid. xxii, &c.

Of the second edition of the Itinerary, MS. (Hc.) which is dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln, and was probably written, as we shall see, about 1197, I have found no early manuscript. But a copy of it is preserved to us in a sixteenth century folio volume amongst the Harleian manuscripts of the British Museum (Harleian, 359). This is a paper volume of 216 leaves, containing the Irish and Welsh treatises of Giraldus, with two or three other small additional articles.¹ These are in several Infra, xxxvii.

¹ Viz., on ff. 1-8, an imperfect and strangely dislocated copy of the Descriptio Cambriæ; ff. 9, 10, extracts from the same; ff. 10 b-14,

De successione episcoporum, &c., viz., Bernardi et David secund (Ex libro quodam veteri in quo continentur aliqua scripta Gyraldi different hands, but none earlier than the latter half of the sixteenth century. The copy of the Itinerary is carefully written, with far fewer blunders than usual in sixteenth century transcripts of the works of earlier writers. But its great value lies not so much in the verbal readings it may give us, as in its telling us what were the additions and alterations made in this second edition of the treatise, and what also, by their absence here, were the further additions and alterations in the third edition.

MS. (T.) The prefaces to this treatise, which are contained in the Symbolum Electorum (Trin. Coll. Camb. R. 7, 11), were taken from a copy of this second edition, as is proved by the addresses to bishop Hugh of Lincoln.¹

Additions in this second edition. The additions which Giraldus inserted in this second edition are many, and of considerable amount. The more noteworthy of them are as follows. The first preface,² infra 3, n. 1. A section about the canons of St. David's trying to persuade prince Rhys to forbid archbishop Baldwin's progress through South Wales, 15, n. 2. Five sections describing certain marvels in Elvael, Brecheiniog, &c., 18, n. 1. A section about William de Braose's piety, 22, n. 7. Two sections describing prodigies in Brecheiniog, 28, n. 4. A section describing marvels of Brecknock Mere, 35, n. 3. A section on the murderous excesses in Brecheiniog, 36, n. 6. A section about the healthy site of Llantoni abbey, 38, n. 2. More than half a chapter, Cambrensis, et nunc in custodia magistri Price de Wallia); Retractationes, &c. (Ex quodam vetusto libro Jo. Price, post Descriptionem Cambriæ); ff. 15-67, Expugnatio Hibernica; ff. 68-124, Topographia Hibernica; and on ff. 126-216, the Itinerarium Kambriæ.

¹ See infra, 3, n. 1; 7, n. 3; and 13, n. 2.

² A large portion, however, of this Preface is added at the end of MS. (B.) of the first edition, with a dedication to William Longchamp, bishop of Ely, which would probably date in the spring or summer of 1191. Of this I shall have to say more, in the history of this treatise. See infra, xxxv.

mainly about a prophetic Welshman at Caerleon, and his familiar intercourse with evil spirits, 57, n. 1. Two sections, one a very long one, describing a marvellous visitation to Henry II. at Cardiff, 64, n. 2. Two sections on the nature of dogs, 71, n. 5. A section relating a witticism of one of archbishop Baldwin's attendant monks, 74, n. 4. Three sections giving instances of divination by the blade-bone of a shoulder of mutton, 88, n. 1. A long section about the son of an incubus demon, 96, n. 3. Two sections relating events about prince Rhys and his sons and Nevern castle, which took place in 1191-1194; 111, n. 3, 112, n. 3 and 4. Four sections about beavers, 116, n. 3. Half a chapter in which an event is related that occurred in 1194, 134, n. 1 and 9. Two sections about one-eyed mullets in Scotland and the fabulous eagle of Snowdon, 136, n. 1. A section about a handless clever sempstress at Chester, 141, n. 4. Greater part of a long section, about Henry II.'s expedition into Powys in 1165, 143, n. 7.

Of all these additions there is only one, the second, about the endeavour of the canons of St. David's to stop archbishop Baldwin's progress, that has any real bearing whatever upon the subject of this treatise. Many of them would not have been out of place in the Descriptio Kambriæ; but all, with that one exception,—and the same is true of two or three other instances which I have not recounted above,—are unworthy additions to this Itinerary of archbishop Baldwin. I had to say of the Irish Topography, that almost all that was of any value whatever, as regarded Ireland, was comprised in the short first edition of that treatise; and I may say the same of this Welsh treatise. The first edition was pretty well confined to the Itinerary, so far as Giraldus could keep his pen from extraneous matter; but the additions of this second edition are nearly all foreign to his subject, have nothing whatever to do with archbishop Baldwin's progress through Wales.

Omission in this second edition. There is a considerable omission in this second edition, of matter about a very famous man of those days, William de Braose, that is well worth noting. In the first edition Giraldus had described the treacherous massacre—the “detestanda proditio” he calls it—of certain chieftains of Gwent, in the year 1175, in William de Braose’s castle of Abergavenni, after having been gathered thither by him for pretended purposes of peace, with all full solemn pledges of security.¹ He further describes the disgrace with Henry II., and other misfortunes, which fell upon William de Braose in consequence, asserting positively, however, all the while, that he took no part in either planning or executing this massacre, and that his only guilt lay in his most unwillingly and sorrowfully, under strong compulsion,² allowing it to be perpetrated in his castle.³ In the second edition all this almost wholly disappears. Giraldus now just mentions the enormous excess and bloody slaughter at Abergavenni castle, of which Henry II. was the author, and Ralph Poer the contriver; but deems it better to pass it over in silence, lest wicked men should follow the example;⁴ and afterwards has two or three lines about William de Braose’s guiltlessness in the matter, except in his not preventing the execution of it.⁵

Giraldus was wise in suppressing anything at all likely to give offence to William de Braose. With such a man as an enemy at Brecknock castle, for there William de Braose lorded it also, his residence at Llanduw would soon have been far too hot for him. But fear of giving offence, to however great a man, was not always a ruling motive of Giraldus’s pen; gratitude, probably, led much

¹ Infra, 49, n. 2.

² Giraldus’s words are: “Cum lacrimis tamen, dolore maximo, et anxietate, violenter ad hoc compulsus, in castro suo id fieri

“vix tandem et valde invitus admisit.” Infra, 51, n. 3.

³ Infra, 51, n. 3; and 53, n. 1.

⁴ Infra, 50, ll. 2-7.

⁵ Infra, 53, n. 1.

to his endeavour to clear one, who, however treacherous a murderer he may have been, was to him a kind and powerful friend, from the guilt of so atrocious a massacre. He was befriended and supported, and belauded to his own vain heart's content, by William de Braose,¹ and by his excellent wife, Maud de St. Valery, the "mulier " mulierum perpaucarum," whom he so loudly extols.² And Giraldus was not the man not to belaud in return; and he was one who could easily persuade himself, at any rate could unscrupulously try his best to persuade others, that so great a friend of his could not possibly be guilty of so great a crime, whatever might be the universal belief, and certain proofs to the contrary.

In the third edition, however, of this treatise, published after the death of William de Braose, Giraldus very considerably modifies the former positive assertion of his guiltlessness in this Abergavenni massacre. Instead of the "non auctor, nec executor, sed executionis " non impeditor," of the first and second editions, we now have "non auctor, sed vel executor, vel executionis " non impeditor."³ We may suppose, without much uncharitableness, that Giraldus was well assured, all the while, of William de Braose's active part in this massacre, though he chose to insist otherwise so long as William de Braose was alive.

Manuscripts of the third edition of the Itinerary. 1st, Domitian A. 1. Of the third edition of the Itinerary MS. (D.) we have a most valuable copy in the manuscript quarto volume, Domitian A. 1, of the British Museum. This volume contains the following treatises of Giraldus, viz., Itinerarium Kambriæ, ff. 56-111; Descriptio Kambriæ, ff. 111 b-135 b; Retractationes, ff. 135 b-136 b; and Catalogus Librorum,¹ ff. 136 b–137 b. These treatises are on vellum, in single columns of twenty-nine lines, and all in the same hand of about the second quarter of the thirteenth century. The writing is good and correct. There is but little ornamentation.

¹ At least so we may gather, from what Giraldus says elsewhere. See the De Invectionibus, vol. iii. 88-93.

² Infra, 23; and vol. iii. 91.

³ Infra, 53, l. 5; and note 1.

The first fifty-five leaves of this volume are occupied by treatises of Isidore and others, in a different but equally early, or rather still earlier hand or hands. At the foot of f. 2 is the following presentation note:—
 “ Karissimo amico suo et domino A., Dei gratia abbati
 “ Sancti Aug. Cant.”² This note, which is in a hand of the early part of the thirteenth century, may very possibly only record the presentation from a friend of what had been for some time in his own hands, and therefore proves nothing as to at how early a date the volume presented may have been written; but it is very interesting, as proving conclusively that it cannot have been written later than the year 1220; for the “dominus
 “ A.” cannot possibly be any other than Alexander,³ abbot of St. Augustine’s Canterbury, 1213–1220. It is very possible that the treatises of Giraldus in this volume may have been penned as early as this, though I should rather think them of a few years later date; and I should be glad to be able to believe that this note gives us the latest limit of the date of their writing. But there is a circumstance connected with it that seems to me wholly to forbid this idea. The note follows directly on a table of the contents⁴ of these first fifty-five leaves

¹ The Retractationes and Catalogus are printed by Mr. Brewer from this Domitian manuscript, vol. i. pp. 425 and 421.

² And on the next page, f. 2 b, in a much later hand, is this: “Liber
 “ Sancti Aug. Cant., Dist. V.”

³ An Alfricus became abbot of St. Augustine’s in A.D. 956. After whom, except this Alexander, no other abbot occurs,—and we have a perfect list of them,—whose name began with A, up to after A.D. 1400. I have not thought it worth while to examine beyond these dates.

⁴ Viz., “Isidorus de Naturis Re-“ rum; Glosulæ quædam; Insti-“ tutio Prisciani; Beda de Die
 “ Judici.”

of the volume, and belongs certainly, I fear we must conclude, to these only. They formed a separate volume when thus presented to abbot Alexander.

Moreover, the latter part of the volume, ff. 138–155, contains a copy of the Annales Cambriae,¹ in a hand of the last years of the thirteenth, or first of the fourteenth century,—certainly not before 1288, where the annals end. It is clear that this Domitian volume was at some time compacted, in Sir Robert Cotton's library probably, for convenience sake, from what originally were three distinct volumes or parts of volumes.

The copy of the Itinerary in this volume is dedicated to archbishop Stephen Langton, and, as I shall have to show in the history of this treatise, was written after the summer of 1213. It gives us, we may feel quite sure, very nearly, if not exactly, the last corrections and additions of the author; and closely to his time as it must have been written, if not written before his death, and the work as it is of a very correct scribe, it is no doubt a very authentic copy of probably his last revision of this treatise. I have therefore taken it as the basis of my text, noting carefully, however, where it differs from the earlier editions, and preferring their verbal readings occasionally, where it seems that its scribe, as must be the case sometimes with the very best scribes, was in error.

It is D. of my notation.

MS. Bib. Reg. 13 B. xii.; in which late copies of the third edition of the Itinerary. Another copy, or two other copies MS. (Rd.) rather, of this third edition are in a manuscript of the Royal Library of the British Museum, Bib. Reg. 13 B. xii. This is a late sixteenth century paper manuscript. It contains two copies of the Itinerary, and of the Description of Wales; one on ff. 1–148, the other on ff. 150–205.

¹ This is used in the Annales Cambriae of the present series; | manuscript (C.) of that work, Preface, xxvii.

The latter is closely and not always very legibly written, and is considerably worn; the former, fresh and clean comparatively, occupying good way towards three times as many pages, with wide margins, and large spaces between the chapters, is a fairer specimen of manuscripts of the time than we often meet with. This seems to be somewhat the later of the two, and, as they agree very exactly, was probably transcribed from the other. The version in these generally agrees closely with that of (D.); they give, however, two or three additions of new matter,¹ one of which is due certainly I think, and others

¹ There are some nine or ten unimportant additions of a word or two, and two additions of several lines, viz., at p. 44, (n. 1), a quotation from St. Ambrose; and at p. 44 (n. 4), mention of the Parian stone, or freestone, of the hills round Llantoni, which had been used in the construction of the abbey church there, now not long since at length completed ("Ex quibus ecclesia jam extat egregie constructa," 45, l. 7). The term "Parii lapides" of this latter passage, a term, I believe, peculiar to Giraldus, proves it almost conclusively, I think, to have been an addition of Giraldus's own pen. Moreover, the ruins of Llantoni church show that it was built in Giraldus's life-time, and can have been completed but few years, if any, before the time (circa 1215) when this passage would be added by him to the last edition of the Itinerary. I have never seen the church myself, but I can state, on the far better authority of my good friend, Edward A. Freeman, Esq., that it is a very good example of the local transition from Romanesque to Early Gothic, and must have been built in the later years of the twelfth century, or at the very beginning of the thirteenth. The masonry is very good, fully deserving Giraldus's "egregie constructa." An excellent description of this church, from Mr. Freeman's pen, will be found in the 1855 volume of the Archæologia Cambrensis, p. 82. This passage, therefore, about Llantoni and its Parian stones, I think we may safely conclude, was certainly added by Giraldus himself, though by some accident it escaped the scribe of the excellent early manuscript (D.), and only appears in the very late manuscript (Rd.); and as it is only separated from the other additional passage, the quotation from St. Ambrose, by a short intermediate section of a dozen lines, one and the same accident, perhaps, caused the non-insertion of both in the early copy of the third edition.

One of (Rd.)'s minor additions upon (D.), two words, on a very vulgar and nasty subject, is rather oddly in the second edition as given us in (Hc.); 88, n. 4. There was little nicety, on such a matter, in those days; but it may perhaps be probably, to Giraldus's pen; but, as occurring only in so late a manuscript, while placing them in my text, I have enclosed them within brackets. I have thought it right to collate this manuscript carefully, and to record its readings; because, late though it be,¹ it is evidently a good transcript for its time, derived evidently from a good early manuscript distinct from (D.), and is the only manuscript besides (D.) that I have been able to find of Giraldus's last revision of these Welsh treatises.

New additions in this third edition. There are very considerable additions in this third edition to the second edition as given us in manuscript (He). Many of them are of a mere explanatory word or two, but many also are additions of new matter. The more noteworthy of the latter are as follows:—A string of the reigning sovereigns in 1188,² when archbishop Baldwin itinerated that the scribe of (D.) had too delicate a pen to repeat such an unclean and useless addition. Giraldus would have no scruple, because he had full authority from Horace, 1 S. viii. 47.

¹ It does not at all necessarily follow that a manuscript, because late, is therefore not valuable. It may be a faithful transcript from a good early manuscript that has perished; and if the only manuscript that has come down to us, it will be very valuable. For this reason I consider the copy of this treatise preserved in the late manuscript (He.), which I have already described (supra, xi.), to be very valuable. It is correctly written for its time; was no doubt taken from a good earlier manuscript; and is the only manuscript now in being, so far as I have been able to ascertain, that gives us Giraldus's very distinct second edition of this Itinerary of Wales.

² Giraldus is wrong in the first of his sovereigns. He makes Urban III., who died Oct. 19, 1187, to be pope in 1188. It is very probable that he added this string of sovereigns in imitation of the very similar string at the commencement of the first chapter of the Itinerarium Regis Ricardi, a work that Giraldus was well acquainted with, as he extracts largely from it in his De Principis Instructione. And hence would be his mistake about the pope. He follows the original which he is imitating, without thinking that its right pope Urban of 1187 might not be the right pope of 1188. William of Newburgh has a very similar string of sovereigns, when commencing his account of the crusade with the year 1187 (i. 248, Engl. Hist. Society). Professor Stubbs, in his very valuable preface to the Itin. R. Ricardi (p. lxix), thinks it not improbable that this work may have been seen round Wales; infra, 13, n. 3. An addition to the account of Giraldus's taking the cross at Radnor; 14, n. 5. A clause about archbishop Baldwin's reading the Topography of Ireland; 20, n. 6. A section containing two quotations from Holy Scripture, and deductions from them; 22, n. 6. Three sections, describing miracles at Bury St. Edmund's, Howden, and Winchcombe; 24, n. 3. The account, from the Topographia Hibernica, of St. Patrick's horn, and the Welsh priest who dared to blow it; 26, n. 7. A section about master Fulke, and Richard I., and the three daughters; 44, n. 3. A clause about the marvellous effect of Giraldus's preaching at Haverford; 83, n. 1. A section about a Cistercian abbot and a French knight; 96, n. 2. A long section about an archbishop of Denmark and a demon clerk; 98, n. 1. A clause about Geoffrey's succession to the bishopric of St. David's in 1203; 104, n. 4. A long account, from the Topographia Hibernica, of Henry II., &c., at St. David's, on his return from Ireland in 1172; 107, n. 4. Quotations from Cicero, Juvenal, and Bernard, about the Castor; 117, n. 2. Clause about crossing the rivers Dysynwy and Artro, Merionethshire; 124, n. 3. Quotation from Trogus Pompeius; 137, n. 4. Clause about Robert de Belesme's importation of Spanish horses into Powys; 143, n. 4. Section about the more eminent Welsh princes of Giraldus's time; 145, n. 3. Clause about pope Urban's rebuke of archbishop Baldwin's re-by Newburgh, and so followed. But may it not have been the other way, if there was any following at all? There is no proof that Newburgh used this history of the crusade; his work indeed was finished, certainly before this appeared in its full form, perhaps before any part of it appeared. Newburgh, in his string, gives only the sovereigns, Frederick of Germany, Philip of France, Henry of England, and pope Urban; to these the author of the Itin. R. Ricardi adds, Isaac of Constantinople and William of Sicily; and to these again Giraldus adds, Bela of Hungary and Guy of Palestine. This seems to make it look likely that Newburgh was imitated and added to, in the string of sovereigns, by the author of the Itin. R. Ricardi; and this writer again, in like manner, by Giraldus.

missness ; 149, n. 1. And lastly, a long section about a death-bed dream of archbishop Richard of Canterbury, and about the good results of St. Thomas's struggles and martyrdom having been lost by the remissness of his two immediate successors ; 150, n. 4.

A large part of these additions, in this third edition, have as little to do with the subject of the treatise as almost all the additions which Giraldus had before made, Supra, xiii in the second edition, to the work as first issued. But there are several of them that do bear directly on his subject, instead of the one only such instance amongst the insertions in the second edition. We may perhaps find a reason for this in the probable facts that the second edition was issued some time during Giraldus's stay at Lincoln, far away from Wales, and the third in the retirement of his later years in his Welsh home, where the circumstances of his peregrination through Wales with archbishop Baldwin would naturally be more in his memory. It still seems to me that, as in the case of the Irish Topography, Giraldus's literary character would have stood higher than it has any claim to do now, if the first edition only of this treatise also had come down to us. We may be thankful for his after additions, but we cannot applaud an author for loading his pages with such a mass of extraneous matter.

The above are all the manuscripts of the Itinerary that I have been able to examine. They are few in number ; but the valuable copies of the first edition given us in manuscripts (R.) and (B.), and the equally good copy of the third edition in (D.), with the differences of the second edition supplied by (Hc.), leave perhaps little to be desired by an editor in forming his text. There is one other manuscript, however, described in Mr. Hardy's Catalogue as of the twelfth or thirteenth century, which I should have been very glad to see. It is No. 6914 of Sir Thos. Phillipps' collection, and I have not been able to gain access to it.

§ (2.) MANUSCRIPTS OF THE DESCRIPTION.

I now proceed to the manuscripts of the Descriptio Kambricæ, the second of the treatises of this volume.

Editions of the Descriptio Kambricæ. Giraldus issued certainly two editions, if no more, of this treatise: one dedicated to his after adversary in the matter

Infra, xl. of St. David's, archbishop Hubert of Canterbury; and another, some twenty years afterwards, or nearly, dedicated to archbishop Stephen Langton. As will be seen, there was very possibly an intermediate edition, dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln; but this is doubtful: the evidence which seems to prove it may perhaps only tell us of the presentation to the Lincoln saint of a copy of the same first edition not long before dedicated to archbishop Hubert. For convenience sake I shall speak without hesitation of the edition addressed to archbishop Hubert as the first edition, and of that addressed to Stephen Langton as the second; though there may have been an intermediate one addressed to bishop Hugh.

Manuscripts of the first edition. I have found no early manuscript of the first edition, though I have searched and enquired anxiously. There are many late copies of it, but all, unhappily, derived from one common source, in which a considerable portion of the treatise had been lost. In 1691, when Wharton published his Anglia Sacra, there was what may have been an early copy of it—or of the possible second edition, for it was dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln—in the library at Westminster Abbey. This is not now to be found; it probably perished in the fire, three years afterwards, which was fatal to so much of the contents of that library.

MS. (V.) Vitellius C. x., British Museum. Of the manuscripts of this first edition which I have used, I shall place first, because I imagine it to be the earliest, the copy in Vitellius C. x. of the Cotton manuscripts of the British Museum. This is a folio volume of 273 leaves. The few leaves of it which contain the copy of the Description of Wales, ff. 4–9 of recent numbering, are of vellum; the writing in a hand of the second half of the fourteenth century, in double columns of fifty or fifty-one lines. The large remainder of the volume, of paper, consists of various pieces relating to Wales, in a seventeenth century hand, with many original documents pasted on the leaves. This no doubt has much valuable material for a Welsh historian.

This copy of the treatise is V. of my notation.

Nero D. viii., Of about the same, but probably of MS. (N.)
British Museum. some few years later date, is another copy of the first edition of this treatise, in another Cotton volume, Nero D. viii., of the British Museum. This volume contains,¹ in one hand, on vellum, in double columns of forty-eight lines, the following treatises, viz.: Giraldi Cambrensis Cambriæ Descriptio, on ff. 176–183; Disputatio inter Clericum et Militem,² of William de Ockam, on ff. 183–186; De origine Gigantum in Albion, on ff. 186–187*b*; and Higden's Polychronicon, on ff. 188–344*b*.³ This copy of Higden is a copy of his first edition, ending in 1327;⁴ but a continuation is added to 1376.

¹ The first part of this volume contains, in a beautiful thirteenth century hand, the following works: Geoffrey of Monmouth, ff. 3–63; Nennii Historia Britonum, and De Mirabilibus Britannia, ff. 63–71; Dudo S. Quintini Decanus, de Ducibus Normanniæ, ff. 72–135 b; Willelmus Calculus Gemeticensis, ff. 135 b–159 b; and Vita Alexandri Magni, ff. 160–175.

² This is printed in Goldasti Monarchia S. Rom. Imperii, i. 13. The copy in this manuscript varies from Goldastus's text.

³ At the end of the volume are two or three leaves of paper, on which, ff. 345–347, in a hand of the sixteenth or seventeenth century, but imitating an early hand, is the tract, Marianus de Monasterio Colecestrensi, printed in the Monasticon, (iv. 607, of last edition).

⁴ This copy of Higden, up to 1327, seems to agree exactly with that of Mr. Babington's manuscript (C.), as described in his preface to the first volume of Higden in this series. With it the history ends at that year (f. 333 b) with "Scotia concordiam, ecclesia libertatem;" and then also follow the six hexameters, "Scribitur ecce liber . . . laudes benedicto" of that manuscript (Higden, i., Preface, l). After this our manuscript has the Index,

This portion, therefore, of the volume is certainly not earlier than 1376; it was perhaps written towards quite the end of the century, if not in the earlier part of the fifteenth century.¹ The copy of the Description agrees exactly as to contents, and very closely as to verbal readings as well, with the copy in (V.); but there are variations enough of readings to show that it was not transcribed from (V.). They agree, however, so closely that they were very probably transcribed from the same earlier manuscript. As they are, to some extent, independent copies, I have carefully collated both, and recorded their readings in my notes. There is no note whatever telling anything of the history of the volume, or of any part of it.

This copy is N. of my notation.

MS. (Rc.) Bib. Reg. 13 C. There is another copy in a volume of iii., British Museum the Royal Library of the British Museum, seum. Bib. Reg. 13 C. iii., of about the same date; somewhat earlier perhaps than (N.), and later perhaps than (V.). This, carelessly and not very legibly written, agrees so exactly with (V.) that one is probably a mere transcript of the other. I collated it, in large measure at any rate, but I am not sure that I have in any instance thought it worth while to record its readings in my notes. If I have, it will be designated by Rc. It seemed to me amply enough to give the readings of (V.) and (N.).

The above are the only copies I have met with of this first edition of the Description of Wales, dedicated to archbishop Hubert, of an earlier date than the sixteenth century. In all three, a portion Dislocation, and large deficiency, in these MSS. of the second preface is missing from its right place at the beginning of the first occupying ff. 333 b-339 b; and then the continuation to the year 1376, on ff. 339 b-344 b; all in the same hand.

¹ In Mr. Hardy's Catalogue, ii.
466, it is described as of fifteenth century date.

book, and placed instead in the middle of the seventh chapter of the second book;¹ and good way towards half of the first book, from the middle of Cap. 8 to the middle of Cap. 17, is lost altogether.² In each case—of omission in right place, of after mis-insertion, and of entire loss—these manuscripts run coolly and continuously on, in the middle of pages, making utter nonsense at the points of omission and mis-insertion, without the slightest hint that their scribes had the slightest notion of anything being wrong. These copies must have been derived from an earlier manuscript, in which one leaf had got misplaced from the beginning of the first book to the middle of the second, and which had also lost altogether some dozen leaves, or thereabouts, from the middle of the first book. Medieval scribes cannot have been generally ignorant or illiterate men, at all events in the matter of medieval manuscripts; and such ignoring of things so evidently wrong may be a proof rather of their rigid accuracy, and of their ready faith, as in other marvellous things, so in anything strange about what was given them to copy.

Late like manuscripts. Agreeing wholly with these manuscripts as to contents, with the same unnoted dislocation and deficiency, differing only in many scribal blunders, are many manuscript copies of this treatise, of the second half of the sixteenth century.
Of such I have examined—some of them far more carefully than they deserved—the copies in the following manuscript volumes, viz., in Harleian 359 (Hc.,³ already Supra, xi. described), Harleian 1757, and Vitellius E. v, of the British Museum; in Ff. 1, 27 (F.)⁴ of the University Supra, x.

¹ Infra, 163, n. 1; 215, n. 4.

² Infra, 180, n. 5; 201, n. 2.

³ This is the manuscript volume before described, which contains the valuable copy of the second edition of the Itinerary. The copy in it of the Description is in a different hand, and very worthless.

⁴ This volume has been just mentioned before; it is described at p. xxii, &c., of my Preface to vol. v. It was one of archbishop Parker's

Library, and No. 400¹ of Corpus Christi Coll., Cambridge. I believe that I have never once recorded the readings of any one of these manuscripts: it would have been mere useless waste of letter-press: except in their blundering verbal variations or omissions, they are merely copies of (V.) or (N.), or of some other exactly corresponding manuscript or manuscripts.

It is curious that so many copies of this mutilated first edition should be found, but no perfect copy of the treatise at all, of sixteenth century date, with the exception of the copy of the second edition in the manuscript volume (Rd.), which I have already described as containing also a copy of the third edition of the Itinerary. It can hardly be supposed that no better manuscripts than such as (V.) and (N.) were then known. There were at hand the since lost Westminster manuscript containing the first edition, and the valuable manuscript (D.), the Cotton Domitian volume described above, containing the second edition of this treatise; and very possibly some, perhaps many others, of which we gifts to the University. The copy of the Description, on paper, is inserted between the Expugnation of Ireland and the Itinerary of Wales, occupying pp. 473-491 of archbishop Parker's numbering. It was probably written by some scribe employed by him, and was no doubt bound up here under his directions with the earlier manuscripts, in order to complete the series of the Irish and Welsh treatises of Giraldus.

¹ This volume, which contains valuable early copies of the Irish Topography, and the treatise De Jure et Statu Menevensis Ecclesie of our author, will be found described at p. xiv of my Preface to vol. v. The Description of Wales,

on paper, is placed between these early manuscripts. Its leaves have no paging, while the Topography has its folios numbered by an early hand, and the De Jure, &c., has the red paging (1-113) of archbishop Parker. The treatises, therefore, were probably separate when given by him to the college, and bound up together afterwards.

In Mr. Hardy's Catalogue (ii. 466, 467), there is a mistake about the Cambridge C. C. Coll. manuscripts of Giraldus. His reference under Cambria Descriptio belongs to the Topographia Hibernica, and that under the Itinerarium Cambriae to the Descriptio. There is no copy of the Itinerary in the library.

now find no tidings. But even allowing that these were unknown to the sixteenth century transcribers, there was another perfect manuscript of the second edition, distinct from (D.), which most certainly was known to them, from which the sixteenth century transcript of (Rd.) was taken. And yet, with this one exception, so far as I have been able to see, all the sixteenth century scribes insisted on repeating copies of this mutilated first edition. It is perhaps scarcely uncharitable to suppose that archbishop Parker, and other then patrons of our English historical literature, paid some agreed-on sum for the transcription of this treatise, without specifying from what manuscript the transcript was to be made, very possibly without knowing the worth of the different manuscripts;¹ and that the scribes preferred, as paying them much better, the shorter manuscripts. But there pp. xxxi—xxxvii of Sir Frederick Madden's most valuable Preface to vol. i. of the Anglorum Historia of Matthew Paris, lately published in this series. It is indeed hard to believe that such a man as archbishop Parker, one whom we have learnt to hold in such reverence, could possibly have been guilty of the atrocious falsifications that the works under his name most certainly display, or of so solemn an assurance of their truthfulness, if he had himself the least doubt about it. It may perhaps well be, that he only too honestly believed in the honesty of his scribes and editors; but he certainly was very unwise and wrong, if such were the case, in so confidently staking his own character, whether as a truthful man and honest editor, or as a foul liar and falsifier, on the truthfulness of what had not passed carefully under his own eyes.

¹ It is to be hoped that archbishop Parker had little cognizance of how his scribes copied for him, or of how his editors manipulated the works published under his name. In the Preface to his edition of Asser's Life of Alfred, he solemnly declares that in all the works put forth by him he had strictly and faithfully adhered to the manuscript originals, with no addition or alteration whatever. To mention but one case,—there are others much of the same sort,—his edition of Matthew Paris, so far from faithfully representing the manuscripts, is simply a most infamously dishonest perversion of this writer's text, with sometimes, moreover, utterly unauthorised additions. This was exposed by Wats, in the reprint of 1640, but seems to have been little, if at all, believed. If any one be inclined to doubt its possibility, I advise him to turn to

may have been a more innocent cause of this: the sixteenth century transcribers, and editors of such a work, seem to me to have generally preferred, where they had any choice, the manuscripts nearest to their own time, because perhaps to them the most legible; and therefore these scribes of the sixteenth-century copies of this treatise may simply have followed the then usual custom, in their selection of the manuscripts to be copied. It is very difficult, however, to suppose that they were not well aware that there was something wrong in what they were transcribing.

MSS. (D.) Manuscripts of I have met with no other copies of the and (Rd.), the second edition. second edition of the Description of supra, xv., Wales, dedicated to archbishop Stephen Langton, besides xvii. those in the manuscripts (D.) and (Rd.), which I have already described as containing copies also of the third edition of the Itinerary. (D.) is so early and correct a manuscript, that perhaps no further manuscript would have much improved upon its text of the author's latest revision of this treatise. As in the Itinerary, I therefore take the copy in (D.) for the basis of my text; but not without preferring occasionally the readings of (Rd.), or of the manuscripts of the first edition,—late comparatively though the earliest of these be,—especially when they all concur in giving a reading different from the sole reading of (D.). Such instances do not very often occur; the scribe of (D.) was a very good one, though of course sometimes making mistakes:

Variations of It is certain, as regards this treatise as Supra, xix. these manuscripts. well as the Itinerary, that (Rd.) was not derived from (D.), but from some early kindred manuscript. It has many variations from (D.); besides mere verbal variations, often an addition or omission of an unimportant word or two; of which all almost of the omissions seem mere scribal blunders, many certainly so. The only addition worth noticing is at 184, n. 1, "cujusmodi
"in Veteri Instrumento lagana dici solent," which sounds much like an interpolation from some commentator's marginal note. There are two or three alterations of the text to be remarked, because very probably giving us corrections of Giraldus's latest pen, that had somehow escaped the scribe of (D.). At 164, n. 3, (D.) ascribes to Seneca a quotation from Cicero: instead of Seneca, (Rd.) has, "moralis ille philosophus." At 167, n. 1, (D.) follows the first edition, and speaks of Rhys ab Gruffudd, who died in 1197, as still prince of South Wales: instead of (D.'s) "hodie præest," (Rd.) has "diebus nostris præfuit." At 167, n. 2, in giving the genealogy of the princes of North Wales, (D.) again agrees with the first edition, and speaks of David ab Owain, who was expelled by his nephew Llywelyn in 1194, as if still the prince of North Wales: instead of (D.'s) "David filius Oenei," (Rd.) has, "Luelinus filius Iorwerth, Iorwerth filius Oenei." At 208, n. 10, instead of (D.'s) "Maximus ille," (Rd.) has "ille tam re Maximus quam nomine," an alteration so thoroughly Giraldic that it must be Giraldus's own. These altered readings in (Rd.)—and there are one or two other minor ones that might perhaps have been added—I believe to be, in all probability, corrections of Giraldus's own pen. Still I have thought it better in these cases to adhere to the text of the early manuscript (D.), and to be satisfied with recording in my notes these very probably better readings of a very late manuscript.

The additions in this second edition are small and unimportant, compared with what Giraldus had meanwhile made to his other Welsh treatise, the Itinerary, and more fully still to the Irish Topography. The following list will, I think, comprise all the additions, except of a mere explanatory word or so:—A quotation of two lines from Horace, at 164, n. 2. One line explaining the word Cantrev, 169, n. 5. Six or seven lines containing three quotations about the Castor, from Cicero, Juvenal, and Bernard, 175, n. 2. A bare mention of two rivers of Merionethshire, 176, n. 2. A quotation of two lines, 180 n. 2. [After this comes the large gap in all the copies of the first edition, during which we have no means of ascertaining what may have been the additions made in the second edition.] A section of sixteen lines of my text, describing the Welsh coracles, 201, n. 6. Two sections, comprising twenty-three lines of my text, about Maximus and his exhausting levies from Britain for his foreign wars, and about Gildas's history of Arthur, 208, n. 9. A quotation, four lines, from Micah, 212, n. 2. A quotation, four lines, from Proverbs, 215, n. 1. A quotation, eight lines, from Hosea, 216, n. 7. One line about the bad management of some lord-marchers, 223, n. 4. And a section, twelve lines of my text, about the three things ruinous to the Welsh nation, 225. This treatise, like the Irish Expugnatio, can have been taken but little notice of by Giraldus after its first issue, in comparison with his other Welsh and Irish treatises, to which he made such large additions and must have given so much labour; though it be a treatise, we may perhaps think, that he might easily have added to and much improved.

Omission in this second edition. There is a very curious passage of the first edition, omitted in the second, which must not be passed over without notice.¹ It formed in the first edition the conclusion of the ninth chapter of the second book; in which, and in the previous chapter, Giraldus had been advising about the right way to thoroughly subdue and govern Wales. In this passage he coolly recommended the English monarch to drive bodily the whole Welsh race out of Wales, and to colonize the country with other people. He then added that, in the opinion of some, it would be still better and wiser, and more the part of a provident prince, to turn the whole land, rugged as it was and only fit for rugged and rebellious inhabitants, into one vast forest, left entirely to wild beasts. It may be, we may hope, that when he suppressed this passage in the second edition,¹ he was heartily ashamed of ever having given such cold-blooded merciless advice of extermination of a whole race. Altogether it is a curious passage, as written by one who, though at the time devoted to the English interests, was still himself half a Welshman, and nearly related to the princes of South Wales ; and quite as curious, as written by the man who, very few years afterwards, was the earnest patriotic Welshman, in the cause of St. David's, and of his own election to this see.

¹ Infra, 225, n. 4.

The sixteenth century copies of this treatise which I have named, that of (Rd.) of the second edition, as well as the many imperfect copies of the first edition, all containing both books, were probably all written not later ^{Supra,} than 1585, when Powel's volume was printed. Powel ^{xxxv.} Infra, liii. however, I suppose from his Welsh patriotism, printed the first book only, De Laudabilibus : the second book, De Illaudabilibus, he utterly ignores, though no existing manuscript up to his time gives one without the other.

¹ Very probably it was suppressed long before the issue of this new edition, dedicated to archbishop Langton. It seems not to have been in the copy in the lost Westminster manuscript used by Wharton, where this treatise was addressed, about the year 1197, to bishop Hugh of Lincoln. Wharton has a marginal note near the place, to the effect that the latter part of the chapter, as in the second edition, was not in the Westminster manuscript (infra, 224, n. 12), and he has not a hint of this having anything else instead. Had the Westminster manuscript contained so strange a passage, he must, one would think, have taken notice of it. But he edited so badly, that it is impossible to feel at all sure what he might notice or not notice. By the time, however, that this treatise was presented to bishop Hugh, Giraldus had begun to see how poor was his chance of finding, in the English court, any right recognition of his merits and services, and any such promotion as he deemed himself richly to deserve; and he was becoming the earnest patriotic Welshman that he soon afterwards showed himself. Very probably, therefore, this atrocious passage was suppressed in the copy of the treatise addressed to bishop Hugh, and accordingly was not in Wharton's Westminster manuscript.

Camden's volume does but repeat the treatise from Powel, and accordingly has no mention of the second book. This remained in manuscript until printed by Infra, lviii. Wharton in the second volume of his Anglia Sacra in 1691. Copies, therefore, of this second book separately would naturally be written long after the first book had ceased to be transcribed. And such exist in the following manuscript volumes; viz., in O. 5, 24 of Trin. Coll. Library, Cambridge, with a note that it was transcribed from "Cod. Cott. Domit. A. 1," i. e. (D.) of my notation; and in Sloane 1691, and 4785, of the British Museum, to both of which copies is affixed the transcriber's note, "Ex Bibliotheca Regia." The note in the latter of these (4785), which was formerly Clarendon xxviii. is, "14^o Martii 1641. Ex Bibliotheca Regia. "Communicavit Patricius Junius bibliothecarius regius." These two Sloane copies agree exactly, barring blunders, with Bib. Reg. 13 B. xii., (Rd.) supra, and were no doubt copied from it.

PART II.

HISTORY, VALUE, PRINTED EDITIONS, &c., OF THESE TREATISES.

§ (1). HISTORY OF THE ITINERARY.

I must now try to trace the history of the several editions of these Welsh treatises so far as there is any actual evidence, or mere hints, to guide us. Much of what I have to say will depend mainly upon the latter.

The Itinerary was the first published of the two. What I call the first edition was certainly not issued before the spring of 1191, because it mentions archbishop Baldwin's death before Acre, which took place in November 1190.¹ This would be just about three years after the progress through Wales in the spring of 1188, which it describes; and three years perhaps seem a long time for Giraldus's ready pen to have taken on a subject evidently of so great satisfaction and pride to himself. Moreover, the treatise seems often full of narration on the very spot and time of the circumstances it describes. It is perfectly possible that there may have been an earlier edition, of which no manuscript has come down to us. But, on the other hand, Giraldus tells us of three years' labour over the Irish Topography, and two over the

¹ Infra, 151.

Expugnatio. There is evidence also that in 1189 and 1190 he was a busy follower of the court, and much employed in other than literary work. During the earlier part, too, of the three years after the Welsh progress, there were his near crusading expectations, which would largely demand his time and labour; and what literary leisure he may then have had, we may suppose, would be given to the Irish Expugnatio, published hurriedly and incompletely in June, or very near to June, of 1189.¹ And his narrative of archbishop Baldwin's progress may very probably have been in much measure penned at the time, though not put into shape and published until three years afterwards. Anyhow, as we have now no tidings of an earlier edition, we can only take this, not issued before the spring of 1191, as the first edition.

And it was issued not later than the early autumn of 1191. In the excellent early manuscript (R.) there is no dedication preface. It seems odd that there should be no such preface to the first edition of this treatise, because, in every other of his early treatises,² except the life of archbishop Geoffrey, which was published anonymously, Giraldus selects some potent patron, under whose auspices he wishes his work to be ushered into the world, or from whom he hoped to gain advancement. But in the nearly, if not quite, equally early and valuable manuscript (B) of this edition, there is, in the same hand, a large part of the dedicatory preface, as it appeared afterwards in later editions; not, however, in its proper place, at the beginning, but at the end, as if smuggled on accidentally. This is addressed to Wil-

¹ See vol. v., Preface, lvi, &c.

² The Topography of Ireland was dedicated to Henry II. in 1188; the Expugnatio to Richard, count of Poitou, in 1189; and the first edition of the Description of Wales to archbishop Hubert, circa 1194. Giraldus continued his dedications for some years afterwards. The second edition of the Itinerary is dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln; to whom also he addressed the Description of Wales, but this probably merely a copy of the first edition. The date of these would be, 1196-1199. By this time Giraldus seems to have found out the futility of such dedications, involving labour and cost to himself, with no worthy result. The Symbolum

Electorum, the Gemma Ecclesiastica, the De Invectionibus, the De Rebus, &c., the Vita S. Hugonis (yet in manuscript), all published between 1199 and 1213, invoke the auspices, and favour to the author, of no patron. But on archbishop Langton's triumphant return in 1213, Giraldus seems to have thought that there was now one whose patronage he would do well to cultivate. To him he dedicates the Legenda Remigii (a second edition, the only one that has come down to us), the third edition of the Itinerary, the second edition of the Description of Wales, and the De Jure, &c. The De Principis Instructione, in the shape in which we have it the last probably of Giral-

This first edition dedicated to Wm. de Longchamp. liam, bishop of Ely, i.e. William de Longchamp, in whose hands Richard, on his departure for Palestine, placed all but kingly power; papal legate also; up to the autumn of 1191 the most powerful man in England. But in October 1191, Longchamp was most ignominiously driven out of England; and we may be very sure that Giraldus would never dedicate a work to him after his downfall from his high estate. Moreover, it is almost impossible to conceive that even Giraldus could have had the face,—after his horrible invective against Longchamp,¹ in the last chapter of the life of archbishop Geoffrey of York, written no doubt close upon Longchamp's expulsion,—to address a dedication to him in after years, when brought back by Richard to England, and restored in some part to his greatness. Giraldus, indeed, published this life of archbishop Geoffrey without actually affixing his name to it at the time; but no doubt it was well known who wrote it; Giraldus's own vanity would never rest without letting all his friends know that a new work had produs's works, in the preface to which he speaks of his "ætas infirmior, et "metæ finalis cursus affinior," is addressed to no patron. There is a curious passage in this preface (p. 4, ed. Brewer, 1846), where he bewails the profitless dedications of his earlier works, in his ambitious days, to princes and prelates, and resolves to dedicate this and any future work to posterity only, who will no doubt worthily appreciate his labours.

¹ See vol. v., Preface, lxxv, note.

ceeded from his eloquent scholastic pen,—and a work, too, so lauding archbishop Geoffrey, whose probably future powerful patronage we may well suppose he hoped to procure.

We may conclude, I think, pretty safely, that this first edition was issued somewhere about the middle of the year 1191,¹ with a dedication to William de Longchamp; that after Longchamp's downfall Giraldus did all he could to suppress the dedication, and instead of sounding the great man's praises, now vomited out, from the blackest region of his bile, bitter disgusting abuse of the man who seemed utterly fallen; and that hence the dedication appears in one manuscript only of this edition, and there only in part, and out of its right place, by mere accident as it were, or stealth. It is, perhaps, worth remarking, that the dedication to Longchamp in (B) contains only the first part, in which is no mention of the patron whom he is addressing: it stops abruptly with an &c., at the quotation from Juvenal, as in p. 7 infra. It would seem as if in the earlier manuscript, from which the scribe of (B.) copied, this first part was not erased, or only so far erased as not to be illegible, but the latter part, which would contain Giraldus's high opinion of the abilities and virtues of his patron, had been carefully and thoroughly blotted out.

¹ There is one passage of the first edition that seems at first sight to point to a later date than 1191. It speaks of the expulsion from Anglesey of Rhodri, son of Owain Gwynedd, by his victorious nephews (infra, 127), which is only mentioned by the Brut under 1193; and this, I believe, is the date generally given by Welsh historians to this expulsion. But the Brut says that in 1193 Rhodri subjugated the island, and was driven from it the same year. It is clear therefore that the expulsion of 1193 was not the first expulsion: if Rhodri had held Anglesey up to that year, he would not have had then to subjugate it. His first expulsion no doubt was, as Giraldus says, shortly after ("in brevi postmodum," 127, l. 5) the archbishop's progress in 1188.

Presentation
copy also to archbishop Hubert.

In the dedication of the first edition of the Description of Wales to archbishop Hubert, as given us in manuscripts (V.), (N.), &c., Giraldus speaks of having before addressed the Itinerary also to him.¹ This would be not earlier than the summer of 1193, when Hubert was promoted from Salisbury to the metropolitan throne of Canterbury. No copy of this treatise, so addressed, is now known to exist. It may have been a new edition, intermediate in contents between our first and second editions; but more probably, it was merely a presentation copy of the first edition, which had now found a worthy patron in the place of the discarded Longchamp, or would give a revision of the treatise so slightly altered as not to deserve the name of a new edition.

Second edition, dedicated to Hugh of Lincoln, circa 1197.

The very distinct new edition, dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln, was published after the year 1194; as, amongst its additions, it contains an account of the defeat and imprisonment of Rhys prince of South Wales by his sons,² and of the expulsion of David son of Owain Gwynedd from North Wales by his nephew Llywelyn ab Iorwerth;³ both which events took place in that year. It appeared, no doubt, some time during Giraldus's three years' stay at Lincoln, in 1196-1199;⁴ and probably soon after his arrival there. He would not be long, we may suppose, in thus expressing his devotion to Hugh of Lincoln, when brought into something like contact with him. About this time, indeed,

¹ Infra, 156, l. 1, and n. 2; and 155, notes 1, 2, 3.

² Infra, 111, n. 3; and 112, n. 4.

³ Infra, 134, n. 1 and 9.

⁴ Wharton says, very erroneously, that Giraldus went to Lincoln in 1192, and stayed there seven years; Anglia Sacra, ii. 374. It seems perfectly certain that he did not go there until after 1194; and almost equally certain that he went there in the spring or summer of 1196, and stayed there about three years. See vol. v., Preface, liii, note 2.

Giraldus supposed himself to have been badly used by Hugh, in the matter of the church of Chesterton ;¹ but bitter and fierce and unscrupulous as he was against all who in any way opposed him or his interests, he seems to have made an exception in the case of Hugh of Lincoln ; he is always loud and warm in laudation of him, notwithstanding the ill-treatment he believed he had received. Hugh's final action, however, in the matter of Chesterton, may have been in Giraldus's favour, and previous to any of Giraldus's laudations.

Third edition, We shall not be far wrong in concluding that the third and last edition of this treatise, dedicated to archbishop Langton, made its appearance in the year 1214. Giraldus was not the man to dedicate a work to Langton so long as Langton was in exile, and in disgrace with his sovereign, and not yet archbishop of Canterbury as to profits and patronage. Moreover, the dedication speaks of Langton's righteous disposal of the benefices in his gift;² and this cannot well have been said to him until some months after his actual possession of the archbishoprick on his return to England in July 1213. It is true, indeed, that this dedication is but a repetition, word for word, of what had been many years before addressed to Hugh of Lincoln ; still we can hardly suppose that Giraldus would again use such words in addressing Langton, if they were utter nonsense as applied to him, as they would be before about the end of the year 1213. This third edition, therefore, may have been issued by the end of the year 1213, but not before. That it was issued not later, at the furthest, than the early part of the year 1215, appears from this, that Geoffrey is spoken of as still bishop of St. David's, at any rate as the last bishop whom Giraldus could name.³ Geoffrey died in 1214 ; and his successor Gervase, Iorwerth of Brut, was consecrated June 21, 1115.

¹ See his objurgatory letter to Hugh, written in 1196, or soon afterwards, in the Symbolum Electorum, vol. i. 259.

² Infra, 8, l. 13.

³ Infra, 104, l. 16.

Upon the whole, then, we are led to conclude, that the Itinerary first appeared, with a dedication to William de Longchamp, about the middle of the year 1191; that a new edition, dedicated to Hugh of Lincoln, was issued circa 1197; and the third edition, dedicated to Stephen Langton, in or very near to 1214.

§ (2). HISTORY OF THE DESCRIPTION.

Of the history of the two editions of the Description of Wales that have come down to us, I shall not have very much to say; but I think there is sufficient evidence to prove very nearly the time when each was issued.

First edition of the Description, dedicated to archbishop Hubert; in 1194 probably. It seems that this treatise did not make its first appearance until about three years after that of the Itinerary. What is, so far as we know, the first edition, is dedicated to archbishop Hubert, and this after Giraldus had presented to him a copy of the Itinerary;¹ which presentation would probably be very soon after Hubert's promotion to Canterbury in the summer of 1193. But this first edition of the Description must have been addressed to Hubert not later than some time in 1194, because it speaks of David ab Owain, who was expelled in that year by his nephew Llywelyn, as still prince of North Wales.² We shall be near the truth in assigning the issue of it to about the beginning of the year 1194.

In the dedicatory preface Giraldus speaks of himself as still in his "rudis adhuc et viridis juvena."³ At the end of his treatise De Jure, &c., he says that these

¹ Infra, 156, n. 2.

² Infra, 167, n. 2.

³ Infra, 157, l. 20.

Welsh treatises were issued when he was about forty years old.¹ So far as it is possible to fix a date, with only his loose words to depend upon, it would seem that he must have been born in 1147, or not far from this year;² and therefore now, in 1194, he was somewhere about forty-seven years old. This is quite near enough to the forty years statement of the De Jure, &c., considering his utterly loose wide way of giving anything in the shape of a date or number; and even forty-seven years old is within the limit of what, in medieval usage of the word, was the age of a "Juvenis." In the second edition of this treatise, a full twenty years afterwards, Giraldus still retains this talk of his raw and green youthfulness; but he speaks in the past tense, and can only be now referring to the time when the treatise was first issued.

Supra,
xxii.

Addressed also to Hugh of Lincoln. I have already had occasion to observe, that a copy of this treatise was addressed to bishop Hugh of Lincoln. No such manuscript of the treatise is now known to be in being; but the preface so addressed is preserved in (T.), the Symbolum Electorum of Trin. Coll. Cambridge;³ and the treatise in the lost Westminster manuscript, used by Wharton when publishing the second book, was also dedicated to Hugh.⁴ It was presented to him after the presentation of the second edition of the Itinerary.⁵ It may have been a new edition, but more probably was merely a copy of the first edition, little if at all altered.⁶ The prefaces, as given in (T.), agree all but exactly, except of course where the patron is named, with the prefaces as before addressed to archbishop Hubert. But this proves nothing, because they agree equally

¹ Vol. iii. 372.

² Vol. v., Preface, lvi.

³ Infra, 155, notes 1 and 2.

⁴ Anglia Sacra, ii., Preface, xxii.

⁵ Infra, 156, n. 2.

⁶ One passage, however, was probably now suppressed in this copy presented to bishop Hugh. See supra, xxxi, n. 1.

closely with the prefaces of the edition addressed many years afterwards to archbishop Langton. Wharton's text is so very badly and uncritically edited, that it is impossible to gather from it, to anything like certainty, whether or no the lost Westminster manuscript, with the dedication to bishop Hugh, differed in any respect from the manuscripts of the earlier issue of the treatise with the dedication to archbishop Hubert. I shall have to say more on this point, when speaking of Wharton's Infra, lviii. edition of the second book of this treatise.

Second edition, What I consider the second edition of dedicated to Stephen Langton. this treatise was dedicated to archbishop Langton after the dedication to him of the third edition of the Itinerary; and some time after, it would seem, as Giraldus now alters the "ante" of the first edition into "olim;"¹ but it cannot have been long after. The Itinerary, as we have seen, was dedicated to Langton not before the latter part of the year 1213, and perhaps somewhat later than this. This gives us a limit on one side to the time when the Description was presented to him. In the prologue to the De Jure, &c., addressed to Langton soon after June 1215,² Giraldus speaks of having presented the Description of Wales to him some time before.³ This gives us a limit on the other side. Thus it appears that this second edition of the Description must have been presented to Langton some time after the end of the year 1213, and some

¹ Infra, 156, l. 1, and n. 2. But I am not at all sure that, according to medieval usage of the word, "olim" expresses a longer time back than "ante." Both perhaps simply mean, some time before; weeks it may be, or months, or years.

² Bishop Geoffrey of St. David's, who died in 1214, is spoken of in the De Jure, &c., as lately dead, ("Præsule Menevensi Gaufrido nuper rebus humanis exempto," vol. iii. 119). His successor, however, who was consecrated June 21, 1215, is spoken of as the new bishop; and Giraldus takes occasion to give him much good advice as to his new duties. Ibid., 361, &c.

³ "Libellus . . . de Cambriæ Descriptione . . . vobis olim exaratus et presentatus." Ibid., 101.

time before the autumn of 1215. We cannot well be far wrong in saying that it was presented towards the end of the year 1214, or in the early part of 1215.

Of the two editions, therefore, of this treatise, which have come down to us, we may conclude that the first was presented to archbishop Hubert about the beginning of the year 1194, and the second to archbishop Stephen Langton twenty-one years afterwards, about the beginning of the year 1215.

§ (3). VALUE OF THESE TREATISES.

There is much, no doubt, that is valuable and interesting in these Welsh treatises. To the Itinerary, I think, is to be assigned the first place, in point of value, of all the treatises which Giraldus's prolific pen has transmitted to us; and next after this certainly, if not with it, or even before it, the Description of Wales. In one respect, that has much to do perhaps with our good opinion of these treatises, they stand in very forward and favourable contrast with much of what Giraldus has elsewhere written about himself and his own doings, and about the men and the things of his own days. They are written in an amiable good temper, and are comparatively quite free from all the bitter evil-speaking, lying, and slandering, that not unfrequently make others of his works absolutely repulsive.

Amiable tone of the Itinerary. It would have been strange indeed if the Itinerary had been written otherwise than amiably: the weeks of this progress with archbishop Baldwin were, perhaps, the proudest and happiest weeks of Giraldus's life. High in favour, as he believed, with Henry II., with no bounds to his aspirations of lofty advancement, the chosen companion and conductor of the metropolitan of all England on an important and most solemn mission—and this through his own country, where he was a great man, and amongst his own friends, and his own princely relatives,—made much of, no doubt, by Baldwin, because no doubt a really very useful and able auxiliary, and fussed up to his own fussy heart's content, he could only paint the progress in bright and happy colours. There never could have been any other same number of weeks of his life more continuously and thoroughly gratifying to his extremity of vanity. And he makes no secret of his self-satisfaction, and full appreciation of his own importance: Giraldus himself is the great hero of the progress: the archbishop and others may preach, and to some effect he allows, but it is Giraldus who, though preaching in an unknown tongue, miraculously as it were draws floods of tears from his auditors, and crowds of eager applicants for the signature of the cross.¹ The archbishop may give his monitions, but it is Giraldus who utters gracious and effective sermons.² Throughout, the archbishop seems a subordinate person, almost a mere puppet in the hands of his conductor: it is always We, i.e., I Giraldus and my protégé the archbishop, who do anything of importance, even when one would think the archbishop must have been the sole actor, though very probably more or less acting often under Giraldus's instigation; it is We who order the removal from Bangor cathedral of the body of Owain Gwynedd, who had died under the ban of St. Thomas's excommunication; ³ it is We who excommunicate Owain Cyveiliog, because alone of the princes of Wales he failed to meet the archbishop.⁴ But all such exhibition of vanity and self-satisfaction we can easily forgive, because free from the unscrupulous and atrocious vindictiveness displayed in others of his works.

Small space given by Giraldus to North Wales.

It was but natural that Giraldus should have much more to say about his own South Wales than about North Wales and Powys, with which principalities he would be com-

¹ Infra, 83.

² Infra, 144.

³ Infra, 133.

⁴ Infra, 144.

paratively unacquainted. His account of the progress through South Wales occupies 110 pages, 12–121, of this volume; while the progress round North Wales to Chester is comprised in 17 pages, 122–138; and Powys is scarcely mentioned at all. But there was a very large disproportion also between the times bestowed by the crusaders on the different provinces. Archbishop Baldwin win crossed the river Dyvi into North Wales¹ on the 6th or 7th of April,—we will say the 6th,—after having spent probably somewhat over four weeks in South Wales. The next day's route was from Towyn, where he had passed the night, by Barmouth, to Llanfair near Harlech;¹ and on the following day, April 8th, traversing the Traeth Mawr and Traeth Bychan estuaries, and the promontory of Lley, he reached Nefyn, on the west coast of Carnarvonshire. Here they passed the night, Giraldus says, on the vigil of Palm Sunday,² which in the year 1188 was Saturday April 9th; and I suppose therefore that they had arrived at Nefyn the evening before. Thence they proceeded, by Carnarvon, to Bangor; thence into Anglesey, and back again to Bangor;³ thence, by Conway, to Rhuddlan castle;⁴ thence, by St. Asaph, to Basingwerk; and thence to Chester, where they arrived on April 14th, the Thursday before Easter.⁵ It must have been a very hard week's work: besides the long distance travelled, there had been preachings and cross-

And small time given by arch-bishop Baldwin.

¹ Infra, 122.

² After crossing Traeth Mawr, &c., “ea nocte jacuimus apud Ne-wein, vigilia videlicet Paschæ Floridi” (infra, 124, l. 5). It is from this we get the dates as to this part of the progress. I am perhaps wrong in supposing that these words mean the night between April 8 and 9. If they mean the next night, then Baldwin entered North Wales on Thursday, April 7. This, however, seems scarcely to leave sufficient time for the subsequent progress and doings, until his arrival at Chester on April 14.

³ Infra, 133.

⁴ Infra, 137.

⁵ “Feria tertia ante Pascha, die videlicet absolutionis,” infra, 139, l. 8.

enlistings, near Llanfair,¹ at Nefyn,² at Bangor,³ in Anglesey,⁴ at Rhuddlan,⁵ and perhaps other less important ones not noticed by Giraldus, and two celebrations of mass by the archbishop, in the cathedrals of Bangor and St. Asaph.⁶ Thus, after a full month's work in South Wales, a hurried eight days only at the furthest was given to North Wales. It is plain that this part of the progress was rapidly hurried over, in order to keep Easter at Chester.

After the due celebration of the solemn Easter festival at Chester, the archbishop proceeded, by Whitchurch, to Oswestry; where, on the confines of Powys, he was met by the princes and people of that province, of whom some few were induced to take the cross. This seems to have been about all that he did for the crusade as regards Powys; but this province had been already well worked, we are told, by the bishop of St. Asaph.⁷ There were preachings afterwards, and successful ones, at Shrewsbury,⁸ but these probably would be to Englishmen rather than Welshmen.

The large proportion, therefore, of the Itinerary, which Giraldus gives to South Wales, is to be attributed to the larger labours of archbishop Baldwin in South Wales, as well as to Giraldus's better acquaintance with his own province.

The immediate and main object of archbishop Baldwin's progress through Wales was no doubt what it professed to be, simply to preach the crusade; but it would seem that he was politic enough to take advantage of the opportunity of striking a strong blow in favour of his own metropolitan authority. The metro-

The archbishop's investiture of metropolitan authority in Wales.

¹ Infra, 123, l. 13.

² Infra, 124, l. 20.

³ Infra, 125, l. 30.

⁴ Infra, 126.

⁵ Infra, 137, l. 13.

⁶ Infra, 125, l. 28; and 137, l. 15.

⁷ Infra, 142.

⁸ Infra, 144.

politan jurisdiction of Canterbury over the Welsh bishopricks was a thing but as of yesterday, it had not been submitted to without resistance, and was still, in great measure, rather nominal than real. Baldwin, the first archbishop of Canterbury that ever entered Wales, celebrated mass, as Giraldus is careful to tell us, at the high altar of each of the four cathedral churches of Wales; while there is no mention of his doing this in any inferior church. This would be considered the exercise, on his part, of the power of primate over the Welsh bishops; and, if not resisted, as the acknowledgment on their part of his right to exercise such power. The primate of Canterbury was in fact reading himself in, as it were, in this late addition to his province: as Giraldus says, he celebrated mass in the several cathedral churches of Wales, "tanquam in investituræ cujusdam " signum."¹ This is simply stated by Giraldus, in the first edition of the treatise, without a word of protest as to there being at all any unjust exercise of power; but it is curious that the passage is omitted in the second edition,² issued about the time when Giraldus was becoming the earnest champion of the independence of the Welsh church; and restored in the third edition,² when he had become resigned to the conviction of the utter hopelessness, under present circumstances, of any further fighting for such independence.

Value of the Description. The description of Wales, given in the second treatise of this volume, is, of course, a far more complete and correct work than the description of Ireland in the Topographia Hibernica of Vol. V. With the one country Giraldus was well acquainted; of the other he knew personally very little, and the information about it which he derived from others is often very incorrect. His account of the land and the people of Wales will bear very honourable comparison with any topographical attempt that had appeared up to his time, and with any that appeared for many ages afterwards. It is a treatise certainly of great value, and as clear perhaps as the Itinerary from all vicious evil-speaking. When in a good humour, with no offence rankling in his breast, and no opponent to chastise, and with a subject in hand which did not clash with his own interests or prejudices, Giraldus could write sensibly and well and honestly; and this treatise is one of the best specimens of his best style. Knowing indeed, as we do, how wild-running a tongue he had, and how unscrupulous a pen, we may perhaps think it likely that in the second book of this treatise, De Illudabilibus, where he launches out against the vices of his countrymen, he has overcoloured and perhaps overstated the bad points of the then Welsh character. But his contemporary and friend, Walter Map, himself also, it would seem, more or less of Welsh descent, gives the Welsh much the same bad character.¹ And indeed their own annals sufficiently witness against them, that what Giraldus says in their disfavour cannot have been far wide of strict truth. One of his charges against them requires, perhaps, a word of notice. He continually denounces their incestuous marriages, i.e., marriages within the prohibited degrees according to Roman law. But the Welsh did not yet believe in the entire sanctity of Roman law; the old British independency of Rome had not yet died out; and they married their cousins quite as readily as we do now, and with just as small a notion as we have of any necessity of first procuring a papal dispensation.

¹ Infra, 105, l. 1.

| ² Infra, 105, n. 1.

¹ Walter Map calls the Welsh, "compatriotæ nostri Walenses," De Nugis Curialium (Camden Society), p. 94. He says of them, "Omnino sunt infideles ad omnes tam ad invicem quam ad alios;

" sola scilicet improbitate probi," ibid. "In rapina et furto gloria Walensium," p. 100. "Ecce quam stulta quamque injusta est ira Walensium, et quam in sanguine proni sunt," p. 103.

Good advice about Wales. In the last three chapters of the Description,¹ where Giraldus advises the English on the one hand how to subdue effectually, and how to govern Wales wisely, and the Welsh on the other hand how to rebel successfully against the English domination, there is much of sound wisdom and political sagacity that we should hardly have looked for in a man of Giraldus's education and literary pursuits. He must have had a strong natural genius for warlike matters: it all reads like the sagacious counsel of some well-worn warrior statesman, versed and skilled alike at the council-board and in the field of battle. He insists much upon the necessity of employing light-armed troops in Welsh warfare, in preference to the heavy-armed Norman soldiers; in this recommending the course adopted by Harold,² when he so signally showed how the Welsh were to be subdued. Giraldus had before given very similar advice, adapted to the different circumstances, when delivering his instructions as to the subjugation of Ireland.³ Though on a subject, as we should have thought, so foreign to him, there is perhaps no page of all his writings, where he has displayed so much good sense and sound sagacity.

Testimony of these treatises to the prophecies of Merlin Silvester. I shall here remark that these treatises afford a strong confirmation of what I maintained in the preface to Vol. V.,⁴ about the prophecies of Merlin Silvester; viz., that the rejection of them from the Expugnatio Hibernica,—and, I might have added, the contemptuous mention of him as a prophet,⁵—as in late manuscripts of this Irish treatise, and in Camden's text of it, was not to be

¹ Infra, 218, &c.

² "Haroldus, pedes ipse, cumque pedestri turba, et levibus armis, victuque patriæ conformi, tam valide totam Kambriam et circuit et transpenetravit, ut in eadem

"fere mingentem ad parietem non reliquerit," infra, 217.

³ Vol. v. 395, &c.

⁴ Vol. v., Preface, xli, &c.

⁵ Vol. v. 339, n. 1.

ascribed to Giraldus himself. The third edition of the Itinerary, as we have seen, was not published before about the beginning of the year 1214, and the second edition of the Description about a year after that. These not only cite, in full faith, two of Silvester's prophecies;¹ but in the Description he is defended as a true prophet, though "amens factus" when he uttered his prophecies, by the example in Holy Scripture of Saul at Naioth.² It seems certain, therefore, that up to 1215 Giraldus had lost no faith in Merlin Silvester as a prophet: it is most extremely unlikely that during the few after years of his life he should have completely altered his opinion, or that he should have had any potential pressure from the then ruling powers, compelling him, for safety sake, to repudiate Silvester's vaticinal authority, and to expunge his prophecies, in a last edition, from the Irish treatise.

But after all, may it not possibly have been that he may have seen the wisdom of doing this, a year or two before 1215? The cruel fate of the poor hermit, Peter of Pontefract, and his son,³ in Ascension-tide 1213, was a very significant warning of the danger of indulging in the matter of prophecy. But there could have been little chance of John taking dangerous offence at prophecies about his father, or himself, or Irish affairs, relating to events of some thirty years back or more, -- prophecies, too, obscurely bearing upon John himself, and to be interpreted as much in his favour as otherwise: poor Peter of Pontefract's prophecy was a very different thing. Still, I suppose it may be possible, if Giraldus was in 1213 engaged in a new issue of the Expugnatio Hibernica,—of which, however, there is not the least evidence, and very great unlikelihood,—that he may have thought it safer and better to suppress for the present the prophecies of Silvester. Before 1215, John had something far more serious than a prophet's words, demanding all his attention, and crying aloud for all his vengeance,—the drawn swords of his barons, threatening to drive him from his kingdom. And so now again, in the new edition of the Description of Wales, Giraldus, with all his heart on the barons' side, would drop all fear of John, and resume his full expression of confidence in Silvester's vaticinal authority. My full belief however is, until the evidence of early manuscripts yet to be found shall prove me wrong, that the subtractions, as in late manuscripts of the Expugnatio Hibernica, were never made by Giraldus; and therefore that, in placing them without hesitation in my text of that treatise, I have but given what he wrote, and never repudiated, and finally left to us.

¹ Infra, 62, 196.

² Infra, 199.

³ Wendover, iii. 240, 255.

§ (4). RECEPTION OF THESE TREATISES.

I can say nothing as to the reception of these treatises by Giraldus's contemporaries, nor can I give any history of them for a hundred years, or thereabouts, after his death. He tells us nothing himself of any praise or dispraise, nor do I know of any use made of them, or any mention whatever of them, by any subsequent writer of the thirteenth century.

Higden, however, writing in the first quarter of the fourteenth century,¹ gives, in the thirty-eighth chapter of the first book of the Polychronicon,² a long account of Wales and its people, derived almost wholly from these treatises. He had just before given, in chapters 32–36,³ a much longer account of Ireland and its men and its marvels,

¹ The first edition of the Poly-
chronicon ends with the year 1327.

² Vol. i. 394, &c. (Babington).

³ Ibid., 328–382.

condensed from the Irish Topography of our author.¹ This is in his usual plain prose. But, why I cannot say,

In a rhyming description of Wales. when entering on Wales, he breaks out into merry rhyme. Was it that Wales, to the monk of Chester a near but little-known land, a subject of mystery but of much talk and curiosity, seemed to him worthy of poetry rather than prose?

Which wrongly attributed to Walter Map. This poetical description is included by Mr. Wright in his volume of the Latin Poems of Walter Map, where it is called Cambrice Epitome.² He says it "is attributed to Walter Mapes in the old lists of his works," but adds that it "has been preserved by having been inserted in Ralph Higden's Polychronica." Walter Map, for what I know, may have written a metrical description of Wales; but the "old lists" must be close upon his own time, and of undoubted authenticity, and most clearly identifying this description of Wales with his description, before I could possibly believe it could possibly have been written by him. It is perfectly certain, it seems to me, that he could not have written it. There is more than one passage in it, additional to Giraldus, which tells of a time long after Map was dead and buried; of the results of Edward I.'s conquests and rule, not of the state of Wales under Henry II., or Richard, or John,—for instance, where the rhymester speaks of its now being in vain for the Welsh to rebel, because their woods of refuge were cut down, and the maritime parts well fortified with castles ;¹ and again, where he describes the changed habits of the Welsh, and their gradually becoming more like the English.² Moreover, if we compare these additional passages of the poetry with what Higden says in prose, after describing Edward's expedition into Wales in 1294, we shall see that the statements of the poetry so closely correspond with those of the prose, as almost necessarily to point to the same author.³ At all events it seems certain that this rhyming description of Wales must have been written in Higden's time, if not by Higden himself; and there is every reason for supposing that Higden himself was the author.

¹ In my preface to vol. v., p. lxxviii, by a bit of stupid ignorant carelessness, I attributed this summary of the Description of Ireland to Bromton, with no suspicion of his having taken it bodily from Higden. As generally with him, he repeats word for word, and chapter for chapter, with no acknowledgment of from whom he is transcribing. In this case, indeed, by using Higden's words, who always honestly gives his authority, Bromton professes to be condensing directly from Giraldus's Topography. Twysden, 1071, l. 60.

² Camden Society, 1841, p. 131, &c. Mr. Babington does not seem to have been aware of Mr. Wright's previous editing. The manuscripts used by the one are different from those used by the other: but the two texts agree very closely,—a fact creditable alike to manuscripts and to editors.

These Welsh treatises, with the Irish Topography and the De Principis Instructione,⁴ would now be well

¹ P. 404 (Babington), lines 3-6.

² P. 410, l. 7, to p. 412, l. 2.

³ The “ Sed frustra his temporibus ; “ Succis jam nemoribus,

 “ Cum sint circa maritima “ Firmata castra plurima,” of p. 404, is very close to the following, as in Higden under 1294:— “ Quo in tempore succisa sunt ne-“ mora in Wallia, quæ in tempore “ bellico præstabant indigenis lati-“ bula ; firmataque sunt castra circa “ loca maritima,” Twysden, 2471,

 l. 40. Compare also what follows directly afterwards under 1294,—
 “ A quo tempore guerræ in Wallia “ quieverunt : Wallenses pene An-“ glorum more victitant, thesaurum “ congregant, rerum dampna formi-

“ dant,”—with the more expanded rhythmical version of the same statements at p. 410, &c.

⁴ In the second chapter of Lib. I. of the Polychronicon, Higden gives a list of the various writers whom he was using as authorities, amongst whom is, “ Giraldus Cambrensis, “ qui descripsit Topographiam Hi- “ berniæ, Itinerarium Walliæ, et “ Vitam regis Henrici secundi sub “ triplici distinctione.” Vol. i. 24 (Babington). He does not mention the Description of Wales, though he uses it largely : no doubt in his copy it was bound up in one volume after the Itinerary, which therefore served to express both. His “ Vita “ regis Henrici ” is the De Principis Instructione.

known, so far as Higden's large use of them extends, after the publication of the Polychronicon. I am able to name no other writer, of the fourteenth or fifteenth centuries, who makes independent use of them. Up to the sixteenth century, if we may judge by the difference in the number of manuscripts remaining to us of an earlier date, the Description would seem to have been but little valued in comparison with the Itinerary. And to this paucity, no doubt, of earlier manuscripts of the Description, is owing the large number of sixteenth century copies of this treatise which now exist, rather than to its being then more in request than the Itinerary, of which there must have been comparatively many manuscripts.

§ (5). PRINTED EDITIONS OF THESE TREATISES.

Powel's edition, These treatises first appeared in print¹ in 1585. in the year 1585, edited, with prefaces and notes, by the then eminent Welsh antiquary David Powel. The dedication, to Sir Philip Sidney, is dated from Ruabon,² 3rd kal. July of that year. In it he says that an "exemplar pervetustum" of the His Itinerary. Itinerary had been placed in his hands for publication by Sir Philip Sidney's father;³ that he had collated this with two other copies, one supplied to him by the lord treasurer Burleigh, the other by William Awbrey; and that from the three he had formed his text.⁴ One of these manuscripts of the Itinerary must

¹ In one volume with the Epitome of Geoffrey of Monmouth by Ponticus Virunnius; "Londini, apud Edmendum Bollifantum, impensis Henrici Denhami et Radulphi Nuberii, 1585."

² Ruabon in Denbighshire, of which place Powel was vicar.

³ Sir Henry Sidney, lord president of the marches of Wales, to whom Powel was chaplain (Williams' Eminent Welshmen, 410), and whom he so highly lauds in this preface.

⁴ "Exemplar pervetustum ab eo (Sir Henry Sidney) mihi ad publicandum commissum est. Quod have been a copy of the second edition, dedicated to Supra, xi. bishop Hugh of Lincoln, as in (Hc.); the readings, and peculiar additions and omissions of which Powel often follows.¹ Another must have been a copy of the third edition, agreeing very closely with that given us in Supra, xvii. (Rd.)² His text of the Itinerary, as reprinted in Camden's volume,³ is very inaccurate, and most uncritical.

 He has not a word about the variations of text in the

" cum duobus aliis exemplaribus
 " contuli, quorum unum a claris-
 " simo viro D. Gul. Cecilio barone
 " Burghlensi, summo Angliæ the-" saurario, magno rei literariæ
 " patrono, et hujus reipublicæ
 " consiliario sapientissimo vigilan-" tissimoque, alterum a Gulielmo
 " Awbrey L. doctore, curiæque
 " audientiæ Cantuariensis judice
 " integerrimo accepi. Quorum om-
 " nium facta collatione, hanc edi" tionem paravi." Camden, 816,
 l. 42.

¹ For instances of addition, see 74 infra, n. 1, where the words "provolutus et" are not in the first edition, and not in the third, but are in the second edition and in Powel's text; and again, 84, n. 4, where the same is the case with the words "apud castellum Radulphi." For instances of omission, see 57, n. 2, where the words "sicut forma præferebat," of the third edition, are not in the second and not in Powel; and 130, n. 2, as to the words "filii Theodori;" and again, 136, n. 4, as to a clause about the fabulous eagle of Snowdon. The table of chapters, moreover, in the first and third editions, but not in the second as in (Hc.), are also not given by Powel, infra, 9. Less conclusive instances, where Powel follows the verbal readings of the second edition, in preference to those of the first and third, are very numerous.

² With one or two exceptions, Powel always gives the additions peculiar to (Rd.). For instance, see 44 infra, notes 1 and 4; 91, n. 2; 107, n. 2; 137, n. 2; 151, n. 4. Sometimes he so closely follows the readings of (Rd.), clause after clause, and page after page almost, that one is led to suspect that this may have been the very manuscript of the third edition that Powel used.

³ I can only speak of Powel's text, as represented in the reprint in Camden's volume. I ought, perhaps, to have used Powel's own edition of 1585, instead of Camden's reprint of it in 1602. But Powel's volume is rare, and little known: the reprint in Camden's volume has been always the authority for these Welsh treatises. Moreover, to tell the honest truth, I had Camden's volume in my hands, and tried in vain to procure a copy of Powel's book. It is very possible that many of the blunders of Camden's text are due to the foreign editors and printers, and not to Powel's original. I cannot say that this is or is not the case: I have but very cursorily compared the two volumes.

manuscripts which he says he collated; and, so far as we can judge, adhered to no principle whatever in forming his text; sometimes following one manuscript, sometimes another, without any apparent reason whatever for his preference.

In his Admonitio ad Lectorem,¹ Powel says, that he once purposed to omit from his edition all the fables and absurd miracles; that his friends dissuaded him from this; and that he had consequently published his author in his integrity.² This is not exactly true. He gives, indeed, all the fables and miracles; but he omits a large portion of the last chapter of the second book, about St. Thomas of Canterbury, his righteous resistance to the insular tyranny and oppressions of the English sovereign, and his triumphant martyrdom.³ This may have been very repulsive to Powel's good Protestantism; his soul, perhaps, sickened against lending his hand to transmit it to posterity; or it may have been but prudent policy, in the happy days of good queen Bess, to suppress matter so savouring of treason. But in any case it was not the part of an honest editor to do this, not only without notice, but while positively declaring that he had suppressed nothing at all.⁴

Powel says not a word as to what manuscripts he used in his first book of the Description. They must have been Omission of matter about St. Thomas of Canterbury.

Powel's Description of Wales; first book only.

¹ Camden, 818.

² "Satius esse duxi illum (viz. auctorem) integrum cum omnibus suis ἀποκρίσιν in lucem emittere." Ibid, l. 18:

³ Infra 149, n. 2; 150, n. 4. In the latter case, the portion omitted by Powel is in the third edition only, not in the first or second; but in the former case, in all the editions.

⁴ Hooker, about the same time, omits a chapter about St. Thomas of Canterbury, in his translation of the Expugnatio Hibernica. But he honestly tells us that he was omitting it, because "it tendeth wholly in extolling of one who was a froward and obstinate traitour against his sovereign." Vol. v. 259, n. 2.

very bad ones, if he at all decently executed the duties of an editor: his version of this treatise is fully as inaccurate as that of the Itinerary, or even somewhat more so.

It would seem as if, in two or three cases, he must have wilfully altered his author's text. One curious instance of this is his version of a passage where Demetia is spoken of as a portion only of South Wales.¹ It is plain, from his notes, that Powel took Demetia as the name of the whole principality of South Wales: it is the word that he generally if not always uses when speaking of this principality. But in however much wider a sense this word may have been used in earlier times, it is perfectly clear that Giraldus, with other Welsh writers of about his time,² uses it for Dyved, one of the six provinces only that were included in South Wales. In Powel's version of the passage, by an insertion in one place and an omission in another, the text of Giraldus is altered so as to concord with his own wider acceptance of Demetia.³

In another instance, when enumerating the rivers of Merionethshire, Giraldus very clearly, however incorrectly, applies the names Traeth Mawr and Traeth Bychan to the rivers running into these inlets of the sea. This seems to have puzzled Powel; and in his endeavour to make sense of what seemed to him nonsense, he makes these Traeths to be at the outlet of the river Maw,⁴ that is, at Barmouth, instead of some twelve or fifteen miles further north.

¹ Infra, 166, l. 16; Camden, 882, l. 45.

² The Annal. Camb. for instance. See Glossary, infra, 243.

³ Higden, in his metrical abstract of Giraldus on Wales, seems to use Demetia in the same wide sense for all South Wales. He speaks of the river Dyvi, Tiwy he erroneously calls it, as dividing North Wales from South Wales, and then adds (Polychronicon, i. 400, l. 3):

“ Austrina pars Demetia, “ Secunda Venedotia.”

⁴ Infra, 176, l. 4; Camden, 886, l. 9.

There are, perhaps, one or two other minor instances worth mentioning, where Powel seems to have altered his author's text. In a quotation from Cæsar, given probably from memory, at any rate incorrectly,—as very usual with Giraldus,—Powel supplies some missing words, and gives Cæsar's words correctly.¹ In another instance he omits two lines of English,² because, perhaps, unintelligible to him, in the bad corrupt manuscripts, or manuscript³ perhaps, which he was using.

Second book of the Description ignored by Powel. Powel printed the first book only of the Description: he gives not the least hint of his having been aware that there was such a thing as a second book of this treatise in existence, or ever had been. It seems simply impossible that he could have been ignorant of its existence: there is no manuscript to be found, which gives the first book without the second. I can only suppose that he was so patriotic a Welshman, as to refuse to perpetuate in print the De Illaudabilibus of the second book. How he can have reconciled his conscience, in this omission, with his assertion of having given his author in full integrity, will not be a point of so very much wonder, to any who know what was sometimes the mode of editing, and the fashion of reckless assertion, in the sixteenth century. It was a time of violent prejudices and passions, when even an editor of an old historical writer could hardly do his work honestly. But with whatever allowances we may wish to make, this ignoring of the second book of the Description seems to me bad inexcusable dishonesty, worse even than the omission about St. Thomas of Canterbury in the Itinerary.

¹ Infra, 185, n. 6.

² Infra, 188, n. 3.

³ He tells us of the three manuscripts which he used for the Itinerary. As he says nothing as to what he used for the Description, he had perhaps only one manuscript; and a very bad one it must have been.

The reprint of Powel's edition of these treatises, in Camden's Anglica, Hibernica, &c., appeared at Frankfort in 1602 and 1603.¹ It is a simple reprint of Powel's text and prefaces and notes, without a word of remark from Camden or any one else; so simple a one, that at the end is repeated an Addenda, belonging to the treatise of Ponticus Virunnius,² which occupies the first part of Powel's volume, but forms no part of Camden's. It is this reprint of Powel's text that I have used in preparing this volume for the press; and I therefore cite it, in my notes, as Camden.

Supra,
xxxii.

As I have already had occasion to say, the second book of the Description, rejected and ignored by Powel, remained unprinted for more than a hundred years after his volume was published, until at length it appeared in Wharton's Anglia Sacra in 1691.³ Wharton, marvellous a scholar as he was,—perhaps about the most marvellous in the whole range of English literature,—yet does not shine much, if at all, above other sixteenth and seventeenth century editors of the historical works of medieval writers. He edited badly and uncritically, and often very loosely, omitting often what seemed to him unimportant; and, far worse, altering or adding sometimes a word or two, where he did not understand his author, or thought he could improve upon him.

The amount of literary work done by Wharton, as to be seen in his printed works and his manuscript collections, is something most marvellous for so short a life as respect, but I cannot pretend to have compared them. The copy which I have used is a 1602 one.

¹ "Francofurti, impensis Claudii Marnii, et hæredum Johannis Aubrii." Some copies have the date 1602, others have 1603. I believe they do not differ in any other

² Camden, 898.

³ Anglia Sacra, ii. 447, &c.

his was.¹ It seems simply incredible and impossible that all of it, or even very much of it, can have been actually done by himself; and in fact we know that he employed largely the helping hands of others; and it is probably in very great measure owing to these less scholarly assistants, that the text of the medieval authors whom he publishes is often so utterly unworthy of such a scholar as he was himself.²

This second book of Giraldus's Description of Wales is, perhaps, one of the least badly edited of all the treatises comprised in the Anglia Sacra. Wharton tells us that he used two manuscripts; one of which, in the Westminster library, was a copy of the first edition dedicated to Hugh of Lincoln (he does not seem to have been aware of the earlier dedication to archbishop

¹ Wharton died in 1694, when only thirty years old. Professor Stubbs, well acquainted with his "unrivalled manuscript collections at Lambeth," as well as his printed works, speaks of Wharton as "having done, for the elucidation of English church history, itself but one of the branches of study in which he was the most eminent scholar of his time, more than any one before or since." Episcopal Succession, Preface, iv.

² See what Mr. Luard says of the way in which the Winchester Annals are edited in the Anglia Sacra; Annales Monastici (of this series), ii. Preface, ix and x.

In Giraldus's Life of archbishop Geoffrey of York, printed in the Anglia Sacra (ii. 375, &c.), from a manuscript at C. C. Coll. Cambridge, the ordinary contraction for "vel," the letter l with a stroke across the middle, is never once rightly read.

Generally it is taken for "et;" but in some cases, where this would make worse nonsense than usual, we have "aut" instead. That this could have been done by Wharton is simply and absurdly impossible. From another manuscript in the same library, Wharton prints in the Anglia Sacra (ii. 408, &c.) the Legenda S. Remigii, &c., with which are intermixed two or three small fractions of another distinct treatise of Giraldus, a Life and Miracles of St. Hugh, contained in the same volume as the Legend of Remigius. It seems to me clear that Wharton could never possibly have ever so cursorily examined these manuscripts, even if he ever saw them at all. The Life of Geoffrey, and the Legend of Remigius, as they appear in the Anglia Sacra, must be due wholly to unworthy scribes employed by him to copy the C. C. Coll. manuscripts.

Supra,
xxii.

Supra, xv.

Hubert;) and the other was a copy of a much enlarged second edition, dedicated to archbishop Stephen Langton, in Domitian A. 1 of the Cotton library.¹ The Westminster manuscript, as I have before said, is unhappily lost; the Cotton manuscript, now in the British Museum, still retains the same press-mark, and gives the valuable copies upon which the text of the Welsh treatises of this volume is mainly founded, manuscript (D.) of my notation.

The differences of the two editions are, in a way, noticed by Wharton, but in a most imperfect way. In four instances he notes in his margin verbal variations,² and in four instances again, notes in like manner the absence or addition of matter. The four verbal variations may be correctly noted, for what I can say; we have not the Westminster manuscript to compare with Wharton's text; but in the cases of difference of matter which he notes, one is certainly wrong,³ two others have the marginal reference misplaced almost undoubtedly,⁴ and only one seems really correct.⁵ He never takes

¹ "Duplicem operis sui de Descriptione Walliæ editionem Giraldus adornavit. Utraque usus sum. Prima extat in Bibliothecæ Westmonasteriensis codice, et Hugoni Lincolnensi episcopo nuncupatur. Secunda, quæ multoties auctor est, Stephano Cantuariensi archiepiscopo dedicatur, et in Bibliotheca Cottoniana Domitian A. 1 habetur." Anglia Sacra, ii., Preface, xxii.

² See infra, 206, n. 1 and n. 2; 223, n. 2; and 224, n. 7.

³ Infra, 208, n. 6, where he notes in the margin that something is wanting in the Cotton MS. (D.), though nothing whatever is omitted.

⁴ Infra, 216, n. 7; 224, n. 12.

In both cases, Wharton's note that something was not in the Westminster MS. would have been perfectly right, according to the first edition as in (V.), (N.), if placed two or three lines lower in the margin. As it is, he makes it appear that passages of the treatise as first dedicated to archbishop Hubert were afterwards omitted, and without any conceivable reason of omission, in the copy presented to bishop Hugh, though again appearing in the new edition dedicated to archbishop Langton. This is very unlikely. No doubt whatever, it seems to me, Wharton's marginal notes are misplaced.

⁵ Infra, 208, n. 9.

notice of an addition of a word, or of two or three words;¹ he only notes the addition of a section, or of a considerable clause. Of these, indeed, his four notes comprise every instance that he could note; the only two other instances of such addition in this second book are quotations, which he no doubt purposely omitted from his text, and therefore could not refer to in his margin.² The additions of a word or two, which he passes over in silence, are very many; and his four verbal variations are a very small fraction of the real number. He often follows, without the slightest apparent reason, the readings of the first edition as in the Westminster manuscript, in preference to those of Giraldus's after revision as given in manuscript (D.). He seems, in fact, in quite as unmeaning a way as that of Powel in the Itinerary, sometimes to follow one manu-^{Supra, liv,} script, sometimes the other. His text generally is ^{&c.} taken with tolerable correctness from one or the other manuscript.³

Omissions, &c. in Wharton's text. As to undoubtedly intentional omissions, there are only two or three in-

¹ In one instance, 223, n. 4, there is a whole line,—and an important one, as declaring Giraldus's personal knowledge of what he was stating,—added in the second edition, and not noticed by Wharton. But in this instance he omits the line himself, following the first edition, and ignoring the second.

² Infra, 212, n. 2; 215, n. 1.

³ There are, however, some bad blunders. For instance, "gente ipsorum" instead of "gestis eorum," infra, 208, n. 7; "facile fœdabiles" instead of "difficile sedabiles," 212, n. 1; "tanto præindulgent" instead of "tanto pere indulgent," 217, n. 2; "fru-

"menti" instead of "ferri," 218, n. 4; "insubacta" instead of "vi subacta," 224, n. 4. It may be that the Westminster MS. was a late and bad one; so far as I know, there is no evidence as to what was its date or value; or it may have been an early one, by the same hand as the MS. of the Irish Topography of our author still remaining in the library at Westminster (vol. v., Preface, xvi), and if so, it would still be a very bad and incorrect one. But however bad a manuscript it may have been, there can be thence no excuse for Wharton's blunders, with the excellent MS. (D.) in his hands.

stances in this treatise, and these of quotations.¹ There are several other omissions, of a word or two,² or of a line or two,³ which must be ascribed, I think, to mere carelessness. Of Wharton's worst faults as an editor, viz. alterations of or additions to his author's text, this treatise presents only two or three instances, and these comparatively very innocent ones.⁴ No doubt, generally, in cases of omission, Wharton is himself to be blamed. He seems systematically to have omitted whatever seemed to him unworthy of publication. But very much, I must again say, of all the bad and uncritical and untruthful rendering of his author's texts, so far as he gives them, I fully believe to be due to the assistants whom he employed. I cannot imagine that much of it can possibly be justly laid upon Wharton himself.

In the year 1806, Sir Richard Colt Hoare published, in a handsome quarto volume, a reprint of these Welsh treatises, from the texts of Camden and Wharton; and in the same year, in two fully as handsome quarto volumes, an English translation of them, enveloped in a vast mass of notes and disquisitions on Welsh antiquities, history,

¹ Infra, 214, n. 5, and 216, n. 8. In these cases Wharton stops abruptly with an &c., intimating that there was more in the author's text which he did not think it necessary to give.

² Infra, 216, n. 5; 218, n. 3; and 220, n. 2.

³ Infra, 219, n. 1; 221, n. 3; and 222, n. 1.

⁴ As to alterations of the text, instead of "concordabit scriptura" (infra, 209, n. 1), Wharton has "concordabunt scripta;" as if his scribe,—it is impossible to attribute

this alteration to Wharton himself,—thought that scriptura could only mean Holy Scripture, and must be a wrong reading. In another instance (infra, 226, n. 4), instead of "feri" Wharton has "esse," perhaps the more correct word, in the place, to a classical Latinist. Of additions to the text there are also only two instances in this treatise, in both of which, to a statement of Giraldus that something was to be read of in history, Wharton adds the words "in Romana Historia." Infra, 210, n. 1, and 215, n. 3.

topography, biography, &c., &c.,¹ very much of which is utterly extraneous to Giraldus and his Welsh treatises. In the case of his Latin text, he seems to have purposed something better than a mere reprint, as he certainly examined, in some way, several of the manuscripts of Giraldus's works in the British Museum, and at Lambeth, Oxford, and Cambridge.² And, in fact, in two or three instances he gives, from manuscript authority, a reading different from that of Camden.³

¹ His table of contents is as follows :

“ Vol. i. The Life of Giraldus de Barri, with an account of his manuscripts at Oxford, Cambridge, Lambeth, and in the British Museum - - page ix.
 “ An Introduction to the History of Cambria, prior to the date of the Itinerary in 1188; in which the several campaigns of Julius Cæsar, Plautius, Claudius, Ostorius, Suetonius, Frontinus, and Agricola, are described and explained by maps. An account of the Legio secunda Augusta, and the Legio vicesima valens victrix, stationed in Wales, with various Roman inscriptions relating to them. A description of the Roman cities, stations, and roads in Wales; the course of Offa's and Wat's dykes, &c. &c. - p. lxxiii.
 “ The Itinerary of Baldwin, archbishop of Canterbury, through Wales in the year 1188, on the service of the Holy Cross; written in Latin by Giraldus de Barri, and now for the first time published in English; with numerous annotations describing the ancient and present state of Wales, its castles, abbies, scenery, &c. - p. 1.
 “ Vol. ii. The second Book of

“ the Itinerary of Baldwin through Wales - - - - page 1.
 “ An account of Owain Cyveilioc prince of Powys, with a new version of his celebrated poem, called the Hirlas, or Drinking Horn, and his circuits through Wales - - - - p. 211.
 “ The Description of Wales by Giraldus de Barri, in two Books p. 253.
 “ A Supplement, giving a short account of all those places omitted by Giraldus in his tour, and which are worthy of remark; with hints to landscape painters and architects - - - - p. 365.
 “ The progress of architecture, from the time of William the Conqueror to the sixteenth century; illustrated by designs selected from examples in South Wales - - - - p. 411.
 “ A list of publications relating to Wales - - - - p. 433.”

² In the Preface to his Translation, vol. i., lxviii, &c., he gives an account of these manuscripts, and speaks of them as having “fallen under his own observation.”

³ See vol. i. 69 (note 2) of the Translation, where he prefers the reading of a passage as in Giraldus's third edition, to that of the first and Still, as a rule, his text is simply a reprint of the earlier text.

As to the English translation, we must allow that it would be no easy matter for any one to make a good translation of Giraldus from such a text as Camden's. But Sir R. C. Hoare's is very far from being a good one: it is very generally much less close to the original than it ought to be, and it is often sadly incorrect, even where Camden gives him the right Latin.¹ He seems to have been scarcely versed enough in medieval Latin, to be able always to understand his author.

This translation has been reprinted, I believe with most if not all of its faults, in a volume of Mr. Bohn's Antiquarian Library, in conjunction with a translation of the Irish treatises of Giraldus.

second editions, as given by Camden (infra, 38, n. 5); after referring, he says, "to the various manuscript copies of Giraldus in the British Museum." Again, at vol. ii. 290 (note), he says of the word "Pecl," i.e. the Derbyshire Peak, that "on referring to the manuscript in the British Museum, he found it spelt "Peake." It occurs in a part of the Description that is in two manuscripts only of the British Museum, (D.) and (Rd.); in the latter of which it is spelt Peake (infra, 182, n. 2); though (Rd.), Bib. Reg. 13 B. xii., is not one of the manuscripts which he enumerates as having fallen under his own observation.

¹ For instance, "ad uxorem illico accedens, eamque cognoscens, . . . eadem hora puerum genuit" (infra, 132), is strangely mistranslated, "going home and telling his wife," &c., ii. 108. Again, speaking of the abundance of deer, &c., in England, Giraldus says that a herd of stags had been known to trample dogs and men to death; "In tanta multitudine . . . abundant, ut . . . nostris diebus, canes eorumque duces in impetu numerositatis suæ ad interitum cervi suppeditaverint" (infra, 182, l. 3); Latin as plain and clear as well may be, so far as I can see. Sir R. C. Hoare translates, "Stags, &c., are so abundant, that . . . when pursued by the hounds and hunters, they contributed by their numbers to their own destruction," ii. 290. If Sir Walter Scott had written Waverley a few years earlier than he did, or if Sir R. C. Hoare had translated Giraldus a few years later, the stag-hunt chapter of that novel would perhaps have prevented so gross a misapprehension of plain words.

There would be little difficulty in multiplying instances of bad translation, but I think the above two are enough to justify what I have said in my text.

§ (6). QUOTATIONS IN THESE TREATISES.

I have endeavoured, in most instances, to verify the quotations of Giraldus; no easy matter often, with an author who had studied ancient writers so extensively, and was so fond of quoting, and quoted often so loosely; a matter that, to be at all fully done, would require the continual ready use of a large library. Far out of reach as I am of anything of the sort, able only at intervals to lay my hands on the necessary books, it is no wonder that I have often failed in endeavouring to track him up to his source.

Giraldus's mode of quoting. Moreover, Giraldus quotes often in a way that renders it very difficult not unfrequently, under any circumstances, to trace his authority. It would seem that he must have often quoted from memory. If so, he must have had a marvellous memory, though it sometimes somewhat failed him. More frequently, perhaps, than otherwise, he gives the words of his original more or less incorrectly; very frequently he does not name his author; and in some cases attributes a passage to a wrong author. Thus, close upon one another, he ascribes to Seneca a passage of Sidonius Apollinaris and a passage of Cicero;¹ and in another instance, fathers upon Solomon a passage that elsewhere he gives to Jeromé.² Sometimes, again, he gives only the substance of the author he is quoting, especially in case of quotation from the fathers. Under such circumstances it is almost hopeless, to any ordinary scholar, to attempt to verify always his quotations,—for ¹ Infra, 164, n. 1 and n. 3; and vol. v. 213, n. 2. I cannot positively say, however, that these passages are not in Seneca as well.

² To Solomon, infra, 75, n. 1; to Jerome, vol. v. 191, n. 6. Directly afterward, in the Top. Hib., 191, n. 7, he ascribes to Solomon a passage not to be found in the Vulgate. At p. 212 infra, he ascribes to the prophet Malachi a verse of Micah.

instance, in the imperfectly-indexed many massive tomes of Sts. Augustine and Jerome.

How extensive was his acquaintance with classical and later profane writers, and with the works of the fathers and after Christian writers, will be seen at once by turning to the word Quotations in my Index; and many of the writers there enumerated, the classical Latin poets more especially, Horace, Ovid, Virgil, Lucan, &c., he seems to have had always ready at his fingers' ends. To the long list in my index, several other writers whom he used may be added from the Irish treatises of vol. v.,¹ and many more are quoted in others of his works.

His intimate acquaintance with older literature appears, perhaps more strongly than from actual quotations, in the way in which he often adapts, unconsciously almost it would seem, the thoughts and expressions of ancient writers. Such adaptations of this sort as I have happened to recognize, I think I have never noticed, either in this volume or in vol. v., except, perhaps, in one or two instances which bear upon the text or its meaning. I believe I have felt that the few such instances that I could recognize and note, would have been a very small fraction of the number that ought to be equally recognized and noted; and that I had better not expose my now old and very rusty small knowledge of classical or other ancient writers, by giving an odd instance or two, where I ought perhaps to be giving as many hundreds. Any real old Latin scholar, who might condescend to peruse Giraldus's medieval Latin, would be constantly finding how readily and naturally the sayings of the early writers, more or less closely, evidently guided his pen. His quotations from Holy Scripture are very numerous; far more so, however, in others of his works than in the treatises of the present volume ; and here, again, the scriptural student would see how continually he uses scriptural language, though not actually quoting, and how exact his knowledge of Holy Scripture must have been.

¹ Viz., Cassiodorus, Gregory Nazianzen, Isidore, Palladius, and the Scholastica Historia of Peter Comestor.

His quotations from himself. There is one writer, not an old one however, whose works he held in especial admiration, whose exquisite scholastic pen he looked upon as unrivalled, and whom he never wearies of quoting from. This writer is Giraldus himself. In the treatises of this volume he quotes his Irish Topography five times by name,¹ and three times without name ;² the Expugnation twice by name,³ and six times without name ;⁴ and, again, in the Description of Wales, quotes three times from the Itinerary.⁵ Several of these are large repetitions rather than simple quotations. In one instance, again, he quotes some of his own precious poetry as that of a "Quidam sapiens."⁶ Some of his later works, the De Invectionibus, the De Rebus, &c., the De Jure, &c., the De Principis Instructione, are in large measure mere repetitions one from the other or from his earlier treatises, while the Symbolum Electorum is professedly a collection of the fairest flowers and most precious gems from the works he had already published.⁷ No doubt every one who has ever put pen to paper, and published, has believed more or less confidently in the worth of what he was giving to the world's admiration ; but I think no equal case of multitudinous repeating from himself, as the most excellent of all writers, and the most worthy to be followed,—such, it is plain, Giraldus considered

¹ Infra, 26, 38, 114, 130, 186.

² Infra, 27, n. 1 ; 141 ; 224, n. 10. Very probably, here, and under n. 4 infra, there are minor instances of the same sort that have escaped my notice.

³ Infra, 107, 138.

⁴ Infra, 99, 100, 162, 205, 219, 222.

⁵ Infra, 170, 171, 173.

⁶ Infra, 51, n. 3 ; and vol. i. 355.

⁷ See the Preface to the Symbolum Electorum, vol. i. 199.

himself,—is to be found in the whole compass of authordom. Vain, and proud of their productions, as many authors may have been, no other ever attained to the exquisite vanity of Giraldus, to his unassailable faith in his own supreme excellencies as a writer.

COLLATION OF THE PAGES OF CAMDEN'S Anglica, Hibernica, &c., AND WHARTON'S Anglia Sacra, II., WITH THOSE OF THE PRESENT VOLUME.

| Camden. | Present Volume. | Camden. | Present Volume. | Camden. | Present Volume. |
|---------|-----------------|---------|-----------------|---------|-----------------|
| 818 | 3 | 844 | 74 | 870 | 133 |
| 819 | 5 | 845 | 77 | 871 | 135 |
| 820 | 12 | 846 | 78 | 872 | 136 |
| 821 | 15 | 847 | 80 | 873 | 138 |
| 822 | 18 | 848 | 82 | 874 | 139 |
| 823 | 20 | 849 | 84 | 875 | 142 |
| 824 | 23 | 850 | 87 | 876 | 143 |
| 825 | 26 | 851 | 89 | 877 | 146 |
| 826 | 30 | 852 | 92 | 878 | 148 |
| 827 | 33 | 853 | 96 | 879 | 153 |
| 828 | 36 | 854 | 98 | 880 | 155 |
| 829 | 37 | 855 | 100 | 881 | 161 |
| 830 | 37 | 856 | 103 | 882 | 164 |
| 831 | 40 | 857 | 106 | 883 | 167 |
| 832 | 43 | 858 | 109 | 884 | 169 |
| 833 | 47 | 859 | 110 | 885 | 170 |
| 834 | 48 | 860 | 111 | 886 | 173 |
| 835 | 52 | 861 | 114 | 887 | 178 |
| 836 | 55 | 862 | 116 | 888 | 182 |
| 837 | 57 | 863 | 119 | 889 | 185 |
| 838 | 60 | 864 | 122 | 890 | 188 |
| 839 | 61 | 865 | 122 | 891 | 191 |
| 840 | 64 | 866 | 125 | 892 | 194 |
| 841 | 67 | 867 | 127 | 893* | 195 |
| 842 | 68 | 868 | 130 | 894* | 198 |
| 843 | 71 | 869 | 133 | 895* | 201 |

| Wharton. | Present Volume. | Wharton. | Present Volume. | Wharton. | Present Volume. |
|----------|-----------------|----------|-----------------|----------|-----------------|
| 447 | 205 | 450 | 211 | 453 | 220 |
| 448 | 207 | 451 | 214 | 454 | 223 |
| 449 | 209 | 452 | 218 | 455 | 226 |

* These pages of Camden are wrongly numbered 889, 890, and 891, over again.

In the following pages, as in Vol. v., in dividing the text into sections I have rigidly followed the guidance of the manuscripts. The good manuscripts generally agree very closely in this point; where they differ, I have, in this volume, followed D., the excellent manuscript Domitian A. 1, upon which I have based my text. In Vol. v. in like manner I followed R., Bib. Reg. 13 B. viii. I omitted to mention this in Vol. v.

The 56, 56*b*, 57, 57*b*, &c., &c., placed in the margins, are the numberings of the folios of manuscript D.

In recording in the notes the various readings, I have placed the manuscripts in the order of the several editions issued by Giraldus, as described above in the Preface: viz.,—

Of the 1st edition of the Itinerarium, the manuscripts R., B., F., described supra, x.

Of the 2nd edition, Hc., supra, xi.

Of the 3rd, D. and Rd., supra, xv, xvii.

I have seldom thought it necessary to record the readings of F., a transcript of R.

So again, in the Descriptio; of the 1st edition the manuscripts V., N., described supra, xxii, xxiii.

And of the 2nd edition, D., Rd., as under the 3rd edition of the Itinerary.

Where I have had to name the provinces, into which the three principalities of Wales were anciently divided, I have frequently retained in notes, glossary, and index, the old Welsh names, such as Brecheiniog, Gwlad Morgan or Morganwg, Ceredigion, Meirionydd, instead of the modern derivatives, Brecknockshire, Glamorganshire, Cardiganshire, Merionethshire. It seemed to me absolutely necessary to do this, because these modern divisions are not at all identical with the ancient ones from which their names have descended. A statement, perfectly true, about the old Brecheiniog, Morganwg, &c., would often be altogether untrue of the present Brecknockshire, Glamorganshire, &c. When, however, I have only to identify Giraldus's Latin names of places, rivers, &c., I give the modern county divisions; for instance, I describe his Novus Burgus as Newport, Monmouthshire, though in his days, and for long after, it was in the province of Morganwg; and his Sweinshe or Abertawe as Swansea in Glamorganshire, though then in the province of Caervyrddin (Caermarthenshire).

The Llywelyn's Survey, to which I frequently refer, is a description of the principalities, provinces, cantrevs, and comots, into which Wales was divided in the time of prince Llywelyn ab Gruffudd, who was killed in 1282. It is printed in the second volume of the Myvyrian Archaeology, and a translation of it is given by Sir R. C. Hoare, ii., 265.

The Brut y Tywysogion, or chronicle of the princes of Wales, and the Annales Cambriae, to both of which also I often refer, are printed in the present series.

CORRIGENDA.

- Page 51, second column of notes, l. 8, in margin, instead of 354, read 355.
,, 80, n. 2, l. 2, instead of case read cases.
,, 123, l. 24, instead of de nova read de novo.
,, 268, first column, last line, instead of 107, 162, read 107, 138, 162, 205.
-

GIRALDI CAMBRENSIS
ITINERARIUM KAMBRIÆ.

VOL. VI.

A

22

ITINERARIUM KAMBRIÆ.

STEPHANO CANTUARIENSI ARCHIEPISCOPO. 56.
IN ODOPORION GIRALDI PRÆFATIO PRIMA.¹

SICUT variis rerum motibus et mutationibus tempora Various moventur, sic diversis morum curriculis temporalium pursuits of hominum animi trahuntur. Satyricus clamat; men.

“ Mille hominum species, et rerum discolor usus : Pers. v. 52.

“ Velle suum cuique est, nec voto vivitur uno.”

Et illud comicum ;

“ Quot capita, tot sententiæ: suus cuique mos ” Ter.
Phorm. 2, 3, 14.

est. Unde et quoniam dispares mores disparia studia sequuntur, armata militia tirones exultant, togata vero causarum patroni delectantur: alii cumulandis divitiis anxie suspirant, et summum bonum opulentiam pu-

¹ This preface not in R. B. F. In Hc. T. D., &c. The heading of the text, “Stephano, &c.,” is that of D.; Rd. has only the latter part, “In Odop. Gir. præf. prima.” In Hc. the heading is, “Hugoni Lincolniensi episcopo magister Giraldus Kambrensis.” In T. this preface is headed, “Itinerarii Præfatio prima” (vol. I. 393); and here also, as in Hc., it is addressed to bishop Hugh of Lincoln (infra, p. 7, n. 3).

But though this preface does not appear here in B., in its proper place, the first part of it is added in this MS. of the first edition at the end of the treatise, with the dedicatory heading, “Guillelmo Eliensi episcopo,” i.e. William de Longchamp, bishop of Ely, 1190–1196, the “Belua multiformis,” the horrible monster of iniquity, of the last chapter of Giraldus’s Life of archbishop Geoffrey of York.

tant: hi Galienum approbant, illi Justinianum amplectuntur: honorum cupidi curiam sequuntur, et rediviva fame cruciatos graviter sauciat nec satiat ambitio: liberalibus artibus nonnulli, sed hodie pauci et parvi¹ indulgent; inter quos et Logices alumnos admiramur, qui cum aliquantulum proveci fuerint, tanta studii sui voluptate trahuntur, ut in illis Dialecticæ gyris atque mæandris plerosque videamus, tanquam ad Sireneos scopulos, consenescere.

Aul. Gell.
Noct. Att.
xvi. 8, 5.

Decay of literature.

Sed inter tot hominum species, ubi divini poetæ; ubi nobiles morum assertores; ubi linguæ Latinæ moderatores? Quis hodie scriptis, sive poeticis seu historicis, literatam adornat eloquentiam? Quis, inquam, nostri temporis, vel mores astruit, vel inelite gesta perpetuis literarum vinculis æternitati ascribit?² Adeo literarum honor, in summis olim gradibus constitutus, quia

Virg.
Georg. i.
199.

“ Sic omnia fato
“ In pejus ruere, et retro sublapsa referri,”

56 b.

jam proclivis in ruinam, ad ima devolvi videtur, ut earum addicti studiis non solum hodie non imitabiles, non venerabiles, verum etiam odibiles reperiantur. “ Felices quippe,” ut ait Fabius, “ essent artes, si de “ illis soli artifices judicarent.” “ Naturaliter enim,” ut ait Sydonius,³ “ fixum est radicatumque pectoribus “ humanis, ut qui ignorant artes contemnant artifices.”

Ceterum, ut ad priora revertamur, quæ mundo plus contulerint, quaeso, an arma Mariana,⁴ an carmina Maroniana?⁴ Sed olim Marii⁴ gladios rubigo consumpsit:

¹ et parvi] B. T. He. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

² After ascribit is added in Rd., “ Unde et Esaias, defectum temporis “ hujus longe prospiciens, ait, ‘ Ubi “ est literatus? Ubi verba legis “ (ponderans)? Ubi doctor par- “ vulorum ’ ” (Is. 33, 18). It is in no other manuscript, and not in Camden.

³ ut ait Sydonius] D. Rd., Camden. Not in B. T. He.

⁴ Mariana, Maroniana, and Marii] Instead of this, B., the text of T., He., and D., have “ Arriana,” “ Virgiliana,” and “ Arrii.” Rd.

qui vero scripsit Encida, perpetua Maronis extat gloria.
Et tamen, quanquam literatis sub principibus literæ tunc in honore fuissent, ab ipso scriptum invenies ;

“ Tantum Virg. Ecl.
9, 12.

“ Carmina nostra valent, arma¹ inter martia, quantum
“ Caonias dicunt aquila veniente columbas.”

Ad hæc etiam utra fecundior ac fructuosior extiterit hæsitatis, opera Ieronimi, an opulentia Cresi? Sed ubi hodie Cresi vel nitet argentum, vel rutilat aurum, ubi² cœnobitæ pauperis orbem et irradiat studium, et illustrat exemplum? Et tamen, cum tantus fuisset, Romæ per invidiam contumelias³ et verbera passus, ac demum trans mare pulsus, Bethleemiticam studio suo solitu-dinem elegit.

Inter hæc ergo, quæ contulimus, hoc distare potest ;
quod aurum et arma vitam hanc fulcire videntur, post mortem nil valitura ; verum e diverso scripta parum⁴ in vita propter invidiam prosunt, perpetuum a morte sortita valorem. Sicut igitur testamenti, sic et scripti auctoritas mortis atramento confirmatur ; juxta illud poetæ,

“ Pascitur in vivis livor, post fata quiescit ; Ov. I.
Amor. xv.
39.
“ Cum suus ex merito quemque tuetur honor ;”
et illud ;

“ Denique⁵ si quis adhuc præterdit nubila livor Stat. Theb.
xii. 818.
“ Occidet, et meriti post me referentur honores.”

has “Martiana,” “Virgiliana,” and “Martis.” Camden has, “Mariana,” “Virgiliana,” and Marii.” The reading I give, no doubt I think the right one, is supplied by an after corrector in the margin of T.
“Arriana” and “Arrii” probably originated from the M of Mariana and Marii having been omitted by an early scribe, in order to be afterwards inserted in some ornamental form, but which the illuminator, as often the case, neglected to do. The alliteration with Maroniana being thus mainly lost, the more familiar word “Virgiliana” came in naturally instead.

¹ arma] “tela” in Virgil.

² ubi] B. T. He. D.; cum tamen, Rd.

³ contumelias] B. He. D. Rd. ;
contumeliam, T.

⁴ parum] D.; nihil, B. T. He.,
Camden ; nil, Rd.

⁵ Denique] “Mox tibi” instead,
in Statius.

57. Præterea qui facultates, qui sanitates suis artificiis vel conferre vel conservare nituntur, dum alienis tantum scaturiunt verbis, propriis parum gloriantur inventis. Compositores quippe tam ornati sermonis, quo tam varii casus in tanto juris corpore tam eleganti stilo complectuntur, perpetuis efferendi præconiis extant. Auctores siquidem elegantium verborum, non auditores tantum, repertores non recitatores, dixerim laude dignissimos.

Curiam autem, et Logicam, tam in alliciendo, quam in vix deserendo persimiles invenies. Dialecticæ tamen notitiam, tanquam aliarum omnium tam scientiarum quam artium acumen, cum moderamine moræ inculpatae, certum est esse perutilem: curiam vero, nisi blandis solum palponibus et ambitiosis, non necessariam. Nempe si quæstum facis in curia, te tanto fortius allicit et annectit ambitio, non missura cutem, non curiam, nisi plena. Sin autem labor in damno est, adhuc tamen annum apponis, et iterum annum anno, et sic in infinitum, ne una cum censu tempora perdideris, jacturam temporis, quæ irreparabilis est et omnium major, incurris. Curiam igitur et aleam quadam videas proprietate conformes. Quoniam, ut ait poeta,

Ov. Ars " Sic ne perdiderit, non cessat perdere lutor,
Am. i. 451. " Dum¹ revocat cupidas alea blanda manus."

Levi namque mutatione haud dissimiliter dicas ;

" Sic ne perdiderit, non cessat perdere lusus,
" Dum revocat cupidas curia blanda manus."

Hoc etiam adjiciendum puto, quod sicut aleæ, sic et curiæ casus, delectu carens, dignis et indignis æque respondet.

Inter tot igitur hominum species, quoniam

Virg. Ecl. " Trahit sua quemque voluptas," 2, 65.

¹ Dum] " Et " instead in Ovid.

et quoniam

“ Variis vexantur pectora votis,”

me quidem scribendi studium eligere posteritatis cura Giraldus's devotion to literature; for the sake of posterity. 57 b. coegit. Et quia momentanea et fluxa est præsens hæc vita, juvat saltem in futuro¹ memoria vivere, et perpetuis famæ titulis laudis honore celebrari. Egregiæ mentis indicium est, ad illud emittendum elaborare, quo sibi invidiam in vita, gloriam post fata comparaverit. Perpetuum est itaque quod auctores, quodque poetæ principaliter affectant; temporale commodum, si forte accesserit, non recusantes. Quoniam, ut ait poeta, “ Quis locus ingenio est, nisi cum se carmine solo Juv. 7, 63.

“ Vexant, et dominis Cyrræ Nisæque feruntur

“ Pectora nostra, duas non admittentia curas?”²

Sed quia principibus parum literatis et multum The Top. Hibern. written for H. II.; the Expug. for Richard. His labours unrewarded. occupatis, Hibernicam Anglorum regi Henrico secundo Topographiam, ejusdemque filio, et utinam vitiorum non succedaneo, Pictavensium comiti Ricardo Vaticinalem Historiam, vacuo quondam quoad accessorium illud et infructuoso labore peregi; tibi, vir inclite, Stephane Cantuariensis archiepiscopo,³ quem religio pariter et literatura commendant, laborem nostrum per horridos Kambriæ fines non illaudabilem, in duabus particulis scholastico stilo tam digerere⁴ quam destinare curavi. Virtus enimvero quia sese diligit, aspernaturque contraria, quæcunque in hoc libello decessoris vestri penultimi,⁵ viri venerabilis et metropolitani antistitis,

¹ futuro] B. T. Hc. D., Camden; futura, Rd.

² Here the portion of this preface added at the end of MS. B. concludes with an &c.

³ Stephane, &c.] D. Rd.; Hugo Lincolnensis episcopo, T. and Hc.

⁴ digerere] T. Hc. Rd., Camden; dirigere, D.

⁵ decessoris vestri penultimi] D. Rd.; coepiscopi vestri, T. and Hc.; coepisc. et decess. vestr. penult., Camden.

veris laudum titulis ascripta repereris, te non minori affectu quam si propria fuissent credimus amplexurum.

The intended work, De Princ. Instr.

Quibus expletis, Deo duce, vitæ comite, libellum tibi De Principis Instructione promitto; si, sopitis interdum tam orationum instantiis quam occupationum curis, lectioni quandoque vacare potueris, munus acceptum. Hos igitur et alios nostræ diligentiae fructus, tuæ degustandos discretioni, suis singulos temporibus destinare proposui, ut te nostra si forte movere nequeunt opera, moveant vel opuscula; moveant, inquam, et tam gratiam reddant, quam gratum efficiant.¹

58.

Qui carnali minime motus affectu, in largiendis dextra munifica quibus excelles beneficiis, non sanguinem, non sobolem, sed literas potius et merita pensas: quem in tanta tam continua regni sacerdotiique disceptatione, paucis comitatum, Anglicana ecclesia firmum invenit ac fidelem: in quem hodie fere solum et fideliter electum, illa episcopalis viri canonica descriptio cadere videretur et concordare.

Non itaque pileum sustinendo, non pulvillum supponendo, non plumam extrahendo, non pulverem, etsi nullus fuerit, excutiendo, sed inter alios palpones tibi scribendo placere constitui: tibi, inquam, vir præcluis,² vir insignis, vir virorum perpaucorum; vir in quem quicquid fere in terris antistitem decet, incomparabili gratia tam industria quam natura congressit. Et si forte nec tibi in hunc modum placere prævaleam, tum quia lectionis horam tam oratio suffocat quam occupatio, tum etiam quia literarum olim honor evanuit; saltem, si quandoque resurgat, posteritati.

¹ reddant efficiant] D.; eliciant reddant, T. Hc. Rd., and Camden.

² præcluis] This is no doubt the right reading of the word. In D.

and T., however, it looks more like "præclins" or "prædius." Hc. has "præclarus;" Rd., "præclare;" Camden, "præclarissime."

INCIPIUNT CAPITULA.

- I.—Prima ¹ particula continet de transitu per Herefordiam et Radenouram, cum notabilibus suis.
- II.—De transitu per Hayam ² et Brecheniauc, cum ³ notabilibus suis.
- III.—De Ewias et Lantodheni, ⁴ cum notabilibus suis.
- IIII.—De transitu per Coidwroneu ⁵ et Abergevenni, cum notabilibus suis.
- V.—De transitu per Oschæ castrum, et Legionum urbem, cum notabilibus suis.
- VI.—De transitu per Novum burgum, et Kerdif, ⁶ cum notabilibus suis.
- VII.—De sede Landavensi, et monasterio de Margan, cum partium illarum notabilibus.
- VIII.—De Avennæ ⁷ et Neth fluviis transcursis; de Abertawe quoque et Goer; ⁷ cum notabilibus suis.
- IX.—De Locher et Wendraeth ⁸ fluviis transcursis; de Kedweli quoque, cum notabilibus suis.
- X.—De fluvio Tewiensi navigio transcurso; de Kaermerdyn ⁹ quoque; et Albæ landæ monasterio; cum notabilibus suis.

¹ Here R. B. F. begin, without any heading and without any break, immediately upon the last words of the Expugnatio Hibernica. These capitula are not in He., and not in Camden.

² Hayam] D.; Haiam, R. B.

³ cum] D.; et, R. B.

⁴ Lantodheni] D.; Lanthodheni, R. B.

⁵ Coidwroneu] D.; Coitwronen, R. B.

⁶ Kerdif] D.; Kairdiph, R. B.

⁷ Avennæ .. Abertawe ... Goer] D.; Avenia .. Abertau ... Goher, R. B.

⁸ Wendraeth] D.; Wandrez, R. B.

⁹ Kaermerdyn] D.; Kermerdhu, R. B.

- XI.—De Haverfordia, et Ros ; cum notabilibus suis.
 XII.—De Pembrochia, cum ¹ notabilibus suis.
 XIII.—De transitu per Kamros, et Neugol,² usque Meneviam ; cum notabilibus suis.

- I.—Secunda continet de sede Menevensi, cum notabilibus suis.
 58 b. II.—De transitu per Kemmeis, et monasterium Sancti Dogmaelis ; cum notabilibus suis.
 III.—De fluvio Teyvi, et Keredigiaun, et Emelyn ;³ cum notabilibus suis.
 IIII.—De transitu per Pontem Stephani ; per monasterium quoque de Estratflur ;⁴ per Brevy,⁵ et ecclesiam Paterni magni ; cum notabilibus suis.
 V.—De fluvio Devi navigio transcurso ; et terra filiorum Chanani ;⁶ cum notabilibus suis.
 VI.—De Trait maur, et Trait bochan transcursis ; de Nevin⁷ quoque, et Kaerarvon, et Bangor ; cum notabilibus suis.
 VII.—De Monia insula, cum notabilibus suis.
 VIII.—De Cunewe fluvio, navigio transcurso ; et de Dynasemereis ;⁸ cum notabilibus suis.
 IX.—De montanis Ery,⁹ cum notabilibus suis.
 X.—De transitu per Degannoe et Rudlan ;¹⁰ sedem quoque Lanelvensem ; de vivo sabulo, et Coleshulle ; cum notabilibus suis.
 XI.—De fluvio Deyæ¹¹ transcurso ; et Cestria ; cum notabilibus suis.

¹ Pembrochia, cum] D. ; Pembrochia, et, R. B.

² Neugol] D. ; Niwegal, R. B.

³ Teyvi . . . Keredigiaun . . . Emelyn] D. ; Teivi . . . Kenedigun . . . Emelin, R. B.

⁴ Estratflur] D. ; Stradflur, R. F. ; Stratflur, B.

⁵ Brevy] D. ; Brevi, R. B.

⁶ Chanani] D. ; Kanani, R. B.

⁷ Nevin] D. ; Newein, R. B.

⁸ Dynasemereis] D. ; Dinasemereis, R. B.

⁹ Ery] D. ; Eryer, R. B.

¹⁰ Degannoe . . . Rudlan] D. ; Dugannu . . . Rudhelant, R. B.

¹¹ Deyæ] D. ; Deizæ, R. B.

XII.—De transitu per Album monasterium, et Oswaldestreo;¹ Powisiam quoque, et Slopesburiam; cum notabilibus suis.

XIII.—De transitu per Gwenelec, et Bromfeld;² castellum de Lodelawe, et Leonis monasterium, usque Herefordiam.

XIII.—Descriptio Cantuariensis archiepiscopi Baldewini.³

¹ Oswaldestreo] D.; Oswaldestroe, R, B.

² Gwenelec . . . Bromfeld] D.; Weneloc . . . Brumfeld, R. B.

³ Baldewini] D.; not in R. B.

INCIPIT ITINERARIUM GIRALDI KAMBRENSIS; ET LABORIOSA¹ CANTUARIENSIS ARCHI-EPISCOPI BALDEWINI PER WALLIAM
 LEGATIO.²

PRÆFATIO SECUNDA.³

Object of this treatise.

Quoniam ea, quæ laudabili devotione gesta noscuntur, debitis non indigne præconiis efferuntur; animus quoque quia si remittitur amittitur, et desidiæ torpor vires enervat ingenii; ferrum nempe situ rubiginem ducit,

Ov. I. Pont.
v. 6.

“ Et capiunt vitium, ni moveantur aquæ; ”

19.

ne stilum otiosum ærugo consumat, devotam Cantuariensis archiepiscopi Baldewini per Kambriæ fines legationem literarum munimentis dignum duxi commendare. Loca igitur invia per quæ transivimus, et tam fontium quam torrentum flumina nominatim expressa, verba faceta, viæque labores et casus varios, notabiles quoque tam moderni temporis quam antiqui partium illarum eventus, patriæ naturam, naturæque mirandos interdum excursus, patriæ quoque descriptio-

¹ et laboriosa legatio] Hc. D.; et tam Kambriæ quam Britanniæ descriptio, R. B. This reading of the MSS. of the first edition would seem to intimate that when Giraldus first issued this treatise, he intended it to be the primary instalment of a work describing the whole of Britain.

² In Rd. this “ Incipit . . . legatio ” comes after this second preface, before the first chapter.

³ Præfatio secunda] Hc. D. Rd.; not in R. B.

nem,¹ hoc opusculo quasi speculo quodam dilucido, per te,² vir inclite, Stephane Cantuariensis archiepiscopo, posteritati præsentavi; ne vel studium otio depereat, vel laus silentio delitescat.

[CAP. I.]

De transitu per Herefordiam, et Radenouram; cum notabilibus suis.

Anno igitur ab Incarnatione Domini millesimo centesimo octogesimo octavo, apostolatus³ apicem regente Urbano tertio, imperante Romæ Alemannorum rege Frederico, Constantinopolis Ysaakio, regnante in Francia Philippo Ludovici filio, in Anglia Henrico secundo, in Sicilia Willelmo, in Ungaria rege Bela, in Palestina Gwidone, anno scilicet quo Saladinus, tam Egyptiorum quam Damascenorum princeps, occulto Dei judicio sed nunquam injusto, publico belli certamine victoria potitus, Ierosolimorum regnum obtinuit, vir venerabilis, et tam literatura quam religione conspicuus, Cantuariorum archipræsul⁴ Baldewinus, in salutiferæ crucis obsequium ab Anglia in Walliam tendens, apud Herefordiæ fines Kambriam intravit.

Accedens itaque Radenouram, circa jejunii caput,

¹ patriæ naturam descriptionem] T. D. Rd.; and Hc., but without “patriæ quoque descriptionem.” R. B. have instead, “gentis originem, mores, et modos; patriæ simul et patris descriptionem.”

² per te archiepiscopo] D. Rd.; and T., but with “Hugo Lincolnensis episcopo,” instead of “Stephane Cant. archiep.” Not at all in R. B. Hc.

³ apostolatus Palestina Gwidone] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Giraldus is wrong as to pope Urban III., who died October 19, 1187. He was succeeded by Gregory VIII., who died December 17 of same year. Clement III. was pope in 1188.

⁴ archipræsul] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; archiepiscopus, D.

Date of the progress through Wales of archbishop Baldwin.

At Radnor he is met by Rhys ab Gruffudd, prince of Sth. Wales. Compare the De Rebus, §c., vol. i. 74.

59 b. Giraldus the first to take the cross.

Peter, bishop of St. David's, follows his example; and others.

viro magnifico Ranulfo¹ Glanvillensi, præcipuo regis tunc consiliario, regnique totius justitiario, eo usque comitatus, Resum Griffini filium, australis Kambriæ principem, cum aliis partium illarum viris nobilibus ibidem obvios² habuit. Ubi sermone statim super negotio crucis ab archipræsule publice facto, et per interpretem Walensibus³ exposito, primus omnium, ad importunam quæ præcesserat regis instantiam, et pollicitis plenam tam archiepiscopi quam justitiiarii toties⁴ ex parte regis commonitionem, qui scripsit hæc, aliis exemplum præbens, se primus⁵ erexit, et ad validissimam quoque omnium inductionem, præmissis quidem occasionaliter adjutam, post crebras et anxias secum disputationes, ob temporis demum injuriam et crucis Christi contumeliam, propriæ rationis persuasione, ad pedes viri sancti provolutus crucis signaculum devote suscepit. Quem illico Petrus Menevensis episcopus, et Cluniacensis monachus, tam imitatus est quam secutus. Deinde Eneas Eneæ Claudii filius, Eleveviæ⁶ princeps, cum aliis multis. Qui statim exurgens, et coram Reso cujus filiam uxorem habebat assistens, "Vestra, mi pater," inquit, "et domine, licentia, summi patris

¹ viro magnifico Ranulfo] D. Rd.; Ranulfo quoque, R. B.; "viro" only in Hc. The "circa jejunii caput" of our author must have been several days, at the least, after Ash Wednesday, March 2 in 1188. See note 4, p. lxiv. of Mr. Stubbs' Introduction to Epistolæ Cantuarienses.

² obvios] Hc. D. Rd.; obviam, R. B.

³ Walensibus] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁴ toties ex parte regis commonitionem] D. and Rd. (but corrupt); regis ex parte persuasionem, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁵ se primus . . . rationis persuasione] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc. Most of it not in Camden.

⁶ Claudii filius, Eleveviæ] D. Rd.; Clut filius, Eleveviæ, R. B. According to the Brut y Tywysogion, Einon Clud of Elvael, the father, who was slain in 1177, married a daughter of Rhys ab Gruffudd (pp. 227, 231). Giraldus may have confounded the father and son; but, not at all impossibly, the son also, as he says, may have married a daughter of Rhys. Elevevia is Elvael, a cantrev comprising the southern part of the present Radnorshire.

“injuriam vindicare depropero.” Resus autem cum Rhys fully certissimo sanctæ peregrinationis proposito, quam cito purposes the same ; archiepiscopus terram suam intraverit, reversus est. Adeo ut per quindecim fere dies de clitellis et saggariis, de sumptibus perquirendis et clientibus, ceterisque tanto itineri necessariis, cum multa sollicitudine disposuisset, donec uxor ejus, et communi patriæ vitio but dissuaded by his wife. in quarto gradu cognata, Gwendoloena¹ scilicet Maidoci Powisensis filia, ipsum a nobili proposito, peccatis exigentibus, muliebriter instans penitus avertit. Quoniam, ut ait Salomon, “Cor hominis disponit viam Prov. xvi. “suam, sed Domini est dirigere gressus ejus.” In^{9.} ipso vero discessu Resi, cum super his quæ audierat suos conveniret, juvenis quidam egregius de familia ipsius, cui nomen Griffinus, qui et postea crucem suscepit, respondisse memoratur; “Quis,” inquam, “animi virilis peregrinationis hujus iter abhorreat, “cum inter universa quæ excogitari poterunt ejus “incommoda, nihil incommodius cuiquam, nihil dete- “rius accidere possit quam redire?”

Accesserunt² autem ad Resum in reditu suo quidam The canons of St. David's try to persuade Rhys to forbid the archbp.'s progress. 60. canonici Menevenses zelo ecclesiæ suæ, majores curiæ quos sibi allexerant complices habentes et fautores: qui ei suggerere modis omnibus nitebantur, ut archiepiscopum Cantuariensem, quoniam inauditum hoc hactenus fuerat, ad penitiores Walliarum partes, præcipue³ sedem Menevensem quæ caput est Walliæ, accedere nullatenus sustineret; dicentes et asserentes eo ipso, si processerit, præjudicium magnum et gravamen in posterum antiquæ dignitati suæ recuperandæ, et metropolitanæ sedis honori, posse procul dubio provenire. Hæc, inquam, principi toto conamine suadentes, ob

¹ Gwendoloena] D. Rd.; Gwenlliana, R. B. Gwenllian, daughter of Madog ab Maredudd, prince of part of Powys.

² Accesserunt . . . non valebant]

This section in Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

³ præcipue] D. Rd.; præcipueque, Hc.

innatam tamen ejusdem mansuetudinem et liberalitatem, ne confusionem viro sancto repulsa generaret, persuadere non valebant.

The next day others take the cross.

In crastino vero, mane, post missæ celebrationem, et Ranulfi Glanvillensis in Angliam reversionem, cum apud castrum Crukeri, quod quasi duobus a Radenoura passuum millibus¹ distat, proficisceremur, juvenis quidam robustus et validus, cui nomen Hector, ab archiepiscopo super crucis susceptione conventus; “Si habere,” inquit, “unde uno² die in via comederem, et altero jejunarem, monitis acquiescerem.” Die tamen sequente idem ab archiepiscopo crucem suscepit. Circa vesperam vero venit Mailgo Cadwallani³ filius, princeps Maileniæ;⁴ qui statim, ad brevem archiepiscopi monitionem sed efficacem, non absque suorum lacrimis et luctu, crucis signaculo est insignitus.

The lord of Radnor castle in time of H. I., how punished for irreverence to a church.

Hic autem quasi præ foribus mihi notandum occurrit, quod dominatori castri ejusdem de Radenoura tempore Anglorum regis Henrici primi contigit in terra de Bueld,⁵ non procul abhinc⁶ distante, et eidem honori a primo conquestu adjacente. Cum enim ecclesiam Sancti Avani,⁷ quæ Britannice Lanavan⁸ dicitur, intrasset, et minus caute in eadem cum canibus venatoriis atque irreverenter pernoctasset, venantium more summo diluculo surgens, canes omnes invenit rabie percussos; ipse quoque cæcus effectus, nihil omnino⁹

¹ passuum millibus] D. Rd.; millibus, Hc.; stadiis, R. B.

² uno] R. B. Hc. Rd.; una, D.

³ Cadwallani] D.; Kadwatlani, R. B. Maelgwn ab Cadwallon, prince of Maelienydd.

⁴ Maileniæ] D.; Meleniæ, R. B. Maelienydd, a cantrev comprising the northern part of the present Radnorshire, and a portion of Montgomeryshire.

⁵ Bueld] D.; Buelt, R. B. Called

“ Buelt ” in Brut y Tywys.; now Builth, a cantrev in the northern part of the present Brecknockshire.

⁶ abhinc] Hc. D. Rd.; hinc, R. B.

⁷ Avani] B. D.; Annani, R. F. St. Afan, or Afan Buallt, Rice Rees's Welsh Saints, p. 208.

⁸ Lanavan] D.; Lanevan, R. B. Llanafan Fawr, in Brecknockshire.

⁹ omnino] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

videns, ad manum extractus est. Et cum diu postea vivendo tenebrosam semper et tædiosam vitam duxisset, demum se Ierosolimam duci faciens, ne et interior ei lucerna similiter extingueretur feliciter procuravit. 60 b.
 Cum aliis igitur armatus ibidem, et ad bellicum conflictum vice quadam¹ a suis perductus, forti residens equo, animosum inter primos in hostes fidei impetum fecit; ubi et statim ferro confossus diem cum honore clausit extremum.

In provincia quoque de Warthrenniaun, quæ paucis abhinc stadiis² distat, his nostris diebus res accidit non indigna memoratu. Dominator enimvero loci ejusdem, Eneas scilicet filius Resi, cum die quodam excire saltibus feras intenderet, puta qui venationis studio valde addictus fuerat, quidam ex suis arcum tenens cervam exsipientem sagitta perforavit. Quæ quidem, contra sexus illius naturam, inventa est duodecim ramorum cornua præferens, et præterea tam in cauda quam alibi plusquam cervi pinguedinem habens. Unde et ob tanti prodigii novitatem, Anglorum regi Henrico secundo monstri ejusdem caput et cornua sunt destinata. Illud etiam hoc in casu magis stupore dignum occurrit, quod vir ille, qui feram præscriptam sagittavit, mirum quo fato quove infortunio, subita passione percussus, dextrum illico lumen amisit; et eadem hora paralitico morbo correptus, usque ad mortem inutilis omnino et imbecillis permansit. The lord of Gwerthry-nion, Einon ab Rhys, and the buck-horned doe. Punishment of the man who shot her.

In hac eadem provincia de Warthrenniaun, in ecclesia videlicet Sancti Germani, baculus qui Sancti Cyricii dicitur invenitur, superius in crucis modum paulisper utrinque protensus, auro et argento undique contactus. Qui quanquam virtuosissimus in omni negotio comprobetur, longe plus tamen ad glandiculas, gibbosasque Crosier of St. Curig, at St. Harmon's, Radnor-shire. Its virtues; strumas, quæ in humanis corporibus exerescere solent, evacuandas penitus et delendas, speciali quadam virtute præpollet; adeo quidem ut omnes passim, qui hujuscemodi vexantur incommodis, si baculum devote cum unius denarii oblatione petierint, optatam recipiant sanitatem. Contigit autem his nostris diebus, strumosum quemdam solum obolum baculo præsentasse; cui per medium illico residens strumosus ille tumor evanuit. Et post pusillum, postquam alterius oboli relatione debita est oblatio redintegrata, et integra quoque statim curatio est subsequuta. Item alius ad baculum accedens, cum certa denarii promissione, curatus est: qui tamen die statuto promissa non complens, pristinum statim incommodum cum confusione recepit: sed ut delicti veniam facilius impetraret, cum trium denariorum oblatione, non absque timore magno et devotione, beneficium triplicasset, continuo stabilis curationis gaudia recuperavit.

¹ vice quadam] He. D., Camden. Not in R. B. Rd. has instead, "in "campanum."

² stadiis] R. B. D. Rd., Camden; milibus, He.

on payment of a penny. 61.

St. David's hand-bell, at Glas-ewm, in Elvael:

vengeance on despisers of it.

The church of Llywel, Breck-

Apud Elvail¹ autem, in ecclesia de Glascum, est campana bajula virtuosissima, quam proprio vocabulo Bangu vocant, quæ et Sancti David fuisse perhibetur. Hanc mulier quædam viro suo, qui in castello de Raidergoe juxta² Warthrenniaun, quod Resus filius Griffini nostris diebus construxerat,³ in vinculis tenebatur, ut eum vel sic liberaret, clam allatam superposuit. Sed quoniam castellani non solum ob hoc virum non liberarunt, verum etiam campanam ipsam violenter captivam quoque tenuerunt, nocte eadem, ultione divina, totum oppidum, præter parietem unum ubi campana pende-bat, igne proprio consumptum est.

Apud Luel quoque, partibus de Brecheniauc, nostro similiter tempore contigit, ecclesia ejusdem loci hosti-

¹ Hence to end of chapter in He. D. Rd. Not in R. B. Elvail is the Elevemia (Elvael), supra, p. 14, n. 6, and infra, p. 19, n. 1.

² There seems to be something wrong here. Rhaiadr is in Gwerthryniion.

³ The castle of Rhaiadr Gwy was built by the lord Rhys in 1177: Brut y Tywys.

liter combusta, omnia prorsus intus et extra, præter nockshire, pixidem unam in qua hostia consecrata reposita fuerat, burnt. consumpta fuisse.

Contigit autem in Elvemiae provincia,¹ quam solum Bursting of ab Haia flumen Waiense disternat, duo stagna non two lakes on the môdica, nocte quam Anglorum rex Henricus primus night of duxit extremam, a claustris, alteri a natura, et alteri H. I.'s death. humano labore collatis, subito erupisse: artificiali longius per devexa dilapso, cursuque præcipiti demum, ut mos est, evacuato; naturali vero non ultra duo 61 b. passuum millia, in valle quadam, cum piscibus prioribus et accidentibus, non absque multorum admiratione, perpetua stabilitate statum sortito.²

Contigit etiam³ hac tempestate in Normanniae partibus, paucis⁴ ante obitum Henrici secundi diebus, ut Battle of the fish, in a lake near in stagno quodam non procul a Sagio, quasi per quinque miliaria distante, apud Oximense castrum, pisces Seez, before the death of Henry II. omnes, quibus abundabat, tanto conflictu, tam in aqua ipsa quam extra exsistentes, nocte quadam congrederentur, ut vicinorum hominum multitudinem ipso collisionis strepitu ad spectaculum evocarent. Tanto nempe, tamque letali certamine congressi sunt, ut in toto vivario vix unus⁵ mane vita superstes inveniretur; miro et inaudito prognostico, multorum morte, mortem unius præsentientes.

Quanti vero et quam enormes excessus, super fratrum et consobrinorum exoculationibus, ob miseras terrarum ambitiones, in his inter Waiam et Sabrinam, Mailenith scilicet, Elvail, et Warthrenniaun finibus, his nostris diebus acciderint, satis Walliæ fines memoriter tenent et abhorrent.

¹ This is repeated in our author's De Instr. Princ., p. 159. He. has "in eadem provincia de Eleveni."

² In De Instr. Princ. is added, "et iterum in stagnum converso."

³ This section also in De Instr. Princ., 159.

⁴ paucis] De Instr. Princ. has, "circiter octo."

⁵ unus] uni, D. (text); unus, in margin of D. in later hand, and in Rd. The passage is corrupt in He.

[CAP. II.]

De transitu per Haiam¹ et Brecheniauc, cum notabilibus suis.

Progress
across the Wye, to Hay.

Transeuntes inde versus Brecheniauc, flumine Waiensi² transcurso, statim apud Haiam sermone facto, inter multos ibidem crucesignandos, quosdam vidimus qui relictis vestibus, quibus alii ab amicis, alii ab uxoribus retinebantur, usque in castrum ipsum cursim ad archiepiscopum evaserunt.

The next day to Llandduw.

Mane vero versus Aberthoeni iter arripuimus: et verbo Domini apud Landu seminato, ibidem pernottavimus. Dicitur autem Aberthoeni castrum et provincie caput, ibi situm ubi rivus Hotheni³ in aquam Oschæ⁴ devolvitur. Aber enim lingua Britannica dicitur locus omnis ubi fluvius in fluvium cadit. Landu

Presentation to the 62. archbishop
of the Top.
Hibern.

vero Ecclesia Dei sonat. Archidiaconus quoque loci ejusdem opus suum non ignobile, Hibernicam ibidem⁵ Topographiam archiepiscopo præsentavit. Quod ipse⁶ gratanter accipiens, singulisque diebus obiter inde vel legens vel audiens attente, tandem in Angliam reversus, lectionem una cum legatione complevit.

Notable events in these parts.

Ea igitur quæ nostris temporibus, his in partibus, notabilia contigere, prætereunda non putavi. Accidit itaque⁷ parum ante guerram illam grandem, qua tota

¹ Haiam] R. B., and so D. directly afterwards, in second line of the chapter; Hayam in D. here.

² Waiensi] D.; Vagensi, R. B.; and so also in after cases.

³ Hotheni] D., and so afterwards; Hodheni, R. B. more generally, but they have Hotheni as well: the river Hodni, or Honddu. Aberhodni, or Aberhonddu, is the Welsh name of Brecon, or Brecknock, the town; Brecheinog, Brecheniauc of Giraldus, is the province, represented by the present Brecknockshire.

⁴ Oschæ] D.; Oscæ, R. B. And so also in after cases.

⁵ ibidem] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; ibi, D.

⁶ Quod ipse . . complevit] This clause in D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁷ itaque] B. Hc. D. Rd.; antem, R. F.

fere provincia illa per filios Iestini in exterminium data fuerat, ut lacus ille magnus, qui fluvium Leveni ex se transmittit, simul cum ipso fluvio in Waiaë flumen contra Glasbiriam¹ ab ipso descendente, viridissimi coloris inveniretur. Consulti autem² super hoc terræ illius seniores quidnam portendere potuisset, responderunt parum ante magnam illam desolationem, per Hoelum filium Moreduci³ factam, similis coloris aquam inventam fuisse.

Change of colour in a lake.

Contigit quoque eadem tempestate, capellanum quemdam, cui nomen Hugo, capellæ Sancti Nicholai in castello de Aberthoeni deservientem, in somnis vidisse virum quemdam venerabilem ei assistentem et dicentem; “Die domino tuo Willielmo de Breusa, qui prædium capellæ Sancti Nicholai olim in elemosynam datum detinere præsumit, verbum istud, ‘Hoc aufert’ ‘fiscus quod non accipit’⁴ Christus: dabis impio ‘militi quod dare non vis sacerdoti.’” Cum hoc itaque semel, secundo, et tertio ei accidisset, veniens ad loci illius archidiaconum apud Landu qui scripsit hæc,⁵ tam visionem, quam verba memoriter retenta, quæ nunquam tamen antea audierat, ei proposuit. Ipse vero, Augustini statim hæc esse verba dignoscens, locumque scripturæ ubi reperiuntur ostendens, casum quoque in quo Augustinus ibi loquitur aperuit. Invehitur enim in decimarum et obventionum, seu rerum quarumlibet ecclesiasticarum detentores. Et quod eis ibi minatur, infra brevissimum tempus huic certum est contigisse detentori.

Vision of a chaplain, as to William de Breuse.

Vidimus quippe nostris diebus, et indubitata veritate comperimus, principes ecclesiasticarum possessionum

62 b.

¹ Glasbiriam] D.; Glesburiam, R. B. Glasbury, in Brecknockshire.

² autem] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

³ Moreduci] D.; Mereducii, R. B.

⁴ accipit] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; capit, D.

⁵ qui scripsit hæc] D. Not in R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden.

H. II.'s usurpa-tions of church
property.

usurpatores, præcipue vero Anglorum regem Henricum secundum, nostris diebus regnantem, et hoc vitio præ aliis laborantem, modico fermento¹ massa corrupta, novis semper ea occasione emersis incommodis, thesauros universos profudisse, stipendiario dantes militi quæ dari debuerant sacerdoti.

William de Breuse's pious
language.

De viro tamen prædicto, Willielmo videlicet² de Breusa, quanquam in hoc et similibus plurimum³ offenderit; quia nihil humanum omnino perfectum, omniumque habere notitiam, ut ait Imperator, et in nullo peccare, potius divinitatis est quam humanitatis; hoc equidem memoria dignum censi, quod in omni sermone suo semper⁴ Deum anteponere consuevit,⁵ dicens, "In nomine Domini fiat hoc," "Ex parte Dei fiat illud," item "Si Deo placuerit," vel "Si Deus annuerit," vel "Per Dei gratiam futurum est ita."

Act. xviii.
21.

Quod autem⁶ in hunc modum Deo sit semper totum committendum, ejusque voluntati commendandum, habemus ex Paulo; qui, sicut in Actibus Apostolorum legitur, valedicens fratribus dixit, "Iterum revertar ad vos, Deo volente." Similiter et Jacobus, in epistola sua, adjectiones hujusmodi, "Si Deus voluerit, si vixerimus," singulis de futuro promissionibus faciendas ostendit, divinæ voluntati et dispositioni cuncta relinquendo.

Jac. iv. 15.

Literas quoque,⁷ quas varias ad partes veluti dives et præpotens mittere solebat,⁸ adeo gratiosis hujusce-

¹ fermento] D.; fermenti, R. B. Hc. From 1 Cor. v. 6; Gal. v. 9.

² videlicet] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; scilicet, D.

³ et similibus plurimum] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc. Camden has "plurimum" only.

⁴ semper] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

⁵ anteponere consuevit] D. Rd.; anteponit, R. B. Hc. See note 2, p. 23.

⁶ This section, Quod autem . . . relinquendo, in D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁷ This section, Literas quoque . . . dabat, in Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

⁸ solebat] D.; solet, Hc. Rd.

modi divinæ indulgentiæ verbis onerare sed verius¹ honorare consueverat, ut in tædium plerumque maximum, non solum notariis, verum etiam auditoribus vergi soleat. Singulis autem notariorum, ut literas omnes divini auxilii verbo concluderent, præter communia stipendia aureum annuatim denarium dabat.

Ad hæc etiam, ex devotionis abundantia, quoties ^{His devo-} iter agendo vel in ecclesiam, vel in crucem aliquam ^{tion.} oculos convertit, quanquam in cursu sermonis cum quocunque, seu plebeio seu potente, verbum fieret,² 63. statim se transtulit² ad orationes: quibus expletis, a diverticulo repetiit² orationem. Præterea quoties pueros in via obvios habebat, eos illico salutatione præveniens ad reciprocam invitabat salutationem; ut sic innocentium ei benedictio vel extorta, cum salutationis eulogio refunderetur. Horum etiam omnium et sponsa ^{His excel-} ejusdem, Matildis de Sancto Walerico, consuetudinem ^{lent wife.} habuit; mulier, inquam, prudens et pudica, mulier domui suæ bene præposita, mulier non tantum intus conservando, verum etiam extra multiplicando providentissima. Qui utinam³ ambo tam finalem in tempore felicitatem et gratiam, quam æternitatis gloriam fuerint ex devotione consecuti.

Accidit etiam eisdem in partibus, pueri cujusdam, ^{The boy} pullos columbinos in ecclesia Sancti David de Lan- ^{and the} mays⁴ a nido surripere volentis, lapidi supposito manum ^{pigeon's} adhæsisse; miraculosa forte sancti illius vindicta, avium ^{nest in the} ecclesiæ suæ indemnitate procurantis. Cumque die- ^{church of} ^{Llanfaes.}

¹ onerare sed verius] D. Rd. Not in He. Camden has "onerare seu potius."

² fieret, transtulit, and repetiit] D. Rd.; fiat, transfert, and repetit, R. B. He. So again in the next sentence; habebat, invitabat, and refunderetur, in D. Rd.; habet, invitatur, and refundatur, in R. B. He. See note 5, p. 22. This change, from the present to the past tense, proves that the edition of this treatise as in D. was not issued by Giraldus before 1211, the year of William de Breusa's death (Wendover, Waverley Annals, &c.).

³ Qui utinam . . consecuti] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He.

⁴ Lanmays] D.; Lammais, R. B.

bus tribus et noctibus puer, cum parentibus et amicis, in ipsa ecclesia coram altari, vigiliis, jejuniis, et orationibus institissent,¹ tandem die tertio, vinculo divinitus relaxato, manum a lapide virtus quæ ligavit absolvit.

Vidimus eundem, apud Niweburiam in Anglia manentem, se Menevensi episcopo David secundo ibidem presentantem, et transactis ætatum gradibus jam senem ex puero factum, quoniam in episcopi illius diocesi ista contigerant, sibi hæc accidisse certissima relatione confitentem. Lapis vero in ecclesia prædicta quasi pro reliquiis usque in hodiernum reservatur, digitorum² vestigiis tanquam in cera pressorum in silice comparentibus.

A like miracle at Bury St.
Edmund's.

63 b.

Miraculum³ autem haud longe dissimile his nostris diebus accidit apud Sanctum Edmundum. Mulier miserrima, ad scrinium viri sancti quasi sub devotionis obtentu accedere consueta, non tamen afferre quicquam sed auferre parata, argentum et aurum ab aliis oblatum, exquisito furti genere, deosculando ablambere solebat, et ore reconditum asportare. Quæ cum semel, ut sæpius consueverat, id fecisset, labiis et lingua feretro firmiter adhæsit, argentumque ingestum divinitus deprehensa palam evomit. Accurrentibus quoque multis et admirantibus, tam Judæis quam Christianis, majori diei parte, ut amplior virtus elucesceret et nulli dubium foret, ibi immota remansit et inconvulsa.

And at Howden.

Item in borealibus Angliæ trans. Humbriam finibus, in ecclesia de Hovedene, personæ ejusdem ecclesiæ concubina tumbæ Sanctæ Osanæ sororis regis Osredi lignæ, in sedilis modum super aream eminenti, minus caute insedit. Quæ cum inde recedere vellet, fixis institisset, R. B. Hc.

¹ instilissent] D. Rd., Camden; |

² digitorum] D. Rd.; quinque di- |
gitorum, R. B. Hc., Camden.

³ The three next sections, Mira- culum . . . ceciderunt, in D. Rd.
Not in R. B. Hc.

ligno natibus, avelli non potuit, donec accurrente populo, scissis vestibus, et corpore nudato, et crebris disciplinis usque ad sanguinis profluvium acriter afflicto, cum lacrimis quoque multis et supplicationibus, compunctione secuta et pœnitentia injuncta, divinitus laxata recessit.

De psalterio quoque Quenredæ, sororis Sancti Kenelmi, cujus instinctu interfectus erat, virtus magna nostris diebus emicuit; cum subcelerarius, vigilia Sancti Kenelmi sero, apud Winchelecumbe, adventantibus mulierum turbis de vicinia et notitia monachorum ad festum, ut solent, cum quadam illarum inter septa monasterii fornicationem incurrit. Qui die crastino, ad processionem, psalterium prædictum inter reliquias sanctorum ferre præsumens, completa processionis solemnitate reversus in chorum, idem manibus suis firmiter adhærens deponere non prævaluit. Qui stupefactus plurimum et confusus, tandem delictum hesternum ad mentem revocans, confessione facta et pœnitentia injuncta, fratrum orationibus adjutus, et propria compunctione contritus, a vinculo divinitus dato demum absolvi meruit et laxari. Liber autem ille ideo in veneratione magna ibi tenetur, quia cum corpus Kenelmi exanime deferretur, et clamarent turbæ, “Martyr Dei est; est vere; martyr Dei est,” respondit Quenreda, fratricidii rea et conscia, “Adeo vere martyr est, sicut verum est quod oculi mei super psalterium istud eruti jacent:” ea enim hora psalterium forte legebat. Et statim oculi ejus ambo a capite divinitus avulsi in librum apertum, ubi et vestigia sanguinis adhuc apparent, ceciderunt.

Præterea de torque, quam Sancti Kanauci¹ dicunt, tacendum non censui. Est etenim auro tam pondere

And at Winchecombe.

64.

The torque
of St.
Cynawg.

¹ Kanauci] D. Rd.; Karauci, R. B.; Canauci, He. Cynawg, or Cynog, a Brecknockshire saint of the fifth century, the eldest of the many sons of Brychan. See Rice Rees's Welsh Saints, 138.

et natura quam colore simillima; ¹ ex quatuor frustis, sicut ex rimulis patet, orbiculariter in ² invicem insitis artificiose conserta, ¹ et capite quasi canino, rictuosis hinc inde dentibus extante, per medium complexa. ¹ Hanc autem pro reliquiis habent indigenæ virtuosissimis, adeo ut, hac coram posita, nemo pejerare præsumat. Apparet autem ictus in torque magnus, quasi ferreo marculo factus. Quidam enim, ut fertur, auri cupidine ductus, cum anulum infringere niteretur, vindictam divinitus sentiens, oculo est statim orbatus utroque; et sic, quamdiu postea vixit, tædiosam in tenebris vitam perduxit. ³

The horn of St. Patrick.

De cornu quoque Sancti Patricii, non aureo quidem sed æneo, quod in partes istas ab Hibernia nuper advenit, ⁴ haud dissimiliter obstupendum. Cujus virtus, ex fatua et inepta Bernardi presbyteri cornicatione, terribili exemplo in finibus istis primum emicuit.

Vol. v. 180. Sicut ⁵ in Hibernica Topographia nostra ⁶ propalatur his verbis: ⁷

64 b. “ Vidimus quoque et in Gwallia, unde et vehementer admiramur, bajulum quemdam ⁸ cornu quoddam æneum, quod Sancti Patricii fuisse dicebat, pro reliquiis in collo gestantem. Dicebat autem, ob reverentiam sancti illius neminem ausum hoc sonare. Cum igitur, Hibernico more, circumstanti populo cornu porrigeret osculandum, sacerdos quidam, Bernardus nomine, de manibus ejus illud abripuit; et oris apponens angulo, aeremque impellens, sonare cœpit. Qui ¹ simillima, conserta, and complexa] D. Rd.; simillimus, consertus, and complexus, R. B. Hc. So also in next sentence, hanc, hac, and posita, in D. Rd.; hunc, hoc, and posito, in R. B. Hc.

² in] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

³ perduxit] D. Rd.; duxit, R. B. Hc.

⁴ advenit] D. Rd.; obvenit, R. B. Hc. seems corrupt; “obeuit” the word looks plainly.

⁵ Sicut] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; Sicut et, D.

⁶ nostra] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁷ his verbis] This, and the next section, Vidimus . . . plena, in D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁸ bajulum quemdam] So the late MSS. of the Top. Hib.; but in the early ones he is described as “Hiberniensem pauperem et mendicem” (vol. v. p. 180, n. 4).

“ et eadem hora, multis astantibus, ore quidem auretenus “ paralytice retorto, duplici passione percussus est. Cum “ enim torrentis eloquii prius extitisset, et delatoris linguam “ detractor habuisset, sermonis cujuslibet usum statim amisit.
 “ Unde et in hac parte sic læsus est, ut semper hæcenus “ linguæ fuerit impeditæ. Præterea, lethargum patiens, sic “ statim oblivioni cuncta tradiderat, ut vix etiam se nomen “ habuisse meminisset. Enimvero tam enormiter in memoria “ læsus fuerat, ut psalmos, quos antea cordetenus optime “ noverat, multis abinde diebus quasi de novo recordantem “ videremus: et literas etiam, quarum notitiam copiose satis “ habuerat, denuo mendicantem tanquam elementarium senem “ miraremur. Cui tandem in Hiberniam, ad Sanctum Patri“ cium, excessus hujus causa peregre profecto, plenior valetudo “ rediit, sed non plena.”

Campanas¹ namque bajulas, baculos quoque in supe-riori parte cameratos, auro et argento vel ære contec-tos,² aliasque hujusmodi sanctorum reliquias, in magna reverentia³ tam Hiberniæ et Scotiæ, quam et Gwalliæ populus et clerus habere solent: adeo ut sacramenta super hæc longe magis quam super evangelia et præstare vereantur et pejerare. Quippe ex vi quadam occulta, et his quasi divinitus insita, necnon et vin-dicta, cujus præcipue sancti illi appetibiles esse videntur, plerumque puniuntur contemptores, et graviter animadvertitur in transgressores.

De cornu quoque⁴ Patricii hoc equidem notabile censui, quod ad aurem appposito capite foraminis ampliore, dulcisonam audias per se sonoritatem emitti;
 qualis ex cithara nudata, aura leniter impulsæ, melodia solet educi.

Contigit autem his nostris diebus, eisdem in finibus, quod et notabile censui, suillam silvestrem, quia canem

Reverence for bells, pastoral staves, &c.

The sporting sow.
65.

¹ Campanas . . . transgressores]
This section also is from Top. Hib.
(vol. v. p. 179), but not in exactly the same words.

² contectos] D. Rd., Camden; contextos, R. B. Hc., Top. Hib.

³ reverentia] Hc. D. Rd., Camden, Top. Hib.; veneratione, R. B.

⁴ quoque] D. Rd. Not in R. B.
Hc.

forte lactuerat odoris naribus¹ sagacem, cujus mamillis apposita fuerat, adultam in ferarum persecutione ad miraculum usque fuisse pervalidam, adeo quidem ut molossis, ad hoc natura juvante tam institutis quam instructis, odora sagacitate longe præstantior inveniretur.² Argumentum tam hominem, quam animal³ quodlibet, ab illa, cujus lacte nutritur, naturam contrahere.

Prodigious birth of a calf from a man.

In eisdem⁴ quoque finibus, et eodem fere tempore, res accidit prodigiosa. Miles enim, cui nomen Gilbertus, cognomen vero Hagurnellus, post diutinos continuosque fere triennii languores, et gravissimas tanquam parturientis angustias, demum, videntibus multis, per egestionis fenestram vitulum edidit: novi alicujus et inusitati futuri casus ostentum, aut potius nefandi criminis ultricem declarans indignationem.

The half-stag horse of St. Illtyd.

Præterea, ex antiquis et authenticis partium istarum scriptis colligitur, tempore quo Sanctus Eltutus⁵ heremiticam apud Lanhamelach vitam exegit, jumentum ejusdem, quo cibaria ipsius deferri consueverant, cervo emissario pregnans effectum esse: ex quo et miræ velocitatis equus prodiit, anteriori parte equi naturam præferens, posterius vero in cervum descendens.

Bernard de Newmarch the first Norman occupier of this province (c. 1093).

Primus Normannorum hanc provinciam, quæ tribus cantaredis⁶ distincta conseritur, Bernardus de Novo Mercatu nova contra Kambriæ fines conquisitione possedit. Hic filiam Nestæ, filiæ Griffini filii Lewelini,⁷

¹ odoris naribus] R. B. Rd.; odoris narium, D.; odoribus naribus, He.; odorisequis naribus, Camden.

² inveniretur] He. D. Rd.; invenitur, R. B.

³ animal] B. He. D. Rd.; aliud, R. F.

⁴ The two next sections, In eisdem . . . descendens, in He. D. Rd.; not in R. B.

⁵ Eltutus] The general Latin form is Iltutus. St. Illtyd is said to have lived in the fifth and sixth centuries: Rees's Welsh Saints, p. 178, &c.

⁶ The three Cantrevs of Brecheiniog, according to prince Llywelyn's Survey (Myvyr. Archaiol., ii. 606), were Cantrev Selyv, Cantrev Canol, and Cantrev Mawr.

⁷ Gruffudd ab Llywelyn, prince of North Wales, was sovereign of all Wales, according to the Brut y Tywysogion, from 1037 to 1061.

cujus tyrannis totam aliquamdiu Gualliam oppresserat, materno Nestam nomine, quam et Angli vertendo Anneis vocavere, sibi matrimonio copulavit: ex qua et prolem suscepit, in qua miles egregius, cui nomen Mahel, hac paternum¹ injuria conquestum amisit. Mater ejusdem, contra jugale² vinculum, adulterinis amplexibus militem quemdam adamavit.³ Quo comperto, militem noctu a matre redeuntem filius offendens, flagellatum graviter mutilatumque cum dedecore remisit magno. Mater vero, mira facti confusione percussa, muliebrique dolore anxie concussa,⁴ totum in vindictam virus evomit. Accedens igitur ad Anglorum regem Henricum primum, assertione vindice magis quam vera proposuit, et coram curia publice sacramento corporaliter præstito confirmavit, filium suum Mahelem non a Bernardo, sed ab⁵ alio quodam, quem secretis et illicitis adamaverat amplexibus, fuisse progenitum. Cujus juramenti vel potius⁶ perjurii causa, rex Henricus, voluntate magis quam ratione permotus, primævam prædictæ mulieris filiam, quam ex Bernardi semine professa est vere fuisse susceptam, juveni de familia sua et militi insigni, Miloni scilicet filio Walteri constabularii Gloverniæ, cum honore de Brecheoniauc nuptui dedit. Qui postmodum, a regis ejusdem filia et imperatrice Romana Matillide, comes Herefordiæ creatus est. Hic prolem egregiam ex eadem uxore suscepit;⁷ in qua filii quinque, milites insignes, Rogerus, Gualterus, Henricus, Guillelmus, et Mahel, nescio qua vindicta, quave fatalitate sinistra, intempestiva nece rebus humanis exempti sunt. Et tamen Adultery of his Welsh wife Nesta. 65 b.

Hershamless assertion, or perjury.

Milo, in right of his wife, her daughter, lord of Brecknock.

Their sons.

¹ paternum . . . conquestum] D. Rd.; paternam . . . conquestionem, R. B. He.

² jugale] R. B. He. Rd., Camden; conjugale, D.

³ adamavit] D. Rd.; adamabat, R. B. He.

⁴ concussa] R. B. He. Rd., Camden; perculsa, D.

⁵ ab] B. He. D. Rd. Not in R. F.

⁶ potius] R. B. He. Rd. Not in D.

⁷ suscipit] D. Rd., Camden; suscitavit, R. B. He.

omnes, præter Guillelmum, sibi invicem sine prole paternam in hereditatem successerunt.

Sic igitur hæc mulier, muliebri non degenerans a natura, ut vindici satisfaceret iracundiæ, cum gravi pudicitie jactura, cum damno dedecoris atque pudoris, uno eodemque facinore et filium patrimonio, et se privavit honore.

- Nec mirum si mulier innatæ malitiæ morem gerat.
- Eccles. vii. 29. Legitur enim¹ in Ecclesiaste; "Virum de mille unum
" reperi; mulierem non inveni." Et in Ecclesiastico;
- Eccles. xxv. 22. "Non est caput nequius super caput colubri, et non
xxv. 26. "est² ira super iram mulieris." Item in eodem; "Bre-
" vis est hominis³ malitia super malitiam mulieris."
66. Et ut de spinis uvas, de tribulis ficus colligamus, Cicero. muliebrem describens naturam Tullius ait; "Viri forte,
" unius alicujus commodi causa, unum aliquando scelus
" perpetrabunt: feminae vero, unius explendæ volun-
" tatis causa, omnia simul scelera perpetrare non " formidabunt." Item Juvenalis loquens de mulieri-bus inquit;
- Juv. vi. 284. "Nihil est audacius illis
" Deprensas: iram atque animos a crimine sumunt."
Et alibi;
- x. 328. "Mulier sævissima tunc est,
" Cum stimulos odio pudor admovet."
Et alibi;⁴ vindicta quia
- xiii. 191. "Nemo magis quam femina gaudet."
- Their son Mahel's ill-treatment Prædictorum autem fratrum quinque, et filiorum comitis Milonis, penultimus⁵ ille, et postremus here-

¹ enim] He. D.: etenim, R. B. Rd., Camden.

² est] R. B. He. Rd., with Vulgate; not in D.

³ hominis] Instead of this the Vulgate has "omnis."

⁴ et alibi . . . gaudet] D. Rd.; et in eodem; Collige quod vindicta nemo magis gaudet quam femina, R. B. He., Camden.

⁵ penultimus] This ought to be "ultimus," according to the enumeration of the sons supra.

ditatis possessor, inhumana præ ceteris crudelitate notabilis, adeo in Menevensensem episcopum David secundum, suasque tam possessiones, quam terras et homines, desævire statuerat, ut a finibus de Brecheniauc non præsul jam, sed tanquam exul existens, tam Angliam quam alias diocesis suæ partes frequentaret. Contigit autem interea ut in castro de Broynles¹ cum Waltero de Cliffordia Mahel² hospitio susceptus, ædibus casuali incendio consumptis, lapide a principali turre deorsum cadente percussus in capite letaliter obrueretur. Et statim missis nunciis, prædicto loci episcopo cum festinatione revocato, voce miserabili proclamavit; “O pater et pontifex noster, crudelem nimis in me vindictam sanctus vester exercuit, non conversionem peccatoris exspectans, sed mortem magis et eversionem accelerans.” Et cum hujusmodi verba lugubri lamentatione sæpius ingeminasset, anno dominationis suæ nondum completo, vitam pariter et tyrannidem terminavit,³ et propriæ præco confusionis expiravit.⁴

Erat autem antiquitus regionis illius, quæ Brecheniauc dicitur, dominator vir potens et nobilis, cui nomen Brechanus;⁵ a quo et terra Brecheniauc denominata.⁶ De quo mihi notabile videtur, quod ipsum viginti quatuor habuisse filias historiæ Britannicæ testantur, omnes a pueritia divinis deditas obsequiis, et in sanc-

of the bishop of St. David's

His death.

Brychan
(c. A.D.
400-450), from whom the name Brechei-niog.

¹ Broynles] D.; Brenlais, R. B. Bronllys, or Brwynlyss, a village between Brecknock and Hay, where, according to Sir R. C. Hoare, are still some remains of Clifford's castle.

² Mahel] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He.

³ vitam pariter et tyrannidem terminavit] D. Rd.; tyrannium termi-navit, R. B.; tyrannidem terminavit, He.

⁴ et propriæ . . . expiravit] R. B. He. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

⁵ Brechanus] D.; Brachanus, R. B. Brychan of Welsh writers. He had 24 sons, and 25 daughters, according to some authorities. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 136.

⁶ denominata] D. Rd.; denominata est, R. B. He., Camden.

66 b. titatis¹ assumptæ proposito vitam feliciter terminasse. Extant autem basilicæ adhuc per Kambriam multæ, earum nominibus illustratæ: quarum una in provincia de Brecheniauc, non procul a castro principali de Aberhotheni, in collis ejusdam vertice sita, quæ Sanctæ Aelivedhæ² ecclesia dicitur: hoc etenim virginis sanctæ nomen extiterat, quæ et ibidem terreni regis nuptias respuens, æterno nubens regi, felici martyrio triumphavit.

His daughter, St. Elined.

Her feast-day, Aug. 1.

Strange frenzies of her devotees.

Celebratur autem sollemnis ejusdem dies, eodem in loco, singulis annis in capite kalendarum Augusti: ubi et eodem die multi de plebe longinquis ex partibus convenire solent; et variis languentes infirmitatibus, meritis beatæ virginis, optatam recipere sanitatem consueverant. Illud autem hoc in loco mihi notabile videtur, quod in omni fere solemnitatem hujus virginis accidere consuevit. Videas enim hic homines seu puellas, nunc in ecclesia, nunc in cœmiterio, nunc in chorea quæ circa cœmiterium cum cantilena circumferitur, subito in terram corruere, et primo tanquam in extasim ductos et quietos, deinde statim tanquam in phrenesim raptos exsidentes, opera quæcunque festis diebus illicite perpetrare consueverant, tam manibus quam pedibus coram populo repræsentantes. Videas hunc aratro manus aptare, illum quasi stimulo boves excitare; et utrumque, quasi laborem mitigando, solitas barbaræ modulationis voces efferre. Videas hunc artem sutoriam, illum pellipariam imitari. Item videas hanc, ¹ sanctitatis] F. He. D. Rd.; sanctitate, R. B. I believe this to be about the only instance I have noted, where F. gives the right reading instead of a wrong one of R.

² Aelivedhæ] D.; Ailphethæ, R. B. Rice Rees (Welsh Saints, 149) calls her Elined; and says that her church, on the hill near Brecknock, was called Slwch chapel (150, 325). He follows, as to her name, the Myvyrian Archæology: other Welsh authorities call her Elevetha, and Aled. See Robert Williams' Biogr. Dict. of Eminent Welshmen, under Ahmedha.

quasi colum bajulando, nunc filum manibus et brachiis in longum extrahere, nunc extractum occando tanquam in fusum revocare; istam deambulando productis filis quasi telam ordiri; illam sedendo quasi jam orditam oppositis lanceolæ jactibus, et alternis calamistræ cominus ictibus, texere mireris. Demum vero intra ecclesiam cum oblationibus ad altare perductos, tanquam expectatos et ad se redeuntes obstupescas.

Sic itaque divina miseratione, quæ peccantium conversione magis gaudet quam eversione, multos, ultionem hujusmodi tam videndo quam sentiendo, festis de cetero feriando diebus, corrigi constat et emendari. 67.

Est igitur hæc terra satis abundans grano: et si quis est defectus innato, ex Anglicanæ vicinitatis copia affatim suppletur allato. Pascuis et silvis, feris et armentis terra fecunda. Fluvialibus quoque piscibus abundat, quos hinc Oscha,¹ inde Waia¹ ministrat. Salmonibus enim et turtris utraque; sed plus illis² Waia, plus istis Oscha fecunda est. Hiemali quoque tempore Waiaë salmones, æstivo vero Oschæ tempestivi reperiuntur. Egregiis vero, quas et Umbras vocant, sola thymallis Waia fecunda est. In quorum laudem, quoniam et Mediolani abundant, in Ambrosii libris³ reperitur. "Quid," inquit, "aspectu pulchrius, quid odore suavius, quid gustu jocundius?"

Luciis quoque et perchiis, turtrisque peroptimis, et tenchis, anguillisque lutosus, lacus ille de Brecheniauc magnus et famosus, quem et Clamosum dicunt, patriam replet. De quo, quod parum ante hæc nostra tempora contigit,⁴ prætereundum non putavi.

¹ Oscha . . . Waia] D.; Oscæ . . . Vaga, R. B. Hc. Rd.

² sed plus illis Waia . . . tempestive reperiuntur] Hc. D. Rd.; "sed plus Osca" only, in R. B.

³ Ambrosii libris] D. Rd.; Ambrosia, R. B.; Ambrosio, Hc. Giraldus must be loosely quoting from memory, if I am right in my reference. The words of St. Ambrose there are, speaking of the Thymallus, "Quid specie tua gratius, quid suavitate jocundius, quid odore fragrantius?"

⁴ contigit] D. Rd.; contigerat, R. B. Hc.

Fertility of this region.

The fish of its rivers.

Hexæm. lib. v. cap. ii.

The lake of Brecknock.

Tempore namque Anglorum regis Henrici primi, Griphino filio Resi, filii Theodori, quanquam unius kemnoti solum, id est, quartæ partis cantaredi, de Kaoc¹ scilicet in Cantrefmaur,¹ tunc domino, nomine tamen et nobilitate tenus in Sudwallia, quam Kambri Dehenbarth, id est, dextralem Walliæ partem vocant, sub rege principante, cum idem Griphinus a curia regis per lacum prædictum, fluvialibus diversorum generum aviculis hiemali algore redundantem, reverteretur, duces habens et deductores² Milonem, Herefordiæ comitem et de Brecheniauc dominatorem, necnon et Paganum filium Johannis, in cujus manu tunc Ewias fuerat; qui duo tunc temporis inter regis secretarios et præcipuos consiliarios pro magnis habebantur; comes Milo, ut aliquem a Griphino nobilitatis innatæ sermonem eliceret, in hæc verba ludicro magis quam serio prorupit. “Antiquum,” inquit, “verbum, et ab antiquo in Wallia retentum est, quod si naturalis Walliæ princeps, ad hunc lacum veniens, avibus ejusdem præceperit ut canant, statim omnes canent.” Ad quod Griphinus, plus animo dives quam auro, ob hereditatis namque diminutionem nihil unquam animositatis, nihil dignitatis imminuens, subjecit: “Tu itaque, qui te terræ istius nunc dominum geris, primo præcipias.” At illo frustra præcipiente, sicut et præcepto Griphini postea quoque Pagano, videns Griphinus ad eorundem instantiam sibi jam præcipiendi lege consortii necessitatem incumbere, statim ab equo descendens, et in orientem genua ponens, tanquam duelli conflictum ibidem ingressurus, nunc cernuus in terram et humiliter prostratus, nunc oculis ac manibus in cælum intentus, devotas ad Deum fudit orationes. Tandem itaque se ab orationibus eri-

Milo, earl of Hereford, and lord of Brecheiniog; and Payn Fitz-John, lord of Ewyas.

67 b.

Testimony of the wild fowl of this lake to Gruffudd ab Rhys being the rightful

¹ Kaoc . . . Cantrefmaur] D. ; Kaiecc . . . Kantermaur, R. B. Giraldus seems here to make a mistake; Cao, which I suppose to be his Kaoc, is a comot, not of Can-

trev Maur, but of Cantrev Bychan, in Caermarthen. See Llywelyn's Survey, Myvyr. Archaiol. ii. 606.

² deductores] B. He. D. Rd. ; ductores, R. F.

gens, et crucis signaculo frontem ac faciem signans, prince of South Wales, palam ac publice proclamavit; "Deus omnipotens et
 " omnia sciens, Domine Jesu Christe, tuam hic hodie
 " declara virtutem. Quoniam si ex naturalibus Walliæ
 " principibus me linealiter descendere fecisti, avibus
 " istis ut hoc denuncient in nomine tuo præcipio." Et continuo aviculæ cunctæ, quælibet in suo genere, alis expansis aquam verberando, canere una et proclamare cœperunt. Cunctis autem qui aderant stupidis effectis et consternatis, comes et Paganus ad curiam statim cum festinatione reversi, cuncta per ordinem regi cum admiratione maxima retulerunt. Quibus auditis, rex respondisse memoratur; "Per mortem," inquit, "Christi," quoniam hoc juramento uti consueverat, "non adeo est
 " admirandum. Quia licet¹ gentibus illis per vires
 " nostras magnas injuriam et violentiam irrogemus,
 " nihilominus tamen in terris eisdem jus hereditarium²
 " habere noscuntur."

Plurimis³ quoque, ut accolæ testantur, lacus iste 68. Other marvels of this lake.
 miraculis pollet. Quemadmodum enim viridis aliquoties, sicut præscriptimus, coloris, sic et sanguineus ali-quando nostris diebus repertus est; non universaliter tamen, sed quasi per venas quasdam et rivulos san-guinem manare compertus est. Ad hæc etiam totus ædificiis consertus, culturis egregiis, hortis ornatus et pomeriis, ab accolis quandoque conspicitur. Sub bruma quoque glacie constrictus, et aquarum superficie in lubricam testam frigore⁴ concreta, sonum horribilem, tanquam multorum animalium⁵ in unum collectorum mugitum,⁵ emittit. Sed hoc forte, glaciali testudine⁶
 deorsum residente, aeris inclusi, et per fenestras occultas

¹ Quia licet] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; Quibuslibet, D.

² eisdem jus hereditarium] D. Rd.; jus naturaliter, R. B.; "jus" only in Hc.

³ This section, Plurimis
eruptio, in Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

⁴ frigore] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

⁵ animalium, and mugitum] D.
 Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

⁶ testudine] Hc. Rd., Camden; testitudine, D.

sensim exhalantis, subita interdum et violenta facit eruptio.

This region well sheltered by mountains.

Præterea montibus excelsis, præterquam a borea, hæc undique terra concluditur: a zephyro montana de Cantrebochan,¹ ab austro montes habens meridionales, quorum principalis Kaerarthur² dictus, id est, cathedra³ Arthuri, propter gemina promontorii cacumina in cathedræ³ modum se præferentia. Et quoniam in alto cathedra et in arduo sita est, summo et maximo Britonum regi Arthuro vulgari nuncupatione est assignata. In excelso montis hujus vertice fontis ebullit scaturigo. Est autem fons in putei modum altus, sed quadratus, nullum ex se rivulum faciens, in quo tamen et turtræ⁴ quandoque, ut fertur, sunt repertæ.

His igitur obstaculis ad meridiem appositis, a phœbeo patriam fervore frigidior aura defendit, et insita aeris salubritate temperatissimam reddit. Ab euro vero de Talgarth⁵ et Ewyas montana prætendit. Quorum incolæ continuis inimicitiiis, et odio implacabili, mutuis vulneribus sanguinem fundere et cædibus insistere non desistunt.

68 b. Quanti⁶ vero et quam enormes excessus super matrimoniiis cruentissimis, protractis tamen potius quam contractis, et sanguinolento divortio præpeditis, ceterisque multis crudeliter exactis, hoc nostro tempore finibus istis acciderint, aliis explicare locum damus.

¹ Cantrebochan] D.; Kanterbochan, R. B. And so in other instances. Cantrev Bychan is one of the hundreds of Caermarthen.

² Kaerarthur] D.; Kairarthur, R. B. Cadair Arthur, now more commonly called the Van, or Bannau Brecheiniog.

³ cathedra, and cathedræ] D. Rd., Camden; castrum, and castri, Hc. This reading of the second edition agrees best with Giraldus's "Kaer-arthur."

⁴ et turtræ . . repertæ] D., Camden; "turtræ reperiuntur" only, in R. B. Hc. Rd.; the latter MS. having "truttæ" instead of "turtræ."

⁵ Talgarth] D.; Talgar, R. B. Talgarth is a parish in Brecknockshire. The Talgarth mountains are now called the Black Mountains.

⁶ Quanti . . damus] This section in Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

[CAP III.]

De Ewias et Lanthonei,¹ cum notabilibus suis.

Stat autem in valle de Ewias profundissima, quantum The vale of Ewyas, and Llanthoni abbey. sagittæ est jactus arcu ter missæ, montibus æthereis orbiculariter undique conclusa, ecclesia Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, plumbeis laminis operta, lapideoque tabulatu pro loci natura non indecenter exstructa: in loco videlicet ubi paupercula prius Sancti David archiepiscopi capella steterat, musco silvestri solum et hederæ nexibus adornata. Vere religioni locus idoneus, et disciplinæ canonicæ præ cunctis insulæ Britannicæ cœnobiis competentissimus; a duobus eremitis in honorem eremitæ primo fundatus, ab omni populari strepitu in solitudine quadam longe remotus, super fluvium Hotheni² per vallis ima labentis situs. Unde et ab Hotheni Lanthotheni dictus: Lan enim locus ecclesiasticus sonat. Exquisitius tamen dici potest, The more correct name of Llantoni. quod propria loci illius nuncupatio Kambrice est Nanthotheni. Nant etenim rivus dicitur aquæ decurrentis: unde et usque hodie ab accolis locus iste lingua Kambrica Landewi Nanthotheni vocatur, hoc est, ecclesia David³ super rivum Hotheni.

Corrupte igitur Angli Lanthotheni dicunt: ubi vel Nanthotheni, per N et t, id est, rivus⁴ Hotheni, vel Lanthotheni, [scilicet]⁵ per L sine t, id est, ecclesia Hotheni, dici deberet.

Pluviæ⁶ quas montana creant hic creberrimæ, venti

¹ Lanthonei] D. Rd. ; Lanthodheni, R. B. Llantoni abbey in Monmouthshire.

² Hotheni] D. ; Hodheni, R. B. ; and so generally.

³ David] R. B. Hc. Rd. ; Davidis, D. Landewi Nanthotheni is Llanddewi Nant Honddu of Welsh writers.

⁴ rivus] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc. has "vallis" instead.

⁵ scilicet] D. Not in R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden.

⁶ Pluviæ] Hc. D. Rd. ; pluviæ vero, R. B.

pervalidi, nebulae sub bruma fere continuæ. Et tamen aeris, quanto obtusioris tanto benignioris et elementioris, salubri¹ temperantia, morbi rarissimi.

69. Adeo quidem² ut fratres apud filiam, diutino labore consumpti et desperabiliter afflicti, tanquam ad salubre remedium et unicum sospitatis asyllum, ad matris ubera translati, optatæ sanitati restituantur. Nam Vol. v. 71. sicut Hibernica Topographia nostra³ testatur, quanto ad euri partes magis acceditur, tanto cœli faciem quo purior et subtilior, tanto penetrabilior et inclementior aer illustrat. Quanto vero ad circii zephyrique fines magis vergitur, occiduam temperiem quo nubilosior et obtusior, tanto benignior atque salubrior aura fecundat.

Hic claustrales, in claustro sedentes, cum respirandi gratia forte suspiciunt, ad quascunque partes trans alta tectorum culmina, montium vertices quasi cœlum tangentes, et ipsas⁴ plerumque feras, quarum hic copia, in summo pascentes, tanquam in ultimo visus horizonte prospiciunt. Hora vero diei quasi circa primam, vel parum ante,⁵ super montium cacumina vix emergens, etiam sereno tempore, corpus hic solare primo conspicitur.

Vere locus contemplationi idoneus, locus felix et amœnus, locus a primæva institutione sibi sufficiens et fecundus; nisi ob Anglicani luxus opulentiam, et lautæ mensæ gloriam, ambitiosa quadam intemperantia, vitio quoque ingratitude invalescente, in servitutum quæ libera fuerat, prælatorum pariter et patronorum⁶ negligentia, jam redacta, non minus invade quam invade matrem filia facta privigna supplantasset.

This abbey now supplanted by the daughter near Gloucester.

¹ salubri] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; salubris, D.

² This section, Adeo quidem . . . fecundat, in Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

³ nostra] D. Rd. Not in Hc.

⁴ et ipsas] D.; ipsas, Rd.; ipsasque, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁵ circa primam vel parum ante] D. Rd.; inter primam et tertiam, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁶ pariter et patronorum] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

Hic autem mihi notabile videtur, quod priores omnes, locum de quo loquimur adversantes, flagellati divinitus occubuere. Prior Guillelmus, qui prius armentis et armariis locum spoliavit, demum dejectus a fratribus et depositus, inter priores sepulturam non meruit. Clemens vero, qui quanquam locum, lectionis et orationis gratia, diligere et frequentare videretur, tamen ad exemplum Hely sacerdotis, quoniam diripientium et delinquentium fratrum errorem nec reprehendit nec repressit, paralytica passione percussus interiit. Rogerus autem, qui plus ceteris locum infestans, et cuncta quæ ab aliis relicta videbantur palam asportans, libris, ornamentis, et privilegiis ecclesiam ex toto privavit, longe ante obitum paralytim incurrens, et honori¹ cedens, diutino languore consumptus, vitam pariter et valetudinem terminavit.

Punishment of the priors who plundered it.

69 b.

Tempore vero Anglorum regis Henrici primi, matre florente tam rerum affluentia quam religione famosissima, quæ tamen duo comitantia raro reperies, filia quippe matris æmula nondum genita, utinam et ab ævo non gignenda, Rogerum Salisburiensem episcopum, principalem regni tunc sub rege rectorem, huc fama tantæ religionis attraxit. Virtus enimvero est, virtutem diligere vel in altero; et magnum innatæ bonitatis indicium, ipsa quæ necdum vitaveris vitia animi iudicio devovere. Hic, cum aliquamdiu loci naturam, eremiticam solitudinem, fratrum ibidem canonice viventium, Deoque servientium sine querela, sanctam et sine murmure conversationem, in singulis admirans considerasset, reversus ad regem, relatisque quæ ibi repererat relatione dignis, cum maximam diei partem in loci præscripti titulos expendisset, tandem in hoc verbo laudis præconia consummavit: "Quid," inquit, "plura? Totus tam regis quam regni thesaurus soli

Bishop Roger of Salisbury's admiration of Llan-toni.

¹ honori] Hc. D. Rd.; honorem, R. B.

“ claustrum erigendo non sufficeret.” Cum itaque tam regis quam curiæ totius animos in hujus verbi stuporem diutius suspendisset, tandem de montium claustris, quibus undique vallantur, ænigma sermonis exposuit.

The first founder;

Miles autem, cui nomen Guillelmus, qui primus loci illius¹ inventor fuit et cultor, necnon et presbyter Ernisius, qui se socium ei statim adjunxerat,² quoniam juxta Ieronimi sententiam forsitan audierant, sicut et³ in Vitis Patrum legitur, Christi ecclesiam postquam crevit possessionibus decrevisse virtutibus, de vitiis pariter et divitiis incrementa sumendo, devotis ad Dominum orationibus in publica audientia sæpius efflagitare solebant, ut nunquam ad magnas possessionum opulentias locus iste perveniret: quoties imprimis seu domini et patroni sui Hugonis de Lacy primi et primævi, seu aliorum fidelium largitione, tam terris quam beneficiis ecclesiasticis cœpit locus hic locupletari, dolentes valde.

70. and patron.

Plurima quoque, tam in prædiis quam ecclesiis in primis oblata, paupertatis amore respuerunt. Et in eremo positi, ne ab eremitica vita recederent,⁴ loci condensa, quibus in hispidam silvam vallis excreverat, in planitiem redigi et extirpari non permiserunt. Unde et effectum est ut quam cito in immensum ditari cœperant et dotari, statim per Herefordiæ comitem Milonem, hostilitatis tamen tempore occasionem præstante, filia apud Gloverniam æmula matris emerit; tanquam divina providentia, meritis quoque sanctorum virorum et precibus,⁵ quorum hic corpora duorum coram principali altari recondita jacent, in superfluis

Milo, earl of Hereford, founder of the daughter near Gloucester.

¹ illius] D. Rd.; istius, R. B. Not in Hc.

² adjunxerat] D. Rd.; adjunxit, R. B. Hc.

³ et] R. B. Hc. Rd. Not in D., Camden.

⁴ vita recederent] B. Hc. D. Rd.; “discederent” only, without “vita,” in R. F.

⁵ et precibus] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc.

rerum excrementis filia fundaretur, in laudabili quam semper appetiit mediocritate matre manente.¹

Ibi igitur activi resideant, hic contemplativi. Ibi terrestrium ambitus divitiarum, hic cœlestium amor deliciarum. Ibi frequentiam habeant populorum, hic præsentiam appetant angelorum. Ibi mundi potentes suscipiantur, hic Christi pauperes reficiantur. Ibi, inquam, actiones perstrepanit et declamationes, hic vero lectiones obmurmurent et orationes. Ibi vitiorum nutrix atque creatrix cum curis crescat et opulentia; hic virtutis alumna, mediocritas aurea, suppetat, et moderantia.

Utrunque tamen, tam hic quam ibi, quæ aliis hodie cunctis præeminet ordinibus, ab Augustino instituta canonica servatur disciplina. Benedicti namque regulam, in primæva paupertate laudatissimam, rerum opulentia postmodum fervore caritatis plurimum adaucta, et fidelium largitione multiplicata, sub pravæ² dispensationis obtentu crapula jugis et copia corruerunt.³ Cisterciensis autem ordo, spontaneo pristinae paupertatis et sanctitatis desiderio nuper a priore derivatus, in primis similiter digne laudari meruit et extolli: donec iterum cæca malorum mater obrepsit ambitio, nescia successibus modum ponere. Quoniam, ut ait Seneca, "Facit quidem avidos nimia felicitas: nec tam temperatæ cupiditates unquam, ut in eo quod contingit desinant. Gradus a magnis ad majora fit; et spes improbissimas amplectuntur insperata assecuti."⁴ Cui et illud Ovidii concordare videtur;

"Luxuriant animi rebus plerumque secundis:
"Nec facile est æqua commoda mente pati."

Comparison of the monastic orders: the Austin canons the best. Benedictine wealth, &c. Cistercian avarice.

70 b.

De Clementia, i. 1.

Ov. Ars Am. ii. 437.

¹ manente] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; remanente, D.

² pravæ] B. Hc. D. Rd., Camden; pravo, R. F.

³ corruerunt] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; eruperunt, D.

⁴ assecuti] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden, with Seneca; consecuti, D. Just before, Seneca has "complectuntur," instead of the amplectuntur of Giraldus.

tris rura, quanquam revera in se largissima, singula tamen, vitio mentis insatiabili, videntur angusta. Ideoque terræ occupantur, termini transponuntur, fines invaduntur: unde et nundinæ mercimoniis, et fora litigiis, et curiæ replentur querimoniis. De talibus autem in Isaia legitur; “Væ vobis qui conjungitis Is. v. 8.
 “ domum ad domum, et agrum agro copulatis usque “ ad terminum loci. Numquid habitabitis soli vos in “ medio terræ?” Si ergo sic invehitur propheta in eos qui usque ad terminum, quid in illos dicetur, qui longe ultra terminos? His igitur ex causis et similibus effectum est, ut veræ religionis color optimus adeo in falsitatis fucum sit jam conversus, adeo nigri interiorius mores candidis velantur operimentis, adeo, inquam,¹ 71.
 interioris olim habitus

“ Qui color albus erat nunc est contrarius albo,” Ov. Met. ii. 541.

ut de his illud evangelicum vere videatur impletum; “Attendite ab his qui veniunt ad vos in vestimentis Matt. vii. 15.
 “ ovium, intrinsecus autem sunt lupi rapaces.”

Tantæ tamen, et tam declamatæ per orbem aviditatis, bona, ut credimus, occasionem præstat intentio. Hospitalitatis namque gratia, quam hujus ordinis viri, quanquam in se abstinentissimi, præ aliis cunctis, caritate largiflua in pauperes et peregrinos infatiganter Good intention, perhaps, at the bottom of the Cistercian avidity.
 exercent; et quia non redditibus, ut alii, sed labore solum et providentia vivunt; terras tanto conamine, quibus ad hæc peragenda sufficientiam eliciant, avidè perquirunt, prædiaque summopere petunt et pascua lata. Verumtamen ad reprimendam et removendam ab ordine sacro detestandam ambitionis notam, utinam illud Salomonis interdum ad animum revocare velint; “ Qui facit elemosynam² de substantia pauperis, tan-

¹ inquam] D. Rd. ; inquam et, R.
 B. Hc.

The Vulgate has (Ecclus. xxxiv. 24), “ Qui offert sacrificium ex sub-stantia pauperum, quasi qui vic-timat filium in conspectu patris “ sui.”

Gregory. "quam si filium victimet in conspectu patris." Et Ambrose. "sita." [Item¹ et illud Ambrosii; "Qui male accipit
 "ut bene dispenset, gravatur potius quam juvatur."
 Rom. iii. 8. Tales enim cum Apostolo dicere videntur, "Faciamus "mala ut veniant bona." Scriptum est enim, "Talis
 "debet esse misericordia quæ suscipiatur, non quæ
 "repellatur; quæ peccata purget, non quæ reum
 "faciat ante Dominum; de justis laboribus tuis, non
 "de rebus alienis." Audi Salomonem dicentem;
 "Honora Dominum de tuis justis laboribus."² Quid dicturi sunt qui aliena rapiunt, et elemosynas fecerunt? O Domine, in nomine tuo misericordias fecimus, pauperes pavimus, nudos vestivimus, peregrinos hospitio recepimus. Quibus dicturus est Dominus; Quod dedistis dicitis, quod fecistis rapinam non dicitis:
 quos pavistis memoratis, et quos necastis non recordamini.]

Richard I.
and Fulco.

Exemplum³ autem de responso Ricardi regis Anglo-rum, facto magistro Fulconi viro bono et sancto, per quem Deus in Francorum regno nostris diebus multa proculdubio signa fecit, et hic interserere præter rem non putavi. Cum inter cetera vir ille sanctus regi dixisset; "Tres filias habetis, quæ quamdiu penes vos
 "fuerint, nunquam Dei gratiam habere poteritis; super-
 "biam scilicet, luxuriam, et cupiditatem." Cui rex, post modicam quasi pausationem, "Jam," inquit,
 "maritavi filias istas, et nuptui dedi; Templariis
 "superbiam, nigris monachis luxuriam, albis vero cu-
 "piditatem."

[Id etiam⁴ pro valde mirando, de loco præscripto

¹ Item, &c.] Hence to end of section, recordamini, not in R. B.
 He. D. In Rd., Camden.

² The Vulgate has (Prov. iii. 9),
 "Honora Dominum de tua sub-stantia."

³ This section, Exemplum cupiditatem, in D. Rd. Not in R.
 B. He.

⁴ This section, Id etiam . . . reperiuntur, not in R. B. He. D. In Rd. and Camden.

Lanthei dicto, vel potius quasi¹ pro miraculo duximus, quod in summis quibus clauditur undique montium verticibus, non petrosis aut saxosis, sed mollibus magis² et herbosis, Parii lapides reperiri soleant; qui et Liberi vulgo dicuntur, quia secabiles, ferroque quodam modo polibiles, sese quasi liberaliter præstant; ex quibus ecclesia ipsorum jam extat egregie constructa. Super quo quidem et hoc mirandum, quod quæsitis ad unguem per montana lapidibus illis, et ex toto prorsus abstractis, nullisque relictis qui reperiri ibidem amplius possent, infra tertium aut quartum diem iterum requisiti, tanquam dono seipsos offerentes, et se quærentibus ostendentes, in³ copiosa multitudine reperiuntur.]

The Parian, or Free-stone, of Llan-toni.

De duobus tamen ordinibus istis,⁴ Cluniacensi scilicet et Cisterciensi, hoc compertum habeas. Locum ædificiis egregie constructum, redditibus amplis et possessionibus locupletatum, istis hodie tradas; inopem in brevi destructumque videbis. Illis e diverso eremum nudam, et hispidam silvam assignes: intra paucos postmodum annos, non solum ecclesias et ædes insignes, verum etiam possessionum copias, et opulentias multas ibidem invenies.⁵ Hanc autem diversitatem, ut mihi videtur, morum diversitas parit et studiorum. Ut enim, salva utrorumque venia, veritati non parcam, illinc sobrietas juvat, parcimonia pariter et providentia; hinc vero voracitas obest, ventris ingluvies et intemperantia. Illi namque,⁶ tanquam apes, in unum congerunt omnes et congregant, unanimitate conspicui; uno omnium existente loculo, et illo bene disposito. Isti vero congesta diutius, et devota fidelium largitione collata, diversis distrahunt animis et diripiunt

The Cluniacs and Cistercians compared.

71 b.

¹ quasi] Camden. Not in Rd.

² magis] Rd.; potius, Camden.

³ in] Rd. Not in Camden.

⁴ istis] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He.

⁵ invenies] D. Rd., Camden; abundanter invenies, R. B. He.

⁶ namque] He. D. Rd.; nempe, indesinenter;¹ multis existentibus et multorum loculis, quibus dum studiosius singuli tanquam propriis indulgent, minus proficitur in commune: quoniam, ut ait Jug. 10. Salustius, "Concordia parvæ res crescunt, discordia "[vero]² maximæ dilabuntur." Præterea isti,³ de decem ferculis vel tredecim, quæ sibi de consuetudinis solo jure deberi contendunt, ingruente famis inedia, priusquam unum ad tempus intermitterent, terras domus suæ et prædia magna distrahi penitus et in perpetuum alienari permetterent; pauperes quoque catervatim ad januas occumbere, et fame deficere, non miserendo sustinerent. Illi vero, sicut et canonici, priusquam pauperem unum enormiter egere conspicerent, duorum quibus fere solis utuntur pulmentariorum altero zelo caritatis abstinerent.

R. B.

His autem nostris diebus, ut tanquam a niveo corpore nævus abstergatur, in Cisterciensi capitulo statutum est, ne ab hoc unquam in posterum ordine, pretio quolibet, prædia vel pascua comparentur; tantum illa de cetero sufficiant, quæ⁴ gratis obveniunt, et absque gravamine conferuntur.

The Austin
canons.

72.

Prædictus igitur ordo canonicus, plus aliis mediocritate contentus atque modestia, etsi non plene, plurimum tamen ambitioni stringit habenas; et in mundo positus, mundi pro posse contagia vitans, nec crapula

¹ indesinenter] Hc. D. Rd.; indeficienter, R. B.

² vero] Not in R. B. Hc. Rd.,
Camden. Not in Sallust. In D.

³ Præterea isti . . . abstinerent] So this section in D. Rd. It is not at all in R. B. In Hc. it is: "Ad hæc et isti, de xiii. vel xiiii. ferculis, quæ sibi de jure consuetudinis deberi contendunt, tempore famis et inediæ priusquam unum remitterent, priusquam numerum minuerent, aut a consuetudine vel in modico recederent, terras

"monasterii meliores et mansiones
"in fœnebrem prædam perditum
"ire, et, quod crudelius est, pau-
"peres ad januas catervatim obire
"permitterent et perire. Illi vero
"arietes omnes et armenta, grano
"deficiente, verum etiam de duobus
"pulmentis, quibus contenti sunt,
"alterum in usum pauperum, ur-
"gente incommodo, laudabili cha-"ritate largiuntur." With this Camden's text generally agrees closely.

⁴ quæ] Hc. D. Rd.; et quæ, R. B.

notabilis nec temulentia, pro luxu rerum sive libidine publicum in populo scandalum incurrere tam verecundatur quam veretur. Sicut in libro quem de ecclesiasticis ordinibus, Deo annuente, scripturi sumus, plenius explicabitur.

Præscriptis igitur in finibus temperatissimis, etsi non omen quoad gazas grande, tragicasque¹ mundi pompas adeptus, juxta usualia tamen vocabula dignitatis obtinui; collateralem et propinquum principali de Brecheniauc castro loculum habens et domicilium, felici quadam mediocritate studiis idoneum atque labori. Quem suis semper deliciis plenum, et æternitatis amicum, Cresi divitiis longe præfero; quin immo cunctis, quæ perire ac præterire possunt, incomparabiliter antepono. Sed ad rem revertamur.

Giraldus's residence near Brecknock, viz., at Llandduw, supra, 20.

[CAP. IV.]

De transitu per Coit² Wroneu et Abergavenni, cum notabilibus suis.

Transivimus inde versus Abergavenni, per arctum illud silvestre quod malum passum de Coit Wroneu, id est, de³ silva Wroneu vocant, nobile cœnobium de Lanthotheni, montibus suis inclusum, a latere sinistro relinquentes. Dicitur autem⁴ Abergavenni castrum eo loco situm, ubi fluvius Gevenni in Oscham cadit. Contigit autem, paulo⁵ post obitum Anglorum regis Henrici primi, nobilem et magnificum virum Ricardum Clarensem,⁶ qui cum honore de Clara Kereticam regi-

Progress to Abergavenny.

Murder of Richard de Clare, A.D. 1136.

¹ tragicasque] Hc. D. Rd., Camden; turgicasque, B.; turgidasque, R. F.

² Coit] D.; Coit, R. B.; i.e. Coet, a wood. Wroneu is the river Gronwy, or Grwyney.

³ de] Hc. D. Not in R. B. Rd.

⁴ autem] B. Hc. D., &c. Not in R. F.

⁵ paulo] R. B. Hc. Rd.; parum, D.

⁶ This Richard was of the elder branch of the Clares, uncle of Richard earl of Striguil, the invader onem in australi Kambria possidebat, ab Anglia in Walliam hac transire. Et cum provinciæ illius tunc dominum, Brienum videlicet Gualinfordensem, cum militibus multis, usque ad passum prædictum socium¹ habuisset et deductorem,² tam ipsum, invitum [tamen],³ in ipso silvæ ingressu cum suis remisit, quam contra ejusdem monita silvam inermis intravit: ex nimia quoque securitatis præsumptione, fidicinem prævium habens, et præcentorem, cantilenæ notulis alternatim in fidicula respondentem. Nec mora. Gualenses qui adventum ejus exploraverant, Iereverdus scilicet Morgani frater de Kairleon⁴ cum eorundem familia, silvosis e latebris irruentes in improvisos, statim ipso cum suorum multis interempto, præda potiti sunt eruentissima.

72 b.

Ex variis itaque patet rerum eventibus, quoniam incauta est semper nimia præsumptio, et sui negligens. Timor enim⁵ prospicere futuris admonet, et diligentiam docet in prosperis: audacia vero præcipitanter obrepit, et inconsulta temeritas nescit consilium ducis expectare.

Sermon at Aberga-venny.

Sermone igitur apud Abergevenni facto, plurimisque ad crucem conversis, vir quidam nobilis partium illarum, cui nomen Arthenus, ad archiepiscopum versus of Ireland, and son of the Gilbert Fitz-Richard to whom Henry I. in 1107 gave the Keretica regio, i.e. Ceredigion (Cardiganshire). See William de Jumièges (Camden, 687), and Brut y Tywysogion, 105. The Brut places his death under 1135; but other authorities, Welsh and English, under 1136, no doubt the right year. Richard of Hexham (Surtees Soc. 73), and John of Hexham (114), erroneously call him Richard Fitz-Roger.

¹ socium] R. B. He. Rd.; socios, D.

² deductorem] D. Rd.; conviatorem, R. B. He.

³ tamen] Not in B. F. He. D.
Rd. In R.

⁴ Kairleon] D.; Kairleun, B.; Kairlueu, R. F. According to the Brut (p. 157), and the Annal.
Kumb., A° 1136, Richard de Clare was slain, not by his brother Ior-werth, but by Morgan ab Owain himself.

⁵ enim] D. Rd.; autem, R. B.
He.

castellum Oschæ jam properantem humiliter accessit; quod ei citius non occurrerat veniam petens. Super crucis itaque susceptione conventus, "Absque amico-rum," inquit, "consilio res hæc fieri non¹ debet." Cui archiepiscopus; "Numquid ergo cum uxore tua habiturus es inde consilium?" At ille vultu demisso verecunde respondit; "Ad aggrediendum," inquit, "opus virile, non est expetendum consilium muliebre." Et statim ab archiepiscopo crucem suscepit.

Super excessibus² autem partium istarum creberrimis et cruentissimis, nunc provincialium in castellanos, nunc vice versa, vindicis animi talionibus, castellano-

Murderous excesses in these parts.

¹ non] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

² Instead of this section, Super excessibus . . . machinator, of Hc. D. Rd., Camden, the first edition of the treatise, as in R. B. F., has as follows :

"Facta est autem his nostris diebus in prædicto Abergavenni castro detestanda proditio; et proditionis, notabili eventu, digna divinitus est ultio subsecuta. Sub castellano namque loci illius, et provinciæ dominatore prænotato, Guillelmo de Breusa Guillelmi filio, nobiliores terræ illius et principales viri septem, Seisillus scilicet Davenaldi filius et alii sex, sub pacis obtentu, sacramentali quoque præstita securitatis cautione, intra oppidi ejusdem claustra sunt convocati. Et statim irruentes armati milites in inermes, quanquam Guillelmo nec assensu præsentis nec assensu, desuper tamen data sententia, subito cruenti carnifices in gladii furore perimunt universos. Et sic exeuntes in equis cursoribus, quoscunque peremptorum propinquos et amicos invenire poterant

"morti dederunt. Necnon et filium Seisilli, puerum nobilem vix septennem, et Resi principis ex sorore nepotem, ferro intra matris brachia confoderunt. Indeque per terras eorum totas discurrentes, præda potiti sunt infinita."

This slaughter took place in 1175. Giraldus's "Seisillus Davenaldi filius" was Seisyll ab Dyrnwal of Gwent Ucheoed. Just before, he had accompanied prince Rhys to Henry II.'s court at Gloucester, and had returned with him in peace and favour. Brut, 227; Benedict. Abb. I., 92. Seisyll's wife was Gwladus, sister of prince Rhys, and the son murdered in her arms was named Cadwalader: another son, Gruffudd, had already been slain, with his father and other chieftains of Gwent, in Abergavenny castle (Brut). Welsh authorities lay the guilt of these treacherous murders on William de Breusa; Diceto (col. 587) is express to the same effect, but makes out that some excuse for him was to be found in the previous murder of his uncle, Henry de Hereford, by the Welsh chieftains.

rum in provinciales, quæ nostris accidere temporibus, aliis explicare materiam damus. Ultimi tamen excessus enormis, cædisque cruentæ, nostris diebus hic perpetrata, quam præterire tamen, ne scelerosis in exemplum trahi possit, satius existimavi, vere auctor extiterat Anglorum rex Henricus secundus; vicecomes autem Herefordiæ, Ranulphus Poerius, machinator.

Sed quanquam turpi ex causa temporalis interdum sequi commoditas videatur, justi tamen iudicis libramine, pœna sceleris etsi differtur, vel in tempore vel post tempora non evitatur; juxta illud poetæ,

Ov. 1 Am.
x. 48.

“Non habet eventus sordida præda bonos.”

73. Cum enim, septennali jam spatio, in partibus illis pax secuta fuisset tranquillissima, tandem interemptorum nepotes et filii, ex pueris adulti, [et]¹ ex parvis interim majores effecti, ira vindice deferventes, captata domini absentia, intra fruticosa castris ejusdem fossata, cum manu non invalida, se in insidiis nocte contulerunt. Dixerat autem unus eorum, cui nomen Seisillus filius Eudas,² constabulario, die præcedente, quasi præmuniendo, sub risu tamen et ludicro magis quam serio; “Hic,” inquit, “hac nocte intrabimus;” ostendens muri ipsius angulum quemdam, ubi demissior esse³ videbatur. Sed quoniam

Hor. 1 Ser.
i. 24.

“Ridendo⁴ dicere verum

“Quis⁴ vetat?”

et quoniam

Ov. Met.
iv. 428.

“Fas est ab hoste doceri;”

constabularius, cum familia tota, noctem illam in armis et vigiliis usque ad auroram duxit insomnem. Sed cum demum labore fatigati, et imminentis diei bene-

¹ et] Not in R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden. In D.

² Eudas] D.; Ewedas, R. B.

³ esse] Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

⁴ Horace has “Ridentem” and “Quid.”

ficio securitatem adepti, somno se cuncti dedissent, statim hostes, per scalas quas congesserant, loco prænotato se muris ingerentes, captis constabulario et uxore sua cum aliis multis, præter turrem principalem et paucos qui in ipsam aufugerant, violenter occupant et incendunt¹ universa: justo Dei iudicio, eo quo delictum est loco perpetratum, pœna delicti ex parte secuta.²

Præterea,³ parum post castri prædicti prodicionem, cum juxta Monemutam prædictus Herefordiæ vicecomes, Abergavenny castle taken by the Welsh.

Ralph Poer defeated, and killed.

¹ et incendunt] D. Rd. Not in R. D. He.

² ex parte secuta] He. D. Rd.; subsecuta, R. B.

³ Præterea . . castrum erigeret] Instead of these two or three lines of He. D. Rd., Camden, the first edition, as in R. B. F., has as follows:

“Præ cunctis enimvero Kambriæ castris, tali locus hic turpitudine longe frequentius est maculatus. Sicut nostris primo temporibus a Gualtero comitis Milonis filio, et viri præscripti avunculo, simile facinus constat ibidem perpetratum, et similem quoque vindictam statim divinitus subsecutam.

“Nec a re tantum prænotatum Guillelmum, sed a spe maxima eadem certum est occasione decidisse. Cum enim ad curiam regio mandato tunc temporis vocatus fuisset, totius australis Kambriæ regimen a rege suscepturus, fama eventus hujus audita, rex indignans ipsum illico vacuum ad sua confusumque remisit. Accidit etiam ad vindictæ cumulum, quia nunquam sola veniunt scandala, ut multiplicata pœna facinoris, honorem et omen quod in marchie finibus ante habuerat vix “ unquam postea recuperaret. Hæc est enim rerum natura mutabilium, ut soli plerumque accidere soleant fortunæ favores, sed infortunia nunquam. Unde et a quodam sapiente dictum est:

“ ‘Sola venire solent, et vix, et sero secunda; Gir. Camb. i. 354.

“ ‘Et simul et subito semper amara fluunt.’

“Tanti tamen et tam horrendi sceleris, ut diximus, nec excogitator hic fuerat nec machinator. Rannulfus namque Poerius, tunc Herefordiæ vicecomes, regem Henricum secundum ad hoc induxerat, ut ipse Guillelmi patruo Philippo de Breusa distinctissime id faciendum injunxisset. Quod et ille, quoniam hujuscemodi vir erat naturæ, gaudens excepit. Guillelmus vero, quanquam ei inimicissimi fuissent, pnta qui avunculum ejusdem, virum magnificum Henricum Herefordensem, paulo ante hostiliter interemissent, cum lacrimis tamen, dolore maximo, et anxietate, violenter ad hoc compulsus, in castro suo id fieri vix tandem et valde invitatus admisit. Unde et in verum tanti facinoris auctorem et

videlicet apud Landinegath,¹ cum exercitu Herefordiæ castrum erigeret, nocte quadam, cum² adhuc tenuiter tenebras exuere cœpisset

Virg. Geor.
i. 447.

“Titoni croceum linquens Aurora cubile,” summo superveniente diluculo, tam Quintæ quam vicinarum gentium³ juventute, cum interemptorum adulta⁴ jam prole, non præoccupati, non desubitati, non adventus hujus ignari, quinimmo præscii potius et præmuniti, armati quoque et in turmas ordinati, statim tamen sunt confecti; et inter propria jam fossata repulsi, de potioribus et primis Herefordensis provinciæ militaribus viris cum ipso novem, præter alios multos, lanceis ibidem sunt confossi.

73 b.

De Ranulpho tamen hoc mirandum, quod præter vulnera quæ letaliter in corpore suscepit plurima, cum ferro quoque jugulatus fuisset, venis omnibus et arteriis cum via spiritus et halitus organo pariter præcisis, sacerdotem tamen annuens et asciscens, aliquo revera anteactæ vitæ merito id exigente, eoque præcipue, ut⁵ creditur, quod in sortem Christi electos præ aliis honorare consueverat et venerari,⁶ facta confessione, et viatico devote percepto, statim spiritum exhalavit. Frequens enim est, et creberrimis declaratum experimentis, quod sicut debito clerum honore dignantes sacerdotali in extremis solatio ex consuetudine gaudent,

“ machinatorem Rannulfum, parum “ post castri prædicti prodicionem, “ longe gravior vindicta divinitus
“ est subsequuta. - Cum enim juxta “ Monemutam, videlicet apud Lan-“ digenat, cum exercitu Herefordiæ
“ castrum erigeret,” &c.

¹ Landinegath] D. ; Landigenat, R. B. ; Llaningad, or Dingatstow, near Monmouth. This defeat of the English, and death of Ralph Poer, took place in 1182. See Brut, sub anno, and Ben. Abb. I. 288.

² cum] Hc. D. Rd. ; dum, R. B.

³ gentium] D. Rd. ; partium, R. B. Hc. Guinta is Gwent, the district between the Usk and the Wye, now part of Monmouthshire.

⁴ adulta] R. B. Rd., Camden. Not in D. The passage corrupt in Hc.

⁵ ut] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden ; quod, D.

⁶ et venerari] Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

sic, e diverso, cleri derisores et malignos delatores eodem solatio frequentissime fraudari videbis optato.

Guillelmus¹ autem de Breusa, qui vere non auctor sceleris, quod potius tacere decrevimus quam exprimere, non machinator extiterat, sed vel executor, vel executionis non impeditor, carnificum turbis mandato desuper accepto atrociter desævientibus, eodem conflictu in inum fossæ præruptæ est præcipitatus, ibique ab hostibus, et viris inimicissimis captus et extractus; vivus tamen, divina miseratione, per impetum subito a suis factum, et omnino illæsus evasit.

Ex quo patet, quia minus offendit, mitiusque punitur, invitus qui facit, fierive² permittit, quam qui facto consilium simul et auctoritatem adhibuit. Quod³ in Christi passione palam fuit; ubi et Judas suspensio, Judæi excidio pariter et exterminio, Pylatus exilio pœnas luit.

Prædicto vero de rege, qui proditio assensum præbuit, et præceptum fecit, qualiter ob hoc, et alia multa enormis vitæ delicta, sicut in libro De Principis instructione Deo duce propalabimus,⁴ ad ampliorem ignominie cumulum, etiam in terris pœnas inchoavit, confusione plenus et ærumna, finis ejusdem declaravit.

¹ Guillelmus . . . desævientibus] So D. Rd., Camden. Instead of it, R. B. have: "Prædictus vero Guillelmus de Breusa, qui vere non auctor sceleris nec executor extiterat, sed tantum executionis non impeditor." And Hc. has: "Guillelmus autem de Breusa, qui vere non auctor sceleris, non machinator extiterat, nec executor, sed tamen executionis non impeditor."

² fierive] Hc. D. Rd.; vel fieri, R. B.

³ Quod] D. Rd.; quod et, R. B. Hc.

⁴ Deo duce propalabimus] D. Rd.; "propalavimus" only, in R. B.; propalabimus, Hc. It seems curious that Giraldus should thus speak of the publication of his treatise De Princ. Instr. as a past event in the earlier edition of the Itin., and as a future one in the later editions. He elsewhere tells us, indeed, that the De Princ. Instr. was amongst the first treatises that had employed his pen, but adds that it was "inter ultimos propalatus." Vol i. 423; iii. 334.

The men of Gwent warlike:
their great skill in the use of the bow.

74.

Hoc autem mihi notabile videtur, quod gens hæc, quæ Guintæ gens vocatur, et martiis conflictibus usitatissima, et strenuitatis opera laudatissima, et arte sagittifera præ ceteris Walliæ finibus instructissima reperitur. Ad hujus autem assertionis ultimæ certitudinem, exempla proponere pauca non pigeat. In prætaxata castri prodicione, militibus duobus in turrim, cumulato terrarum aggere sitam, per pontem transfugientibus, Gualenses, ut ipsos a tergo percuterent, sagittas arcu mittentes, portam turris iliceam, palmalis fere spissitudinis, transpenetrarunt; ad tantorum ictuum vehementiæ perpetuam memoriam, sagittis in porta ferro repercusso reservatis.

Accidit et tempore Guillelmi de Breusa, ipso testante, quemdam militem suum, in conflictu contra Gualenses, a quodam ipsorum per mediam coxam, cum panno loriciæ ac¹ ocreali ferro utrinque vestitam, sagitta percussum esse; eadem quoque sagitta per partem illam sellæ, quæ Alva vocatur, usque in ipsum equum letaliter transpenetrante. Alia quoque sagitta militis alterius coxam, ferro similiter utrinque munitam cum panno loriciæ, usque in sellam perforavit. Et cum miles ille loris equum in gyrum flecteret, alia sagitta, eodem contorquente, in opposita coxa similem ictum suscepit, equo ab utraque parte firmiter affixus. Quod igitur a balista² tormentum majus expectes? Non autem arcu utuntur corneo, non alburneo, non taxeo: solum ex ulmellis silvestribus arcus formant, non formosos, non politos, immo rudes prorsus et informes; rigidos tamen et fortes: non tantum³ ad eminus missilia mittenda, sed etiam ad graves cominus ictus percutiendo tolerandos. Sed a diverticulo iter⁴ iterum aggrediamur.

¹ ac] D. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden. Rd. is here corrupt.

² a balista] D. Rd.; ab arcubalista, R. B.; ab arcu balistæ, Hc.

³ tantum] R. B.; tamen, Hc. D. Rd. corrupt.

⁴ iter] Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. B.

[CAP. V.]

De transitu per Oschæ castrum, et Legionum urbem, cum notabilibus suis.

Igitur apud Oschæ castrum, tam ad archiepiscopi sermonem, quam ad viri boni et honesti Guillelmi Landavensis episcopi, qui per suam diocesim nobis fideliter astitit, persuasionem, Alexandro quoque Bangorensis¹ ecclesiæ archidiacono ubique ad Gualenses interprete existente, multitudo virorum cruce signatur. Ubi et hoc præcipue notabile occurrit, quod famosissimi partium illarum malefactores, homicidæ, prædones, et fures, non absque multorum admiratione sunt conversi.

Sermon at Usk.

74 b.

Transeuntes inde per Kaerleun,—Munemutæ castrum, nobilemque Danubiæ silvam, quæ ferinam ferrique copiam Glovernæ ministrat, trans Waiam, citraque Sabrinam, longe a læva relinquentes,—in Novoburgo, ter Oschæ² flumine jam transcurso, pernoctavimus. Dicitur autem Kaerleun Legionum urbs. Kaer enim Britannice urbs vel castrum dicitur. Solent quippe legiones, a Romanis in insulam missæ, ibi hiemare; et inde Urbs Legionum dicta est. Erat autem hæc urbs antiqua et authentica, et a Romanis olim coctilibus muris egregie constructa. Videas hic multa pristinæ nobilitatis adhuc vestigia; palatia immensa, aureis olim tectorum fastigiis Romanos fastus imitantia, eo quod a Romanis principibus primo constructa, et ædificiis egregiis illustrata fuissent; turrim giganteam, thermas insignes, templorum reliquias, et loca theatralia; egregiis muris partim adhuc exstantibus omnia clausa. Reperies ubique, tam intra murorum ambitum quam extra, ædificia subterranea, aquarum ductus, hypogeos-

Thence to Caerleon, and Newport.

Caerleon built by the Romans.

Many remains of its ancient magnificence.

¹ Bangorensis] D.; Bangornen-
sis, B.; Bagornensis, R. F. ² Oschæ] D.; Oschæ, B. F.; Oschæ, R.

que meatus. Et quod inter alia notabile censui, stuphas undique videas miro artificio consertas; lateralibus quibusdam et præangustis spiraculi viis occulte calorem exhalantibus.

The martyrs Julius and Aaron rest here. Their churches in former times.

75.
Amphibalus a native of Caerleon.

Jacent hic duo nobiles, et post Albanum et Amphibalum præcipui Britanniae majoris protomartyres, et ibidem martyrio coronati, Julius scilicet et Aaron: quorum uterque ecclesiam in urbe insignem habebat, suo nomine decoratam. Tres enim egregiae in hac urbe antiquis temporibus fuerant ecclesiae: una Julii martyris, virgineo Deo dicatarum choro venustata: altera vero, beati Aaron socii ejusdem nomine fundata, et canonicorum ordine præclaro nobilitata: tertia vero metropolitana sede Kambriae totius insignita. Fuit et Amphibalus hinc oriundus, beati Albani doctor, et fidelis ad fidem informator. Situs urbis egregius, super Oschæ flumen; navigio, mari influente, idoneum. Silvis et pratis urbs illustrata. Hic magni illius Arthuri famosam curiam legati adiere Romani. Ubi et Dubritius archiepiscopus David Menevensi cessit honorem; abhinc Meneviam metropolitana sede translata, juxta illud Merlini Ambrosii, "Menevia pallio Urbis Legio-
" num induetur,"¹ et cetera.

Goldcliff. Non procul inde stat rupis marina, Sabrinis supereminens fluctibus, quæ Anglorum lingua Goldclive vocatur, hoc est, rupis aurea; eo quod aurei coloris saxa præferat sole repercussa, miro fulgore rutulantia.

"Nec mihi de facili fieri persuasio posset,
"Quod frustra tantum² dederit natura nitorem
"Saxis, quodque suo fuerit flos hic sine fructu;"

si foret, qui venas ibidem, et penitima terræ viscera, arte prævia transpenetraret; si foret, inquam, qui de argumentando de præteritis, argute futura conjectat,¹ sic et, indiciis haud dissimilibus, hominibus insidiando, interiorem mentis conceptum per exteriora² quandoque perpendit.

¹ induetur] R. B. He. Rd., Camden; decorabitur, D. "Indnetur" is the reading in Merlin's prophecies.

² frustra tantum] He. D. Rd., Camden; frustra tatum, B.; frustratura, R.; frustratum, F.

The incubus demon in Nether Gwent.

Fuit et in³ eodem tempore, in Wintæ finibus inferioris, dæmon incubus, qui puellam quandam adamando, locumque ubi ipsa manebat frequentando, cum hominibus loquebatur, et tam occulta quam futura pluries indicabat. Interrogatus autem inde⁴ Meilerius, se hunc bene nosse dicebat, et nomen ejus proponebat. Dicebat etiam contra guerram, patriæque turbationem magnam, spiritus hujusmodi cum hominibus conversari solere: sicut et hic apparuit: quia paulo post partes illæ, per Hoelum filium Iereverdi de Urbe Legionum,⁵ provinciam totam graviter infestantem, destructæ sunt.

Meiler's prophetic assurances to Howel ab Iorwerth.

Eadem vero tempestate, cum Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, capto Albania rege,⁵ regnum subito pacificasset, prædictus Hoelus, per guerram quam fecerat, regiam plurimum timens ultionem, hujusmodi a Meilerio in majori angustia consolationis verba suscepit: "Ne timeas," inquit, "Hoele, regis indignationem; quoniam ad alias eum partes intendere oportebit. Urbs etenim melior, quam in transmarinis habet, jam a rege Francorum obsidetur. Unde ad partes illas, postpositis omnibus aliis,⁶ quanta poterit festinatione transibit." Cujus eventum rei, urbe Rothomagensi obsessa,⁷ infra triduum post certis rumoribus Hoelus accepit. Proditionem quoque castelli de Oscha,

¹ conjectat] Hc. Rd., Camden; conjecturat, D.

² per exteriora] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

³ et in] D.; et, Hc.; in, Camden. Not in Rd. at all.

⁴ inde] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

⁵ This devastation of Gwent Iscoed, by Howel ab Iorwerth of Caerleon, was in the autumn of 1173 (Brut, 223). The king of Scotland was taken prisoner in July 1174.

⁶ postpositis omnibus aliis] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

⁷ Henry returned into Normandy August 11, 1174, and drove Louis from before Rouen.

misso, quantæ dignitatis et reverentiæ sacrosancti evangelii liber existat; et super eundem quisquis scienter pejerat, quam periculose et damnabiliter a via veritatis exorbitat.

Ad hæc autem casum abbatis Enoci¹ de Estratmarchel, satis et plusquam satis per Guallias notum, eadem Fall of the abbot of Strata Marcella.
die² ejus nocte contigit multis aperuit: sicut ex dicto ejusdem ab aliis retento, dieque notato, circiter octo dies post certis rumoribus evidenter apparuit.³ Interrogatus autem, quemadmodum sciebat hoc, dicebat dæmonem sub venatoris expediti specie mane ad ipsum venisse; qui statim ruinam abbatis exponendo, qualiter ipsum a monasterio cum moniali aufugere fecerat, quasi de tanta victoria gaudens plurimum et exultans, totum evomuit.

Forte ad correctionem abbatis et humiliationem, hoc ei accidere permissum est. Sicut ex post facto claruit:
quia in brevi reversus, et humilior, eoque melior effectus, nec divertisse dicendus: quia "Non male cadit," ut ait Seneca, "quisquis post lapsum fortior resurgit." Seneca.
Fortior etenim post negationem Petrus; fortior post lapidationem et persecutionem Paulus; et quoniam
"Ubi abundat delictum, ibi superabundabit et gratia," Rom. v. 20.
fortior quoque post fragilitatem Magdalena.

Abbati quoque de Alba domo Kanano,⁴ viro probò Cynan, abbot of Whitland.
76 b.
et religioso, quid de muliere quadam quam aspexerat cogitasset, in aure revelavit. Et statim vir bonus, concupiscentiam illam cum lacrimis fatendo, a tribus sacerdotibus incontinenti disciplinam suscepit. Sicut enim hostis ille antiquus, longis rerum experiētiis et subtilitate naturæ, ex signis quibusdam conjecturalibus

¹ Enoci] This is mentioned in Gem. Eccl. (vol. ii. 248), where the abbot is called Enatus.

² die] Hc. Rd. Not in D.

³ sicut . . . apparuit] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

⁴ Kanano] The death of a Cynan, abbot of Ty Gwyn, i.e. Alba domus, is recorded in Brut. under 1176.

propinquieribus autem, et quasi infra annum futuris, minus falli consueverat. Videbat autem eos fere semper pedites et expeditos, et quasi sub forma venatorum, cornu a collo suspensum habentes, et vere venatores, non ferarum tamen nec animalium sed animarum. Circa monasteria quoque, et loca religiosa, magis eos et in multitudine majori videre solebat. Ibi nimirum exercitu, ibi numerosis opus est viribus, ubi rebellio. Quoties autem falsum coram ipso ab aliquo dicebatur, id statim agnoscebat: videbat enim super linguam mentientis dæmonem quasi salientem et exultantem, Librum quoque mendosum, et vel falso scriptum, vel falsum etiam in se continentem inspiciens, statim, licet illiteratus omnino¹ fuisset, ad locum mendacii digitum ponebat. Interrogatus autem, qualiter hoc nosset, dicebat dæmonem ad locum eundem digitum suum primo porrigere. Similiter et dormitorium monasterii cujuslibet intrando, lectum monachi² falsi, et religionem habitu non animo præferentis, eisdem indiciis ostendebat. Dicebat autem spiritum gulositatis et crapulæ supra et infra sordidum esse; spiritum vero libidinis et luxuriæ pulchriorem aliis, sed foetidissimum.

76.

Contigit³ aliquando, spiritibus immundis nimis eidem insultantibus, ut Evangelium Johannis ejus in gremio poneretur: qui statim tanquam aves evolantes, omnes penitus evanuerunt. Quo sublato postmodum, et Historia Britonum a Galfrido Arthuro tractata, experiendi causa, loco ejusdem subrogata, non solum corpori ipsius toti, sed etiam libro superposito, longe solito crebrius et tædiosius insederunt.

Geoffrey's British History,
and the
evil spirits.

Notandum hic autem quia Barnabas, sicut in legenda ipsius habetur, Evangelium Matthæi super ægros ponebat, et curabantur. Ex quo patet, sicut et ex præ-

¹ omnino] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

² monachi] D. Rd., Camden; monachi cujuslibet, Hc.

³ The two next sections, Contigit . . . exorbitat, not in Hc.

petra mel eliceret, et oleum de saxo. Multa nimirum occulta latent naturæ beneficia, quæ, per incuriam hæcenus incognita, posterorum educet cura propensior et diligentia. Nam sicut antiquos in humanæ vitæ commodis inveniendi viam ipsa necessitas urgens edocuit, sic junioribus industria sedula plurimum contulit, et ingenii perspicacioris acumen multa modernis aperuit. Quoniam, ut ait poeta, duas inventionum istarum causas assignans,

“ Labor omnia vincit
 “ Inprobis, et duris urgens in rebus egestas.”

Virg.
 Georg. i.
 145.

Notandum¹ autem quod in his Urbis Legionum partibus fuit diebus nostris vir quidam Kambrensis, cui nomen Meilerius, futurorum pariter et occultorum scientiam habens; cui talis hanc eventus scientiam dedit. Nocte quadam, scilicet Ramis palmarum, puellam diu ante adamatam, sicut forma præferbat,² obviam habens loco amœno, et ut videbatur opportuno, desideratis amplexibus atque deliciis³ cum indulisset, statim, loco puellæ formosæ, formam quamdam villosam, hispidam et hirsutam, adeoque enormiter deformem invenit, quod in ipso ejusdem aspectu dementire cœpit et insanire. Cumque pluribus id annis ei durasset, tandem in ecclesia Menevensi, meritis sanctorum loci ejusdem, optatam sanitatem recuperavit. Semper tamen cum spiritibus immundis magnam et mirandam familiaritatem habens, eosdem videndo, cognoscendo, colloquendo, propriisque nominibus singulos nominando, ipsorum ministerio plerumque⁴ futura prædicebat. In longe vero futuris atque remotis, sicut et ipsi, frequentius fallebatur: in

Meilyr the Welshman,
 and the
 evil spirits.

75 b.

¹ Notandum, &c.] Rest of this chapter not in R. B. The greater part is in Hc.; all in D. Rd., Camden.

² sicut forma præferbat] D. Rd. Not in Hc., Camden.

³ deliciis] Hc. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

⁴ plerumque] D. Rd., Camden. Not in Hc.

quod Hoelus occupatum detinebat, longe ante prædixit; et dominum suum, Hoelum scilicet, inde præmunivit; se etiam ¹ ibidem tunc vulnerandum, sed non ibidem tunc moriendum, vivumque ab oppido evasurum præcinuit. In hoc solo deceptus; quia sicut amicos hostis ille beare novit, sic suos in fine remunerare consuevit; quia eodem vulnere paulo post letaliter occubuit. 77.

Inter hæc autem omnia admiratione dignissima, hoc solum censui magis admirandum, quod oculis carneis spiritus illos tam aperte videbat: quia spiritus oculis corporalibus, nisi assumptis corporibus, videri non solent. Si vero corpora, ut videri possent, assumpserant, ab aliis quoque præcipue præsentibus et prope positi quomodo videri non poterant?

Sed forte ² corporali visione miraculosa visi sunt hæc.³ Cujusmodi visione rex Balthasar in Daniele ⁴ vidit manum scribentis in pariete, "Mane, Techel, Phares," hoc est, appensum, numeratum, divisum; qui et eadem nocte regnum pariter et vitam amisit. Dan. v. 25.

His autem in finibus, nostrisque diebus, cæco dominandi ambitu, rupto consanguinitatis et consobrinorum fœdere, fides quam enormiter in perfidiam evanuerit, diffuso per Gualliam pravitatis exemplo, Kambria non ignorat.

[CAP. VI.]

De transitu per Novum burgum et Kairdif, cum notabilibus suis.

Apud Novum itaque burgum, ubi Oschæ flumen ab originali de Cantrefbochan fonte descendens in mare Progress from Newport to Cardiff.

¹ se etiam . . . moriendum] D. Rd.; se et ibi esse vulnerandum, sed non letaliter, Hc.; and so Camden, but with "se etiam ibidem" instead of "se et ibi."

² Sed forte . . . amisit] This section not in Hc.

³ hæc] D. Rd.; hi, Camden.

⁴ Daniele] Rd., Camden; Ezechiele, D.

The brook Pencarn, and its ancient ford.

Prophecy of Merlin Silvester.
77 b.

A.D. 1163,
infra ii. 10.
Henry II.'s passage of this brook.

dilabitur, ad crucis obsequia multis allectis, fluvio Renni transcurso, ad nobile super aquam Thaph de Kaerdif castrum pervenimus. Serpit autem in Noviburgi finibus, terra scilicet de Wenloch, rivulus cui nomen Nant Pencarn; non tam aquarum profunditate, quam alvei concavitate, palustrique limositate, non nisi certa per loca vadaque transmeabilis. Habuerat autem antiquitus vadum, cui nomen Red¹ Pencarn, ad quod publica strata ducebat. Sonat autem Latine, Vadum sub capite rupis. Red enim Britannice, vadum Latine; Pen caput; Carn rupis. De quo Merlinus Silvestris mentionem faciens, in hæc verba prorupit; "Cum fortem lentiginosum in dextrales Britones irruere videris, si Red Pencarn transierit, Kambriæ vires noveris enervari."

Contigit autem nostris temporibus, cum Anglorum rex Henricus secundus in Resum Griphini filium arma sumeret, et per maritimam dextralis Kambriæ viam versus Kaermerdyn tenderet, die quo Nant Pencarn transire debuerat, antiqui partium illarum Britones circa prædictum vadum cum summa sollicitudine principis adventum observabant: scituri pro certo, quoniam et fortem noverant et lentiginosum, si vadi transitus concordaverit, de ipso proculdubio vaticinium esse complendum. Cum igitur rex ad prædictam aquam via duce festinasset, et, vaticinali veterique vado dudum obsoleto, ad aliud ejusdem aquæ vadum, quod modernior usus frequentaverat, jam transire parasset,² tubicines et buccinatores quos Cornhiriez³ vocant, ab

¹ Red] D.; Rit, R. B.; Rith, Hc. In modern Welsh, Rhyd, a ford. Nant Pencarn, or the brook of Pencarn, is probably the river Ebwy, which flows about a mile and a half south of Newport. There was an old road by a ford across this river, and three old farmhouses near the ford are still called Great Pencarn, Little Pencarn, and Middle Pencarn (Sir R. C. Hoare).

² parasset] R. B. Hc. Rd.; parassent, D.

³ Cornhiriez] D.; Cornhiriet, R. B.

Hir, quod est longum, et cornu, eo quod longis in cornubus flatum emittant, ex altera vadi ripa, quasi regi exultantes, in ejusdem honore¹ buccinare cœperunt. Unde cum equus, in quo rex sedebat, præ timore tam horribilis et insueti sonitus calcaria respuens, aquam intrare prorsus abnueret, rex, lora regyrans, ad antiquum vadum se conferre ira prævia deproperavit. Quo statim impetuose transcurso, Britones, eo experimento quasi de imminente jam certi exitio, ad propria mœsti sunt reversi.

In castro quoque de Kairdif contigit his nostris diebus res memoratu non indigna. Claudiocestriæ namque comes Guillelmus, Roberti comitis filius, qui cum castro prædicto totam provinciam de Guladmorgan,² id est, terra Morgani, jure hereditario possidebat, cum quodam homine suo, cui nomen Yvor modicus,³ forte guerram habuerat. Erat enim vir staturæ modicæ, sed animositatis immensæ: Guallensium more montana quaedam et silvestria possidens, quæ tamen illi comes vel auferre prorsus vel mutilare contendebat. Nocte igitur quadam, quanquam castrum de Kaerdif, murorum ambitu munitissimum, excubarum multitudine personaret, quanquam⁴ militibus centum et viginti, necnon et arcariis multis,⁵ stipendiaria quoque familia plurima urbs redundaret, inter tot tamen præsidia et securitatis argumenta,⁶ prædictus Yvor, scalis allatis clam muros irrepens, comitem et comitissam, cum

Earl William of Gloucester surprised, and taken prisoner, in Cardiff castle: A.D. 1158.

78.

¹ honore] D. Rd.; honorem, R. B. Hc., Camden.

² Guladmorgan] D.; Wlatmorgan, B.; Waltmorgan, R. F. Gwlad is the Welsh for a province, or territory.

³ Yvor modicus] R. B. D. Rd.; Yvorus, agnomen modicus, Hc.; and so Camden, with "erat" after "modicus." Ivor ab Cedivor, called Ivor Bach (Ivor the little), lord of Senghenydd, a comot of one of the cantreys of Glamorgan. This exploit of his is mentioned in the Margan Annals under 1158.

⁴ quanquam] R. B. D., &c.; quanquam et, Hc.

⁵ arcariis multis] R. B. Hc., Camden; multis aliis, D.; multis, Rd.

⁶ argumenta] Hc. D. Rd., Camden; augmenta, R. B.

"")

parvo quem unicum habebant filio, secum educens ad silvestria perduxit. Nec remisit, donec quicquid ei¹ injuste ablatum fuerat, et ampliora, recuperasset. Testante namque poeta, “ Spectandum est semper ne magna injuria fiat, “ Fortibus et miseris : tollas licet omne quod usquam est

 “ Argenti atque auri, spoliatis arma supersunt.”

A.D. 1172:
 Henry II.'s
 strange warning at Cardiff.

In hoc eodem² oppido de Kaerdif, Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, in reditu ab Hibernia, sabbato primo post Pascha cum pernoctasset, missaque mane, dominica scilicet, jam audita, cum a capella³ Sancti Pyrami præter regem omnes exissent, ipso in orationibus plus solito tunc forte morante, tandem cum exiret, et ad ostium capellæ jam equum ascenderet, astitit ei vir quidam ante faciem, poste quodam præfixo quasi pro podio fungens, flavus, tonsuraque rotunda, vultus macilenti, staturæ aliquantulum proceræ, ætatis quasi circiter annos quadraginta, tunica indutus alba usque ad collum pedis demissa, zona præinctus, et pedibus nudis; qui et regem in hæc verba quasi Teutonice convenit, “ God holde þe, cuning;” quod⁴ Latine sonat, Deus te custodiat, rex. Et postea in eadem lingua prosecutus est in hunc modum; “ Salutatur vos Christus, et pia mater ejus, Johannes quoque Baptistista, et apostolus Petrus, mandantes vobis quatinus,

¹ ei] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

² The two next sections, In hoc eodem . . . plenius ostendetur, not in R. B. in Hc. D., &c.

This adventure of Henry II. at Cardiff occurs again in the De Prin. Instr. (p. 37), with some variations, but Giraldus expressly says that he is there repeating from the Itin. (“sicut in Itinerario scripsimus”).

It is found again, but only in two or three late MSS., in the Expug. Hibern. (vol. v. 289), where probably it is a mere interpolation of some 14th century copyist.

³ capella] D. Rd., De Prin. Instr., and Exp. Hib.; ecclesia, Hc.

⁴ quod Latine . . . rex] D. Rd. Not in Hc., and not in De Prin. Instr. or Exp. Hib.

“ per totas ditioni vestræ subditas terras, ne mercatus “ dominicis diebus fiant firmiter inhiberi faciatis, et “ quod in illis nihil uspiam operis fiat nisi divinum “ officium, et illud devote facere et audire, præter ci-“ baria solum¹ quæ ad usum diurnum præparentur.
 “ Quod si feceritis, nihil unquam inchoabitis quod sine “ bono non compleatur, vitamque feliciter consumma-“ bitis.” Rex autem militi, cui nomen Philippus de Mercros,² qui frenum equi tenebat, dixit lingua Gallica; “ Quære a rustico, utrum hoc somniaverit.” Et cum hoc Anglice miles exponeret, subjecit ille lingua priori; “ Sive hoc somniaverim, sive non, vide quis “ hodie dies sit;” loquens regi, non interpreti, “ quia “ nisi hoc feceris, vitamque maturius emendaveris, “ priusquam annus iste prætereat, tales de re quam
 “ plus in mundo diligis rumores audies, talemque tur-“ bationem inde recipies quæ tibi usque ad exitum “ vitæ non deficiet.” Et cum rex, hoc dicto, equo calcaribus monito, parum versus portam et quasi passibus octo processisset, lora regyrans, “ Vocate mihi,” inquit, “ bonum hominem illum.” Et cum miles prædictus, et juvenis quidam, cui nomen Guillelmus, qui soli tunc in oppido cum rege remanserant, illum vo-cassent, et non inventum primum in capella, deinde per aulam et diversoria cuncta quæsiissent, nusquam comparuit. Rex autem, eo non reperto, cum tamen diutius eum solus in oppido dum alii quærerent expectaret, mæstus plurimum et plangens, quod amplius ei locutus non fuisset, versus Novumburgum per pontem de Remni iter arripuit. Sicut autem comminando vir ille promiserat, sic anno contigit non completo. Filii namque ipsius tres, primævus scilicet Henricus, et alii duo, Pictavensis et Brito, contra³ ipsum in Quadrage-

78 b.

¹ solum] D. Rd.; sola, Hc.

Philip de Mercros was the author's informant.

² In the De Princ. Instr. and Exp. Hib., it is added that this³ contra] D. Rd., De Princ. Instr., Exp. Hib.; post, Hc., Camden.

sima sequente ad regem Francorum Ludovicum disceserunt. Unde tanta mota est ei inquietatio, quantum antea nunquam habuerat, et quæ semper ei, usque ad extremum spiritus halitum, per aliquem filiorum¹ fere incessanter perdurasset.

79.

Multas et alias præmonitiones et castigationes rex iste divina miseratione, quæ magis conversionem peccatorum appetit quam eversionem, circa eadem tempora et fini propinquiora suscepit. Quas tamen omnes animo obstinato, et corde indurato, incorrigibiliter omnino contempsit: sicut in libro De Principis instructione, Deo propitiante, plenius ostendetur.

Barry island:
whence Giraldus's family
name.

Distat autem non magnis abhinc spatiis insula modica, in Sabrini maris litore sita, quam accolæ Barri vocant; a nomine Sancti Barroci, loci² ejusdem olim cultoris, sic dicta. Cujus et reliquæ in capella ibidem sita, hederæ nexibus amplexata, in feretrum translatae continentur. Ab hujus etiam insulæ nomine, viri nobiles³ maritimarum australis Kambriæ partium, qui eidem insulæ cum terris finitimis dominari solent, sunt⁴ denominati: a Barri scilicet primo agnomen, postea cognomen de Barri suscipientes.

Est autem hic notabile, quod in ipso insulæ introitu, in rupe marina apparet rima permodica, ad quam si aurem apponas, audies operæ strepitum quasi fabrilis; nunc follium flatus, nunc martellorum ictus, nunc cotis et ferri sonora fricamina,

“ Stridentesque⁵ cavernis

“ Stricturas Chalybum, et anhelum fornacibus ignem.”

¹ per aliquem filiorum] D. Rd., Camden, Exp. Hib. Not in Hc. The De Princ. Instr. has “filiorum,” without the “per aliquem.”

² loci] B. Hc. D., &c. Not in R. F.

³ nobiles] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ sunt] B. F. Hc. D., &c; super, R.

⁵ Adapted from Virg. Æn. viii. 420:

“ Striduntque cavernis
“ Stricturæ Chalybum, et fornacibus ignis anhelat.”

Ceterum haud difficile credendum,¹ ex aquis marinis occulte subintranantibus sonum hujusmodi provenire posse, nisi quoniam non minus, retrogradis et refluxis fluctibus, vacuato prorsus litore continuatur quam repleto.

[CAP. VII.]

De sede Landavensi, et monasterio de Margan, cum partium illarum² notabilibus.

Igitur in crastino, crucis apud Landaph negotio publice proposito, astantibus hinc Anglis inde Gualensibus, ex utroque populo plurimis ad crucem allectis, ea nocte ibidem cum episcopo loci ejusdem Guillelmo, viro discreto et honesto, moram fecimus. Sonat autem Landaph ecclesia sita super Taph fluvium, quæ et ecclesia Sancti Teleauci,³ ejusdem sedis olim episcopi, nunc dicitur. Mane igitur, missa in ecclesia cathedrali, principalique altari, ab archipræsule celebrata, statim versus nobile Cisterciensis ordinis monasterium de Margan, per cellulam de Ewennith, iter incunctanter arripuimus. Erat autem monasterium de Margan, præ aliis cunctis ordinis illius per Kambriam locis, præside tunc⁴ viro literato et discreto abbate Cunano, caritativa largitione laudatissimum.⁵ Unde et aliquoties, gravi ingruente famis articulo, certum noveris et indubitata veritate compertum, ob immoderatam largifluæ caritatis abundantiam, quam in peregrinos et pauperes infatiganter⁶ exercuerant, deficiente aliquoties

At Llandaf.

Thence to Margan abbey. 79 b.

Great charity of this abbey.

¹ credendum] Hc. D., Camden; crediderim, R. B. Rd.

² partium illarum] R. B. Rd., Camden, and D. supra in Table of Chapters; part. suarum, Hc.; pertinentiis illarum et, D. here.

³ Teleauci] D.; Teleau, R. B. St. Teilo, second bishop of Llandaf.

⁴ tunc] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁵ laudatissimum] D., Camden; laudabile, Hc.; laudatissimo, Rd.; laudabili, R. B.

⁶ infatiganter] Hc. D., &c; infatigabiliter, R. B.

3 Reg.
xvii. 12,
&c.

farre penique, sensible fuisse divinitus augmentum appositum; tanquam lecythi oleo, veri Helisæi beneficio, pauperi mulierculæ multiplicato.

Circa prima vero foundationis tempora, juvenis quidam de finibus illis, genere Kambrensis, terras quasdam monasterio datas acriter sibi vindicans, et in usus proprios redigere parans, post multas infestationes, demum instinctu dæmoniaco grangiam monachorum optimam blado refertam igne combussit. Et statim, amens effectus, per patriam discurrere cœpit, rabie plenus et insania; nec ab errore¹ cessavit, donec a parentibus captus fuerat atque ligatus. Porro, ruptis mane vinculis, fatigatisque custodibus, ad monasterii denique portam evasit, clamans incessanter et ululans, se monachorum ministerio totum intrinsecus igne comburi. Et sic, planctu miserabili vociferando, spiritum infra paucos dies exhalavit.

Contigit etiam ut ab² alio quodam juvene in hospitum aula verberato, statim in crastino, divina ultione secuta, injuriosus ille ab hostibus interimeretur; et eodem aulæ loco, quo fuit injuria sacræ domui et fratribus astantibus irrogata, exanime corpus extenderetur.

The monks have to send to so.
Bristol for corn.

Miracle.

His quoque nostris diebus,³ ingruente famis inedia, et maxima pauperum turba quotidie ad januam jacente, de communi fratrum consilio, ad caritatis explendæ sufficientiam, propter bladum in Angliam⁴ navis Bristolum missa est. Quæ cum diutinam ibidem vento contrario moram fecisset, die quo in monasterio tam ad usus pauperum quam monachorum annona deficere debuit, navè non redeunte, sed locum potius miraculo

¹ errore] D. Rd., Camden; hoc errore, R. B. He.

² ab] R. He. D., Camden; an interlineation, in a later hand, in B. Not in Rd.

³ His quoque . . . diebus] D. Rd.,

Camden; His autem . . . diebus, He.; His autem . . . temporibus, R. B.

⁴ in Angliam] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He.

dante, contigit ut campus prope monasterium, per mensem et amplius ante commune maturationis tempus, et antequam messis aliqua per patriam meteretur, cum multorum admiratione subito maturus inveniretur: unde tam fratribus, quam pauperum turbis, sufficientem usque ad autumnum alimoniam divina miseratio ministraret. His igitur et aliis virtutum signis, locus Deo acceptus diligi a cunctis cœpit et venerari.

Accidit autem his nostris diebus, quatuor Caradoci The sons of Caradog ab Iestin. filii Iestini filiis, et¹ Resi principis ex sorore nepotibus, his in finibus herili portione, sicut Gualensibus mos est, pro patre dominantibus; Morgano videlicet, et Mereducio, Oeneo, et Cadwallano; quod per invidiam et Caymiticam malitiam,² iterum renatam, Oeneum fratrem Cadwallanus interemit. Nec mora: divina ultione subsecuta, cum castrum quoddam hostiliter invasisset, muri subito super eundem facta ruina, minutim confractus interiit: et inter tot tam sui quam fratrum suorum exercitus viros, dignas perpetrati facinoris et fratricidii pœnas luens, solus miserabiliter exstinctus occubuit.

Accidit hic quoque res memoratu non indigna. Gallantry of a greyhound. Leporarius enim prædicti Oenei magnus et pulcher, et virgea³ varietate discoloratus, septem vulnera, sagittis et lanceis corpore perforato, non absque plurima tamen hostium et homicidarum caninis morsibus laceratione, in domini defensione suscepit. Qui et postea Anglorum tunc regi Henrico secundo, vulneribus recenter in cicatricem obductis, a comite Claudiocestriæ Guilhelmo, ad tanti tam egregii⁴ facinoris ostentum, est transmissus.

¹ et] B. Hc. D., &c. Not in R. F.

² Camden here adds, "quæ jam inveterasset." It is in no MS. that I have seen.

³ virgea] R. B. Hc. D.; mira, Rd., Camden.

⁴ egregii] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; egregium, D.

80 b.
Duel between a dog and the murderer of his master, as related by St. Ambrose, &c.

Præ omni namque bestia plus hominem canis et diligit et dignoscit. Qui et interdum, sublato domino, vivere recusat; et pro domino mortis subire discrimina non formidat. Igitur et mori pro dominis, et commori dominis est paratus. Unde et exemplum unum, quod et¹ Suetonius tangit in libro, qui De animantium naturis inscribitur, et Ambrosius² quoque in Hexameron narrat, hic interserere non superfluum reputavi. “ Ferunt Antiochiæ in remotiore urbis parte crepusculo³ virum necatum, qui canem sibi adjunctum haberet. Miles quidam prædandi studio minister necis extiterat. Tectus idem adhuc tenebroso diei exordio, in alias partes secesserat.⁴ Jacebat inhumatum cadaver: frequens spectantium vulgus astabat: canis questu lacrimabili domini deflebat ærumnam. Forte is, qui necem intulerat, ut se habet versutia humani generis,⁵ quo, versandi in medio auctoritate præsumpta, fidem assereret⁶ innocentia, ad illam circumstantis⁷ populi coronam accessit, et velut miserans appropinquavit ad funus. Tunc canis, sequestrato paulisper luctu doloris, arma ultionis assumpsit, atque apprehensum tenuit; et velut epilogio quodam miserabile carmen immurmurans, univeros convertit in lacrimas. Probationem⁸ detulit, quod solum tenuit e plurimis, nec dimisit.” Præsertim cum nec odii, neque invidia, aut injuriæ alicujus poterat objectione crimen illatum evacuari. Ob

¹ et] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden. I find no mention of the De animantium naturis of Suetonius. The passage of St. Ambrose is in Hexameron, vi. 4, 24.

² et Ambrosius . . . narrat] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ crepusculo] R. B. Hc., &c., with Hexæm. Not in D.

⁴ secesserat] Hc. D.; concesserat, R. B. Rd., Camden, with Hexæm.

⁵ generis] R. B. Hc. D., &c.; ingenii, Hexæm.

⁶ assereret] R. B. Hc. D., &c.; adscisceret, Hexæm.

⁷ circumstantis] D. Rd.; circumspectantis, R. B. Hc., Camden, with Hexæm.

⁸ Probationem] R. B. Hc. D., &c.; Fidem probationi, Hexæm.

tantam igitur et¹ tam vehementem homicidii præsumptionem, milite tamen constanter inficiente, iudicatum est duello rei certitudinem experiri.² In campo itaque constitutis, et vulgi circumstante corona, hinc cane dentibus armato, illinc baculo cubitali milite munito, tandem, cane victore, victus homicida succubuit; et ignominiosam publico patibulo pœnam dedit.

Refert Plinius, refert et Solinus,³ regem quemdam, studio venationis non mediocriter datum, cum ab hostibus aliquando captus fuisset et incarceratus, quia canes dilexerat, per caninos demum regionis illius exercitus, ad montana et silvestria per se sponte sequestratos, et inde tam in homines quam in armenta⁴ et pecudes impetus faciendo et atrociter desæviendo, demum absque alio quolibet necessariorum iuvenine modo mirando liberatum.

Præterea,⁵ ea quæ de canum natura experientia didici, oculisque meis plerumque conspexi, explicabo. Canis in rebus agnoscendis, dominoque præcipue, quem forte⁶ veluti in turba per aliquantulum tempus amisit, plus naribus quam oculo credit. Primum enim, in domino seu ductore perduto reperiendo, oculis inspicit; deinde nares ad certius investigandum vestibis apponit; tanquam totas infallibiles experientiæ vires eidem in naribus natura plantaverit.

Item medicinam portat lingua canina, sicut e contra mortem lingua lupina. Unde et sicut vulneribus canis lingendo medetur, sic vulnera lupo lingua corrumpit.

A sportsman king rescued

81.

from prison by dogs.

Giraldus's observations as to the nature of dogs.

¹ et] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He., Camden.

² experiri] R. B. He. D. Rd. Over it, in R. and B., is the interlineation, "vel annotari." F. has "vel annotari vel experiri," in the text.

³ Pliny (Nat. Hist., viii. 61), and from him Solinus (cap. xv.), have this: "Garamantum regem canes ducenti ab exilio reducere, præ-

"liati contra resistentes." I can find, in either writer, no further authority for Giraldus's fuller account.

⁴ armenta] Hc. D., &c.; armenta, R. B.

⁵ The two next sections, Præterea . . . læsionem, in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁶ forte] Hc. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

Canis autem, si vel collo vel capite, vel alia quavis corporis parte, quo linguam flectere non valeat, vulnus acceperit, pede posteriori linguæ beneficium, quasi nuncio fideli, transfert ad læsionem.

[CAP. VIII.]

De Areninæ et Neth fluviiis transcursis ; de Abertawe¹ quoque, et Goher ; cum notabilibus suis.

Progress
from Margan abbey to Swansea.

Dangerous quick-sands.

81 b.

Profecti abinde, non præcul a Margano, ubi sabulosi litoris et maris influentis alternæ incipiunt vicissitudines, Aveninæ fluvium, sub plurimo tamen refflui maris moramine, transvadavimus. Et inde versus Neth fluvium via maritima festinantes, primævum Karadoci filium Morganum ducem et prævium habuimus. Accedentibus itaque nobis ad aquam, præ aliis australis Kambriæ fluviiis, vivi sabuli periculis, totumque subito quod ingeritur absorbentis, inaccessibilem, inter clitelarios multos, qui via versus mare venerant inferiore, unus quem solum qui scripsit hæc ibidem habebat, quanquam medius in turba conserta incederet, solus tamen quasi in abyssum descendit. Sed demum tamen, non absque sarcinæ detrimento librorumque, laboriosa simul et periculosa juvenum opera, vix extractus evasit. Quanquam igitur partium illarum principem Morganum viæ ducem haberemus, sub periculo tamen multo, plurimorumque lapsu, ad aquam pervenimus. Per sabulum quippe absorbens, contra ducis monita, nos viæ terror insolitæ festinare coegit, et

Virg. Æn.
viii. 224.

“ Timor addidit alas ;”

eum per hujuscemodi pericula, sicut ibi² didicimus, sit potior incessus moderata maturatione³ temperatior. Sed

¹ Abertawe] D.; Abertau, R. B.
And so afterwards.

² ibi] R. B. Hc. Rd.. Camden ; ibidem, D.

³ moderata maturatione] Hc. D.,
&c. Not in R. B.

quoniam quolibet menstruo maris incremento annis illius vada¹ mutantur, quolibet nubigero imbrium augmento non reperiuntur, pluvialibus inundationibus exuberantibus undis, navigio non vado transvecti sumus; monasterio de² Neth a dextra relicto, iterum Meneviae partibus appropinquantes,³ et Landavensis ecclesiae diocesim, quam apud Abergavenni intravimus, post terga relinquentes.

Accidit autem his nostris diebus, Menevensi episcopo David secundo hac iter agente, et vado recente maris influentis procella turbato, quod capellanus quidam de finibus illis, Rederth⁴ scilicet agnomine Falsus, quoniam transeundarum fuerat gnarus aquarum, vadi prætentandi periculum episcopo præcipiente suscepit. Sed cum equum episcopi grandem et fortem, et ex toto comitatu ad hoc fideliter electum, presbyter ascendisset, vado statim transmeato, quoniam suspensionis sententiam nuper incurrerat, ad ipsa quæ non procul aberant silvestria fuga maturata se proripuit; nec revocari ullatenus potuit, donec, sumpta securitatis et indemnitate cautione, hinc equus et illinc missa restitueretur.

Intrantes itaque provinciam quæ Goher dicitur, in castro de Sweineshe,⁵ quod et Kambrice Abertawe⁶ vocatur, id est, casus Tawe⁶ fluvii, pernoctavimus. Mane vero, post missam, populo convocato, plurimisque ad crucem allectis, vir quidam partium illarum [ætate provectus],⁷ cui nomen Kadorus, ad archipræsulem accedens, eum in hæc verba convenit; “Domine, si mihi “ pristinae vires suppeterent, et juventutis elapsæ robur Anecdote of bishop David and a chaplain.

Arrival at Swansea, or Abertawy. 82.

Kador's offering of tithes.

¹ vada] Hc. D., &c., and F. by alteration; vaga, R. B., and F. originally.

² de] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ appropinquantes] D. Rd., Camden; appropiantes, R. B. Hc.

⁴ Rederth] D.; Retherch, R. B.

“Rhydderch” is a not uncommon Welsh name.

⁵ Sweineshe] D.; Sweincsie, R. B.

⁶ Abertawe, and Tawe] D.; Abertau, Tau, R. B.

⁷ ætate provectus] R. B. Hc., Camden. Not in D. Rd.

“ adesset, laudabilem quem prædicas laborem nec ulla “ mihi elemosina redimere, nec ullius desidiæ torpor “ adimere posset. Verum quoniam desiderabilem hanc “ gratiam ætas mihi debilior, deteriorque dies invidit; “ quippe sicut

Hor. A. P. 175. “ ‘ Multa ferunt anni venientes commoda secum,’ “ ‘ Multa recedentes adimunt;’

“ sic

“ si beneficium, corporis vexatione, consequi plenum “ non sufficio, decimarum tamen omnium quæ possideo “ largitione, consequi valeam vel semiplenum.” Et sic ad pedes archiepiscopi [provolutus, et]¹ cum largo lacrimarum fonte genua ponens, in manu ejusdem, ad crucis obsequium, rerum suarum omnium decimas assignavit, et ab eodem dimidiam inunctæ pœnitentiæ remissionem impetravit. Cum autem, hoc facto, paulisper seorsum recessisset, reversus in hanc sententiam iterum prorupit; “ Domine, si voluntas informat actionem, et ipsa plerumque pro facto reputatur, cum “ mihi hoc iter agendi sit plena et firma voluntas, “ residuæ [partis]² pœnitentiæ relaxationem peto; et “ insuper, renovato beneficio, decimarum mearum de “ residuo³ summam adæquabo.” Subridens ad hæc archiepiscopus, devotam viri subtilitatem cum admiratione amplexatus est.

The facetious monk.

Eadem vero⁴ nocte, monachiis duobus, cubiculariis archiepiscopi, super his quæ acciderant, periculisque viæ ad invicem conferentibus, dixit unus eorum, “ Pro vincia dura est ista.” Alter autem e contra facete respondit; “ Quinimmo, nimis hesterna die mollis in-

¹ provolutus, et] Hc., Camden. Not in R. B. D. Rd.

² partis] R. B. Hc., Camden. Not in D. Rd.

³ de residuo] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ Eadem vero referente] This section in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

venta est." Altero ad asperitatem patriæ, altero vero ad sabuli mollitiem sermonem referente.

Parum autem ante hæc nostra tempora, accidit his in partibus res memoratu non indigna; quam sibi ^{82 b.} contigisse presbyter Eliodorus constantissime referebat. ^{Adventure of a boy with fairies.} Cum enim puerilis innocentiae duodecimum jam ageret annum, quoniam, ut ait Salomon,¹ "Radix literarum amara est, quanquam fructus dulcis," puer literis addictus, ut disciplinam subterfugeret, et verbera crebra præceptoris, in concava fluvii cujusdam ripa se fugitivus occultavit. Cumque ibidem, bis sole revoluta, jejunos continue jam latitasset, apparuerunt ei homunculi duo, staturæ quasi pygmææ, dicentes; "Si nobiscum venire volueris, in terram ludis et deliciis plenam te ducemus."² Annuens ille, surgensque, secutus est prævios, per viam primo subterraneam et tenebrosam, usque in terram pulcherrimam, fluviiis et pratis, silvis et planis distinctissimam, obscuram tamen, et aperto solari lumine non illustratam. Erant ibi dies omnes quasi nebulosi, et noctes lunæ stellarumque absentia teterrimæ. Adductus est puer ad regem, eique coram regni curia præsentatus: quem cum diu, cum admiratione cunctorum, rex intuitus esset, tandem eum filio suo, quem puerum habebat, tradens assignavit. Erant autem homines staturæ minimæ, sed pro quantitatis captu valde compositæ; flavi omnes, et luxuriante capillo, muliebriter per humeros coma demissa. Equos habebant suæ competentes modicitati, leporariis in quantitate conformes. Nec carne vescebantur, nec pisce; lacteis plerumque cibariis utentes, et in pultis modum quasi croco confectis. Juramenta eis nulla: nihil enim adeo ut mendacia detestabantur. Quoties de superiori hemisphærio revertebantur, ambitiones nostras, infidelitates, et inconstantias exspuebant. Cultus eis religionis pakam nullus: veritatis solum, ut videbatur, amatores præcipui et cultores. Solebat autem puer ille ad nostrum hemisphærium pluries ascendere; interdum per viam qua venerat, interdum per aliam; primo cum aliis, et postea per se. Solumque matri suæ se committebat; patriæ modum, gentisque naturam, et statum suum¹ ei declarans. Monitus igitur a matre, ut auri, quo abundabat regio, munus ei quandoque referret, pilam auream, qua regis filius ludere consueverat, ab ipso rapiens ludo, per viam solitam ad matrem deproperans cursim asportavit. Et cum ad ostium domus paternæ, populi tamen illius non absque sequela, jam pervenisset, intrare festinanti² pes læsit in limine; et sic intra tectum cadenti, matre ibidem sedente, pilam manu³ elapsam duo pygmæi e vestigio sequentes arripuere, exeundo in puerum sputa, contemptus, et derisiones emittentes. Ipse vero resurgens, ad seque reversus, mira facti confunditur erubescencia; et matris plurimum consilia devovens et⁴ detestans, cum via redire pararet quam assueverat, ad aquæ descensum hypogeumque meatum cum pervenisset, aditus ei jam nullus apparuit; cum tamen, per anni fere spatium, intra concavas aquæ prædictæ ripas viam inutilis explorator inquireret. Sed quoniam ea, quæ ratio non mitigat, temporis interdum mora mitescunt; et diuturnitas sola laxatos hebetat plerumque dolores; siquidem malis multis finis de tempore venit; demum tamen ab amicis, et matre præcipue, vix revocatus,

¹ In Top. Hib. (Vol. V., 191, n. 6), these words are ascribed to St. Jerome. Jerome has, "De amaro semine literarum dulces fructus carpo" (Ep. ad Rusticum monachum, N° 4 of old editions, 125 of late), which I suppose to be the passage referred to.

² ducemus] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; deducemus, D.

Who afterwards be-

¹ suum] B. Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. F., Camden.

² festinanti] R. B. Hc. Rd.; festinavit, D., Camde^{ur}

³ manu] D. Rd.; a manu, R. B. Hc.; e manu, Camden.

⁴ et] D. Rd.; ac, R. B. Hc., Camden.

sibi que restitutus, et literis denuo datus, tandem¹ processu dierum in sacerdotii gradum est promotus.

Cum autem Menevensis episcopus David secundus super hujus² eventus inquisitione³ presbyterum jam senio confectum multoties sollicitasset, nunquam ei negotii seriem potuit citra lacrimas replicare. Habuerat etiam gentis illius linguæ notitiam; cujus et verba recitare consueverat, quæ sibi puerilibus, ut moris est, annis rapide comparaverat. Erant autem verba, sicut ab episcopo prædicto mihi sunt sæpe proposita, Græco idiomati valde conformia. Cum enim aquam requirebant, dicebant Ydor ydorum; quod Latine sonat, aquam offer. Ydor enim aqua eorum lingua, sicut et Græca, dicebatur: unde et vasa aquatica Ydriæ dicuntur: et *Duur*⁴ lingua Britannica similiter aqua dicitur. Item salem requirentes dicebant, Halgein ydorum, id est, salem affer. Hal vero Græce sal dicitur, et haleyn Britannice. Lingua namque Britannica, propter diutinam quam Britones, qui tunc Trojani, et postea Britones a Bruto eorum duce sunt vocati, post Trojæ excidium moram in Græcia fecerant, in multis Græco idiomati⁵ conformis invenitur.

Hic autem mihi notabile videtur, quod in uno verbo tot linguas convenire non invenio, sicut in isto. Hal enim Græce, Halein Britannice, Halein similiter Hibernice; Halgein, g interposita, lingua prædicta. Item sal Latine,—quia, ut ait Priscianus, in quibusdam dictionibus pro aspiratione ponitur s; ut Hal Græce, sal Latine; hemi, semi; hepta, septem,—Sel Gallice, mutatione a vocalis in e, a Latino; additione t literæ, salt Anglice, sout Teutonice. Habetis ergo septem

¹ tandem] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; tamen, D.

² hujus] R. B. Hc., &c.; hujusmodi, D.

³ inquisitione] R. B. Hc., &c.; inquisitionem, D.

⁴ Duur] D.; Dur, R. B. Hc., &c. Dwfr, in modern Welsh.

⁵ idiomati] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

comes a priest.

And relates the tale himself to the bishop of St. David's.

Fairy language very like Greek.

83 b.

De Arte Grammatica, xiii. 5, 25.

linguas, vel octo, in hac una dictione plurimum concordantes.

Giraldus's
opinion as to the truth of this tale.

Sin autem interpositæ relationis de veritate quid sentiam scrupulosus investigator inquiras,¹ cum Augustino respondeo, admiranda fore divina miracula, non disputatione² discutienda: nec ego negando divinæ potentiae terminos pono, nec affirmando eam quæ extendi non potest insolenter extendo. Sed illud Ieronymi semper in talibus ad animum revoco: "Multa,"³ inquit, "incredibilia reperiēs, nec⁴ verisimilia, quæ " nihilominus tamen vera sunt. Nihil enim contra " naturæ Dominum prævalet natura." Hæc igitur, et his⁵ similia, si quæ contigerint, juxta Augustini sententiam inter illa locaverim, quæ nec affirmanda plurimum, neque neganda decreverim.

[CAP. IX.]

De Lochur et Wendrayth⁶ fluviiis transcursis; de Kedwely quoque; cum notabilibus suis.

84.
Progress
from Swansea to Cydweli.

Transivimus inde versus aquam de Locher per campestria, in quibus Howelus, filius Moreduci⁷ de Brecheniauc, post obitum regis Henrici primi, Anglos de finibus illis, et milites multos, publico bello confectos interemit. Fluvio vero de Locher transvadato, et aquis postea quæ Wendraith dicuntur transmeatis, ad castrum de Kedwely via duce pervenimus. In partibus

¹ inquiras] D. Rd., Camden; inquiris, R. B. Hc.

² disputatione] Hc. D., &c.; dispositione, R. B.

³ After Multa Rd. adds, "in Scripturis." See Vol. V., 210, l. 2, and 356, l. 25. I have not succeeded in verifying this quotation from Jerome.

⁴ nec] D. Rd.; et non, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁵ his] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

⁶ Wendrayth] D.; Wandrez, R. B. And so afterwards, and so supra, p. 9, n. 8.

⁷ Moreduci] D.; Mereduci, R.; Mereducii, B. Howel ab Maredudd of Brecheiniog. See Brut, A^o 1135.

istis, Anglorum rege Henrico primo rebus humanis exempto, dum Griphinus Resi filius, Sudwalliæ tunc princeps, in Norwalliam auxilium corrogaturus ivisset, uxor ejus Guendoloena,¹ tanquam Amazonum regina et Pentesilea secunda, in partes illas exercitum ducens, a Mauricio Londoniensi, loci illius tunc domino, et viro egregio Gaufrido, præsulis constabulario, bellico in² certamine confecta, interempto ibidem filio ejusdem Morgano, et altero capto, scilicet Mailgone, quos pueros secum in expeditionem arroganter adduxerat, cum aliis multis ipsa demum ferro confossa caput amisit.

Death of Gwennlian, wife of prince Gruffudd, in battle.

Tempore vero Anglorum regis Henrici primi, tranquillum pacis statum Guallia sortita, cum prædictus ille Mauricius silvam in partibus illis haberet, ferarum multitudine, cervorumque præcipue valde copiosam, nimiaque³ parcitatis in ferina fuisset; quoniam, ut moris est, semper in viri fallacia est uxor astuta, miro mulier est usa commento. Habebat enim vir ille a latere silvæ versus mare pascua magna, et ovium in pascuis copiam multam. Mulier itaque, pastores omnes, et majores domus, figmenti sui complices habens et fautores, simplicis utendo commoditate viri, in hæc verba ad maritum accessit; erat enim simplicis naturæ simul et tenacis; “Mirum,” inquit, “quod bestiarum dominator bestiis dominari jam desiisti, et cervis non utendo, cervis⁴ jam non imperas sed servis. Et ecce quantus abusus ex nimia surgit patientia. Inaudita namque rabie, et insueta voracitate, adeo in oves nostras desæviunt, ut ex multis paucae, et⁵ ex fere innumeris jam reddantur numerosæ.” Ut autem probabiliorem redderet assertionem, evisceratis Triek put upon Maurice de London by his wife.

84 b.

¹ Guendoloena] D.; Guenliana, R. B. This defeat, and death of the princess Gwennlian, not mentioned in Brut or Annal. Camb.

² in] D., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Rd. has “belli certamine.”

³ nimiaque] B. Hc. Rd., Camden; nimia, R. D.

⁴ cervis] Hc. D., Camden; servis, R. B. Rd. is here corrupt.

⁵ et] D. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden. Rd. is corrupt.

cervis duobus, inter ipsa intestina lanam interseri procuravit. Sic itaque vir, deceptus muliebri astutia, canum rapacitati cervos exposuit.

[CAP. X.]

De fluvio Tewiensi navigio transcurso; de Kaermerdhyn quoque, et Albalundæ monasterio; cum notabilibus suis.

Progress
to Carmarthen

Geoffrey,
vi. 17, 18.

Roman
remains.

Transeuntes inde navigio flumen Tewiense, et versus Kaermerdin iter arripientes, Laudestephan et Talacharn marinis in scopulis a læva reliquimus. Erant autem hæc duo castra, quæ Resus filius Griphini, post obitum Anglorum regis Henrici secundi, desperatione custodum,¹ citra insultum occupavit: deinde provinciis de Pembroch et Ros cædibus, incendiis, et deprædationibus fere exterminio datis, frustrato conamine Kairmerdin obsedit. Sonat autem Kairmerdin urbs Merlini; eo quod, juxta Britannicam historiam, ibi ex incubo genitus inventus fuerat Merlinus. Est igitur hæc urbs antiqua, coctilibus muris, partim adhuc extantibus, egregie clausa, super nobilem Tewi fluvium sita, silvis et pratis abundans. Habet autem Kantrefmaur,² id est, Kantaredum magnum, ab oriente, copiosa silvarum condensitate australis Kambriæ civibus³ tutissimum in necessitate refugium: ubi et castrum Dynewr,⁴ in collis excelsi vertice super fluvium⁵ Tewi situm, quod et principalis Sudwalliæ curia dicitur.

¹ desperatione custodum] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Compare Brut and Annal. Camb., A^o 1189.

² Kantrefmaur] D.; Kantermaur, R. B. And so in other case. So also "Kantrefbochan" in D., and "Kanterbochan" in R. B., a few lines further on.

³ civibus] R. B. Hc., &c. Not in D.

⁴ Dynewr] D.; Dinevor, R. B. In the course of a few lines, D. has "Dynevur," and "Dinevur."

⁵ fluvium] D., Camden; flumen, R. B. Hc. Rd.

Fuerant enim antiquitus tres principales in Wallia curiæ; Dynevir in Sudwallia; Aberfrau in Norwallia, scilicet apud Moniam; in Powisia apud Pengwern,¹ quod et nunc Slopesburia dicitur. Sonat autem² Penguern caput alneti.

In his³ autem de Kantrefmaur finibus, kemmoto videlicet de Kaoc, illud ad animum revocans, “Dolus, an virtus, quis in hoste requirat?”

et illud,

“Et si non recte possis, quocunque modo rem;”

Virg. Æn.
ii. 390.

Hor. 1 Ep.
i. 66.

quam enormiter in subditos, hoc nostro tempore, curia vindictam exercuerit, noster explicare stilus abhorruit.

Juxta Dinevir, trans flumen scilicet Tewi, in Cantrefbochan, id est, kantaredo brevi, est fons⁴ qui die naturali bis undis deficiens, et toties exuberans, marinas imitari solet instabilitates.

Non procul a Kairmerdhin, ex parte boreali scilicet,⁵ apud Pencadeir, id est, cathedræ caput, Reso Griphini filio, nostris diebus, ad deditionem dolose magis quam virtuose compulso, et in Angliam ducto, rex Anglorum Henricus secundus de Armorica oriundum Britannia militem quemdam, de cujus prudentia simul et fidelitate confidebat, sub decani de Cantrefmaur conductu cui nomen Guaidanus, castrum Dinevir, locique situm, et patriæ munitionem exploraturum transmisit. Presbyter autem, monitus ut per viam meliorem ad castrum et faciliorem militi præberet iter, per magis difficiles et inaccessibiles aditus ipsum ex industria circumduxit. Et ubicunque per saltus herbosos trans-

A.D. 1163.
Trick played upon an envoy of Henry II.

¹ Pengwern] D.; Penguern, R. B., and D. in next line.

² sonat autem . . . alneti] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ In his . . . abhorruit] This section in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ This well is mentioned in Top. Hib. (Vol. V., 85).

⁵ scilicet] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B. As to Rhys ab Gruffudd's submission to Henry II. in 1163, compare Brut, A° 1162, and Annal. Camb. 1164.

situm¹ faciebant, cum intuentium admiratione presbyter herbam pascebatur; asserens accolas et indigenas herbis et radicibus, ingruente inedia, vivere et vesci solere. Ad regem itaque milite reverso, cunctisque relatis quæ vel digna relatu viderat vel audierat; terram scilicet inhabitabilem, terram inviam et inaccessibilem, nullique genti nisi bestiali et bestiarum more viventi victui necessariam; demum fidei sacramentique nodis, necnon et obsidum vinculis astrictum, Resum rex ad sua remisit.

85 b. Progressis inde nobis versus Cisterciense monasterium quod Alba domus dicitur, adsunt quidam nuntiantes archiepiscopo juvenem quemdam Kambrensem, ei devote occurrentem, obiter ab hostibus interentum. Ad quem non procul a via divertens, corpusque cruentum elemosynarii sui operiri pallio jubens, jugulati juvenis animam pia supplicatione commendavit. Igitur in crastino, sagittariis duodecim de Sancti Clari castello satis propinquo, qui juvenem prædictum jugulaverant, apud Albam domum in poenam criminis crucesignatis; tribusque fluviis, primo Taph, deinde Cledeu² sub Lanwadein, alteroque Cledeu³ sub Haverfordia transmeatis, demum Haverfordiam pervenimus. Sortita est autem inde provincia nomen, inter duos hos fluvios sita, Deugledeu; eo quod duobus his fluviis quasi duobus gladiis cingatur et terminetur. Cledeu namque Britannice gladius Latine.

and thence to Haverford.

[CAP. XI.]

De Haverfordia et Ros; cum notabilibus suis.

Miraculous effect on the Welsh Apud Haverfordiam itaque primo ab archipræsule sermone facto, deinde ab archidiacono Menevensi, cujus

¹ transitum] He. D., &c.; transitus, R. B.

² Cledeu] D.; Cledu, R. B.

³ Cledeu] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He., Camden.

nomen præsentis opusculi titulus tenet, verbo Domini gratiose prolato, turbæ allecta est multitudo tam militaris quam plebiæ. Ubi et¹ pro mirando, et quasi pro miraculo ducebatur a multis, quod ad verbum Domini ab archidiacono prolatum, cum tamen lingua Latina et Gallica loqueretur, non minus illi qui neutram linguam noverunt, quam alii, tam ad lacrimarum affluentiam moti fuerunt, quam etiam ad crucis signaculum catervatim accurrerunt.

of Giraldus's Latin or French sermon.

Accidit autem aniculam partium istarum, quæ per triennium antea cæca fuerat, audito archipræsulis adventu, filium suum adolescentem, ut vel de fimbria vestimenti ejusdem aliquam particulam ei referret, ad locum prædicationis destinasse. Qui cum ad archiepiscopum ob turbam consertam accedere non potuisset, glebam quam sub pedibus prædicantis turba dilapsa signaverat secum matri reportavit. Ipsa vero munus oblatum cum gaudio magno suscipiens, et in orientem cum orationum instantia genua ponens, ori et oculis cespitem apposuit; et statim luminis lætitiâ, quam penitus amiserat, tam viri sancti meritis, quam fide propria et devotione recuperavit.

A blind woman restored to sight.

86.

Erat autem gens hæc originem a Flandria ducens, ab Anglorum rege Henrico primo ad hos fines inhabitandum transmissa.² Gens fortis et robusta, continue belli conflictu gens Kambrensibus inimicissima; gens, inquam, lanificiis, gens mercimoniis usitatissima; quocunque labore sive periculo terra marique lucrum quærere gens pervalida; vicissim loco et tempore nunc ad aratrum, nunc ad arma, gens promptissima; gens utique felix et fortis, si vel regibus ut deceret Kambria

This district colonized from Flanders by Henry I. Characters of the people.

¹ Ubi et . . . accurrerunt] This clause in D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Giraldus gives a fuller account of the doings at Haverford, in the De Rebus, &c. (Vol. I., 75).

² The Brut places the Flemish immigration into Rhos under the year 1105, the Annal. Camb. under 1107; Florence of Worcester (II., 64) under 1111. There were detachments, probably, at different times.

cordi fuisset, vel præstitutis saltem et præfectis injuriarum dedecus animo vindice displicuisset.

Successful stratagem of a prisoner.

Contigit autem predicto in castro, nostris diebus, res nequaquam prætereunda. In ejusdem castri turre tenebatur in vinculis latro fumosus;¹ ad quem pueri tres, filius scilicet comitis Clarensis, ibi nutrituræ commissus, et alii² duo, quorum alter herilis filius, alter ejusdem ex filia nepos, propter missilia lignea, quæ eis arcu mittenda ferro formare consueverat, frequenter conveniebant. Quadam autem die, puerorum precibus, ad auras ab imo nequam extractus, captata carcerarii absentia, ocius ostia claudens, tam ipsum exclusit, quam pueros quoque secum inclusit. Quo perpetrato, statim clamor factus est magnus, tam intus puerorum, quam exterius populorum; nec cessavit ille elevata securi mortem pueris acriter interminare, donec ei tam indemnitate quam vitæ securitas sub cautione certissima fuerat indulta.

A somewhat similar instance in France.

In Francorum quoque regno quondam,³ [apud castellum Radulphi,]⁴ casus accidit haud dissimilis. Dominator enimvero⁵ loci illius quem olim exoculaverat in castro quemdam alebat: qui cum, ex diutina frequentia, vias castri cunctas, turriumque gradus et ascensus, cordis oculo jam tenuisset, semel, ira vindice, opportunitate captata, puerum quemdam castellani filium, quem unicum habebat et heredem, ad summa turris propugnacula secum adduxit. Stans igitur in alto, et, clausis intus ostiis, ruinam puero parans, ad clamorem magnum et mœrorem universos provocavit.

86 b.

¹ fumosus] D. Rd. Camden; famosus et Kambrensis, R. B. He.

² et alii] D.; aliique, R. B. He., &c.

³ quondam] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He., Camden.

⁴ apud castellum Radulphi] He., Camden. Not in R. B. D. Rd.

Châteauroux, in Berry. "Castellum Radulfi, quod a doloribus nominis appellacionem sortitur, fundatum est in pago Biturico;" Diceto, 599, l. 52. See infra, 85, l. 23.

⁵ enimvero] D. Rd.; enim, R. B. He., Camden.

Procedens itaque pueri pater, et non mediocri dolore concussus,¹ cum filii redimere sospitatem modis omnibus attemptasset, responsum accepit, nisi per partium inferiorum mutilationem, quam et sibi intulerat, hoc nullatenus fieri posse.

Ipse vero, multis antea frustra allegatis, demum hoc concesso, quasi præcisus illis, cum lugubri circumstantium clamore ictum in trunco fieri fecit. Cæcus autem graviores angustias ubi sentiret cum requisisset, et responsum² quoniam in renibus falsum esse proclamans, puerum iterum præcipitare paravit. Ictu itaque denuo dato, et angustias sibi in corde majores esse responso, dominum arguens falsitatis, puerum ad præcipitium exportavit. Tertio vero, genitum ut redimat genitor, instrumenta gignendi vere præcidit. Et cum in dentibus se sentire dolorem proclamasset; "Verum," inquit ille, "quia experto credendum; et jam injurias "ultus ex parte, mortem mitius aggrediar; et tu de "cetero nec alium gignes, nec isto gaudebis." Eoque dicto, exsiliens ab alto, se cum puero præcipitem dedit: et statim in ima corruens, membris minutim contractis, expiravit uterque. Miles autem pro anima pueri monasterium, quod adhuc extat, et De doloribus dicitur, ibidem construxit.

Hoc autem mihi notabile videtur, quod ad prædicti loci castellanum, Ricardum scilicet Tancardi filium, cum tamen fratres habuerit plurimos et probos, et omnium junior extiterit,³ præmortuis aliis, universa est hereditas devoluta. Similiter et ad Resum Griphini filium, sublatis de medio multis antea fratribus probis et pulcherrimis, dextralis Kambriæ dominium est devolutum.

Contigit autem, prædicto Ricardo pueriles annos agente, virum sanctum, cui nomen Karodocus, apud

Richard Fitz-Tancard, castellan of Haverford.

87.

His intercourse, when a boy,

¹ concussus] R. B. Hc. Rd., Camden; percussus, D.

audiret, R. B. Hc., Camden; resp. acciperet, Rd.

² responsum] D.; responsum

³ extiterit] R. B. Hc.; extiterat, D. Rd., Camden.

with St.
Caradog.

Sanctum Hysmaelem in Rosensi provincia eremiticam et sanctissimam vitam ducere: ad quem puer tam a patre sæpius quam a¹ matre transmissus, cibariorum exenia quia frequenter ferre consueverat, tantam in oculis viri boni gratiam obtinuit, ut ei sæpissime cum sua benedictione fratrum omnium felicitatem et paternam hereditatem compromitteret.

St. Caradog
and the hounds.

Accidit autem aliquando, prædictum Ricardum ob pluviam inundantem ad domum eremiticam divertisse. Et cum canes, quos secum ad venatum adduxerat, nec vocatione, nec adulatione, nec etiam cibi² oblatione, ad se introducere posset, subridens vir sanctus, et ipsos manu leniter annuens, statim ad se venientes cunctos suscepit.

Tancard's vain attempt to alter the destination of St. Caradog's burial.

Processu vero temporis, cum diem Karadocus jam clausisset extremum, et vitæ labentis cursum fine felici consummasset, corpus suum, quod libero postremæ voluntatis stilo Menevensi ecclesiæ delegaverat, Ricardi pater Tancardus violenta præsumptione detinuit: sed statim ægritudine gravi correptus,³ mandatum ocuis revocavit. Cum itaque semel et iterum hoc ei contigisset, Pharaoni⁴ in hoc haud dissimilis, qui populum Dei plagis urgentibus abire promisit,⁵ cessantibus eisdem in irritum revocavit, tertio tam morbo laxato quam mandato, cum corpus versus Meneviam per sabulum de Neugol⁶ deferretur, et exuberantem in pluviam nube resoluta, totoque comitatu pluvia perfuso, sacræ vecturæ duces a latebris exeuntes, palla⁷ serica feretrum opertum ab omni imbriuni madore in-

¹ a] Hc. D., Camden; et, R. B.; et a, F. Rd. is here corrupt.

² cibi] R. B. Hc. Not in D. Rd., Camden.

³ correptus] D. Rd., Camden; arreptus, R. B. Hc.

⁴ Pharaoni . . . revocavit] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁵ promisit] D.; permisit, Rd.

⁶ Neugol] D.; Niwegal, R. B.

⁷ palla . . . opertum] R. B. Hc. D.; pallium sericum quo pharetrum opertum fuerat, Rd. Camden has, "pallam sericam qua feretrum op. fu."

demne¹ reperiunt et immune.¹ Et sic Meneviam corpus allatum, crebra miraculorum tam præsentium quam sequentium quoque coruscatione, in ecclesiæ Sancti Andree Sanctique David ala sinistra, juxta altare sancti protomartyris Stephani, debita est celebritate tumultum.

87 b.

Hoc autem mihi videtur hac de gente notandum, quod in armis arietum dextris, carne nudatis, et non assis sed elixis, tam futura prospiciunt, quam præterita et antea incognita longe respiciunt; tempore quoque præsentia, sed loco absentia, quasi prophetico quodam spiritu arte miranda cognoscunt; pacis et guerræ signa, cædes et incendia, domestica adulteria, regis statum, vitam, et obitum, rimularum quarundam et notularum indicia certissime declarant. Unde et nostris contigit temporibus, virum quemdam partium istarum non ignobilem, et in arte prædicta præ aliis instructum, cui nomen Guillelmus Mangunel, uxorem habere de proprio² viri nepote prægnantem. Cujus eventus vir non ignarus, arietem de ovili proprio sumptum, ex parte cujusdam vicini sui, coram uxore, sibi præsentari procuravit. Quo statim ad coquinam transmissa, cum eodem die in prandio sedissent, armum arietis, debito more decoctum et purgatum, ad inspiciendum vir mulieri, quam in hoc peritam noverat, ex industria porrexit. Quem cum paulisper intuita fuisset, rimulas notans et signa secreta, os et oraculum³ in mensa subridendo projecit. Ille vero cuncta dissimulans, cum risus causam rei que notitiam tanto vehementius efflagitasset, illa demum, tanquam importuna viri victa instantia, respondit: “Vir, de cujus ovili aries hic fuerat, uxorem habet adulteram, et proprii nepotis incestu jam gravidam

Divination from the shoulder-bone of a ram, as practised by the Flemings.

By means of which the incestuous wife of William Mangunel self-convicted.

¹ indemne, and immune] R. B. He. D.; indemnem, immunem, Rd. Camden.

² proprio] R. B. He., &c.; proprii, D.

³ oraculum] He. D., and Rd. (with no “os”); oreculum, B.; oculun, R. F.

“ effectam.” Ad hæc autem vir subtristis, vultuque demisso; “ Verum,” inquit, “ oraculum profers, et nimia veritate subnixum, unde et tanto mihi dolendum fortius, quanto in propriam injuriam publicata “ redundat ignominia.” At illa tantam sui comperto crimine confusionem dissimulare non prævalens, interiorum animi passionem signis exterioribus, urgente vicissim tam pudore quam angustia, nunc rubore vultus, nunc pallore, demum vero lacrimis more muliebri est protestata.

Other instances.
88.

Præterea¹ oblatus est cuidam armus caprei quasi pro ovino, quia simillima sunt ossa purgata. Qui, notatis rimulis parumper et signis, cum admiratione subiecit; “ Infelix pecus, quia² nunquam novit multiplicari; “ infelix et pecudis dominus, qui nunquam ultra tres “ vel quatuor in uno grege habere prævaluit.” Destructionem quoque patriæ post obitum regis Henrici primi, per annum ante vel dimidium, multi in humeris præviderunt; qui, venditis universis quæ possidebant, tam mobilibus quam immobilibus, indemnes per industriam patria relicta imminens excidium evaserunt.

Contigit etiam³ in Flandriæ finibus, unde gens ista descenderat, viro quodam vicino suo os hujusmodi ad inspiciendum transmittente, quod portitor obiter fossam transiliendo [fissa nate]⁴ crepitum dedit, quem⁵ statim viri naribus, ejus causa vexabatur, verbis et votis adoptavit. Ille vero cui portabatur, armo inspecto, illico subiecit; “ Sed tu, frater,⁶ quod mihi optaveras⁷ “ in naribus habeas.”

¹ Præterea, &c.] Rest of this chapter in He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

² quia] D.; qui, He. Rd.; quæ, Camden.

³ etiam] D. Rd., Camden; autem, He.

⁴ fissa nate] He. Rd., Camden. Not in D.

⁵ quem] He. Rd., Camden; quod, D.

⁶ frater] He. D., Camden; semper, Rd.

⁷ quod mihi optaveras] D. Rd.; id ipsum quod opt., He.; id quod mihi adoptaveras, Camden.

Accidit autem, quod et notabile censui, quemdam nostris diebus ensis¹ inspectorem non solum furtum, furtique tenorem, furem ipsum, furandique modum et circumstantias omnes inspiciendo notasse; verum etiam campanæ pulsum, et tubæ sonitum, ac si præsentialiter adhuc agerentur quæ jam præterita fuerant, audisse. Mirum itaque quod sicut conjurationes illicitæ imaginaria quadam similitudine oculis acta, sic et auribus representant accidentia.

[CAP. XII.]

De Pembrochia,² cum notabilibus suis.

Adjacet autem territorio Rosensi, meridionali maritimoque ex latere, interlabente brachio marino, provincia Pembrochiensis; ejus principale municipium, totiusque provinciæ Demeticæ³ caput, in saxosa quadam et oblonga rupis eminentia situm, lingua marina de Milverdico portu prosiliens in capite bifurco complectitur. Unde et Pembrochia Caput maritimæ sonat.

Primus hoc castrum Arnulfus de Mungumeri,⁴ sub Anglorum rege Henrico primo, ex virgis et cespite, tenue satis et exile construxit. Quod postmodum, in Angliam revertens, viro probo prudentique Giraldo de Windesora, constabulario suo primipiloque, cum paucis custodiendum exposuit. Nec mora. Totius australis Kambriæ Gualenses, principe ipsorum viro bellicoso, Reso scilicet Theodori filio, paulo ante dolo suorum Province of Pembroke, its principal city, and castle.

A castle here first built by Ernulf de Montgomery (circa 1091).

ss b.

This besieged by

¹ ensis] Hc. D. Rd; ossis, Camden.

² Pembrochia] D.; Penbrochia, R. B., and D. several times infra.

³ Demeticæ] B. D.; Demetiæ, R. F.

⁴ Mungumeri] D. Hc.; Mungumin, R. B. It was not in the reign of Henry I., as Giraldus says, but in that of Rufus, about 1090, or soon afterwards, that Ernulf de Montgomery first erected a fortress at Pembroke. The castle of Penvro is mentioned in Brut in 1092; and Gerald de Windsor, its constable, in 1095.

the Welsh
(in 1092).

Successful stratagems of the cas-tellan Girald de Windsor, when in bad case.

apud Brecheniauc¹ interempto, et Grifino filio suo puero relicto, castrum obsidione cinxerunt. Contigit autem ut nocte quadam, cum milites quindecim castrum desertores ex desperatione scapham intrantes navigio fugam attemptassent, in crastino mane Giraldus eorum armigeris arma dominorum cum feodis dedit, ipsosque statim militari cingulo decoravit. Invalescente vero et gravius incumbente per moram temporis obsidionis incommodo, cum ad ultimam fere inedian jam in castro perducti fuissent, Giraldus, ex summa prudentia spem simulans et solatia spondens, quatuor qui adhuc supererant bacones a propugnaculis frustatim ad hostes projici fecit. Die vero sequente ad figmenta recurrens exquisitoria, literas sigillo suo signatas coram hospite Menevensis episcopi, cui nomen Wilfredus,² qui forte tunc aderat, tanquam casu a portitore dilapsas inveniri procuravit. Erat autem literarum continentia, quod infra menses quatuor comitem Arnulfum super castrum subventionem sollicitari non oporteat. Quo per exercitum literis lectis audito, statim obsidione dispersa ad propria singuli sunt reversi.

¹ Brecheniauc] D.; Brechenien, R. B. Rhys ab Tewdwr was killed in battle in 1091 (Brut, and Annal. Camb.). The siege of Pembroke castle, here described by Giraldus, would seem to have taken place in 1092 (Brut).

² If the date given in the last note to this siege be correct, then Wilfred, according to Giraldus, must have been bishop of St. David's in 1092. Professor Stubbs (Episc. Success. 155), a most perilous person to differ from, places Rithmarch as bishop from 1088 to 1096, when he was succeeded by Wilfred; but I think he must be for once wrong. The Brut and Annal. Camb. say that Sulien resigned in 1076, and was succeeded by Abraham, who died in 1078. Sulien then again assumed the bishoprick; and again resigning it in 1083, was succeeded, according to Annal. Camb., by his brother, and according to Brut, by Wilfre. Brut, in 1097, records the death of "Rythmarch the Wise, son of bishop Sulien, the wisest of the wise amongst the Britons," but says nothing of his having been a bishop. Giraldus (infra, 104) gives the succession thus, "Sulghein, Abraham, Wilfre," naturally not mentioning Sulien's temporary resumption after Abraham's death.

Nec mora. Giraldus ille,¹ ut altiores in finibus illis sibi suisque radices figeret, Griphini principis Sudwalliæ sororem, cui nomen Nesta, sibi lege maritali copulavit. De qua, processu temporis, egregiam utriusque sexus prolem suscepit; per quam et Anglis australis Kambriæ maritima retenta, et Hiberniæ mœnia [post-modum]² sunt expugnata, sicut Vaticinalis declarat Historia.

Soon after,
Girald de
Windsor marries the princess Nesta.

Contigit³ in hoc Penbrochiæ castro nostris temporibus, virum quemdam intra septa domus suæ mustelæ catulos in vellere quodam invenisse. Quos cum illæsos ex industria cum ipso vellere a loco removens abscondisset, bestiola rediens, post crebros undique quærendo nec inveniendo discursus, materno tandem mota dolore, ad vasculum lacte plenum quo parvulus educebatur filius herilis accessit, et statim se supra vas erigens collectum intra se virus evomuit, et lacteum condimento letali potum infecit; tanquam perditæ prolis angustias prolis amissione compensans. Vir autem, his observatis omnibus, vellus ad locum reportavit. Et ecce mustela, materna solitudine inter spem et metum anxia,

Anecdote of a weasel.

89.

“ Falsosque frequens mentita dolores,” depositum invenit; et continuo lætitiā tam gestu quam voce professa, ad vasculum præscriptum celerrime reversa est; eversoque statim continente, totum quod continebatur effudit; tanquam recuperatæ prolis ob gratiam, hospitem illæsum fore statuens et indemnem.

Contigit et alibi, cum bestiola hujusmodi fetus tene-ros, ob solis et auræ temperiem, extra dumos in plani-tiem eduxisset, quod milvus insidians unum ex catulis asportavit: et statim illa intra fruticum septa cum prole residua se suscepit, et exquisitæ vindictæ decipu-

Another.

¹ ille] D., Camden; iste, R. B. Hc. Not in Rd.

² postmodum] Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. D.

³ This, or a very similar anecdote of a weasel, is related by Neckam, De Naturis Rerum, 201.

lam matri dolor ministravit. Exiens igitur, in tumulo¹ quodam se resupinam dedit, et in ipso prædonis prospectu jam reversi se quasi mortuam finxit. Et quoniam semper successus augent aviditatem, statim aviseam avide rapiens ad alta transvexit. Nec mora: et ecce a vindicis animi bestia, venenosi dentis morsu, ad ima corruit jugulata.

Maenor
Pyr, or Ma-norbeer, where Gi-raldus
born.

Distat autem a Penbrochiae castro quasi miliaribus tribus castellum quod Maynaurpir dicitur,² id est, Mansio Piri: qui et insulam *Caldei*³ habebat, quam *Kambri*⁴ Enispir, id est, Insulam Pirri vocant. Stat autem hoc castrum, turribus et propugnaculis eximium, in collis cujusdam capite versus marinum ab occidente portum extenti;⁵ a circio et borea sub ipsis muralibus vivarium habens egregium, tam sui majestate quam aquarum profunditate conspicuum; pomerium quoque perpulchrum ab eodem latere, hinc vivario, inde nemore conclusum, tam saxorum prominentia, quam corylorum quoque proceritate præclaro. A dextra⁶ vero castrensis promontorii parte, inter castrum scilicet et ecclesiam, ad stagni amplissimi statum et molendini situm, sabulosam vi ventorum convallem indeficientibus undis rivus inserpit. Ab occidente sinuoso quodam in angulo mare Sabrinum, jamjam prope in Hibernicum vergens, non procul a castro distante subintrat; australi scopulo, si paulo in boream se plus protenderet, aptum navium receptioni portum faciente. Naves igitur quas-cunque fere a majori Britannia in Hiberniam eurus impellit, ab hoc prospectu tam formidandam ventorum inconstantiam, quam furibundam et cæcam fretorum rabiem videas audacter attentare. Terra triticea;

¹ tumulo] D. Rd., Camden; cumulo, R. B. Hc.

² quod Maynaurpir dicitur] R. B. D., &c. Hc. has "Manorpir" only.

³ Caldei] D.; Kaldei, R. B.

⁴ Kambri] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁵ extenti] D. Rd.; extensi, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁶ dextra] R. B. Hc., &c.; dextris, D.

piscibus marinis, vinoque venali copiose referta; et, quod omnibus præstat, ex Hiberniæ confinio aeris salubritate temperata.

Terrarum igitur omnium Kambriæ totius, septem cantaredis conserta Demetia tam pulcherrima est quam potissima; Demetiæ vero, Pembrochia; Pembrochiæ quidem, terra præscripta. Restat igitur,¹ ut Kambriæ totius locus sit hic amcenissimus.

In the most delightful spot of all Wales.

Non itaque mirandum, non venia indignum, si natale solum, genialeque territorium, profusioribus laudum titulis auctor extulerit.

In his autem Pembrochiæ partibus nostris accidit temporibus, spiritus immundos cum hominibus non visibiliter sed sensibiliter conversatos.² In domibus namque primo Stephani cujusdam Wiriet,³ et postea processu temporis Willelmi Not, jactu sordium, et eorum quibus illudere potius quam lædere videntur,⁴ sui præsentiam ostendebant.⁵ In domo Guillelmi, non absque frequenti tam hospitis quam hospitem damno, tam lineis quam laneis scissuras in vestibis atque foramina faciebat; a quibus eas incommodis nulla poterat diligentia, nulla penitus sera tueri. In domo Stephani, majori miraculo, cum hominibus sermocinari consueverat; et conviciantibus ei, quod plerique ludrico faciebant, a nativitatibus tempore⁶ gesta, quæ minus ab aliis vel audiri vel sciri voluerant, palam improperabat.

Evil spirits sensibly conversing with men.

90.

Si causam quæris eventus hujus⁷ et rationem, assignare non præsumo: nisi quod subitæ mutationis, vel

¹ igitur] R. B. He., Camden; ergo, D. Not in Rd.

² See the Margan Annals, A° 1184. Is not "Devoniensi" there a mistake for Demeticensi, or some such word?

³ Wiriet] D.; Wnriet, R. B.

⁴ videntur] R. B. He., &c.; videntur, D.

⁵ ostendebant] D. Rd.; ostentabant, R. B. He., Camden.

⁶ tempore] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁷ hujus] D.; ejus, Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He.

paupertatis in divitias, vel potius divitiarum in paupertatem et desolationem, præsigium, ut dicitur, esse solebat: sicut et in his ambobus paulo post compertum fuit.

Illud autem hic notabile censui, quod nec aquæ benedictæ respersione, non tantum communis sed etiam magnæ, nec ullius ecclesiastici sacramenti remedio, ab illusionibus hujusmodi loca mundantur. Quinimmo¹ sacerdotes ipsi, cum devotione intrantes, et tam cruce bajula quam aqua benedicta muniti, statim inter primos sordium jactu dehonestantur. Ex quibus constare videtur, quod a nocivis, non innocuis, a læsionibus, non illusionibus, tam sacramentalia quam² sacramenta tuentur.

The woman possessed by a devil in Poitou.

Notandum³ hic autem, his nostris diebus in Pictavia energumenam fuisse a diabolo possessam, qui et per os ejus loquebatur, disserens et disputans acute et artificiose⁴ cum literatis et disertis. Exprobrabat etiam interdum hominibus ea quæ secretius gesserant, et quæ minus audire voluerant. Cum autem liber evangelicus, vel sanctorum reliquiæ, super os obsessæ quandoque ponerentur, ad inferiorem gutturis partem fugiebat: et cum ibi ponerentur, in ventrem descendebat. Apparebat autem per inflationes quasdam et commotiones partium illarum quas possidebat: et cum iterum ponerentur reliquiæ ad partes inferiores in quibus apparebat, statim redibat ad superiores. Cum autem demum attulissent corpus Christi, et laboranti dedissent, respondit dæmon; "Stulti, nihil est quod agitis; non enim cibus est corporis sed animæ quod ei datis. Mihi autem non est data potestas in animam, sed in corpus." Cum autem hi, quibus secretiora sua

¹ Quinimmo] Hc. D., &c.; Quinimmo et, R. B.

² tam sacr. quam] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

³ Notandum, &c.] This section in

D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Related more briefly in the Gemma Ecclesiastica (Vol. ii. 53).

⁴ artificiose] Rd., Camden; artificie, D.

improperaverat, confessione super his facta et pœnitentia secuta, redissent, nihil eis improperabat. Quin immo quibusdam dicebat, "Scivi quidem, scivi; sed " nunc ignoro:" aliis autem quasi convicium hoc emittebat, "At¹ ego taceo; [quod enim scio, nescio.]"² Ex quibus apparet, quia post confessionem et pœnitentiam vel omnino hominum peccata dæmones nesciunt, vel ad damnum eorum et dedecus ea nesciunt. 90 b. Quia, ut ait Augustinus, "Si homo tegit, Deus detegit; " si homo detegit, Deus tegit."

Nonnullos etiam movere solet, quod fulmina frequenter ecclesias nostras et templa cadendo dejiciunt; Churches, crosses, &c. struck by lightning. cruces quoque et Crucifixi imagines, coram oculis cuncta cernentis et hoc³ permittentis, plerumque feriendo diminuunt. Quibus nihil aliud ad præsens nisi illud Ovidii respondere dignum duxi;

" Summa petit livor, perflant altissima venti, Ov. Rem. Am. 369.
" Summa petunt dextra fulmina missa Jovis."

Sicut et Petrus Abaelardus egregie suo in tempore, Abelard's retort on a Jew. in præsentia Philippi Francorum regis, cuidam Judæo respondisse memoratur, hæc et similia in opprobrium fidei objicienti. "Verum," inquit, "quia fulmina, ab " alto descendunt a domicilio, ad ea quæ in terris " sublimiora reperiunt, suæque naturæ similiora, se " frequentius applicant.

" Interdum⁴ etiam ministerio dæmonum et malitia, " dum nubium collisione exorta pariter et extorta " vage per aerem in ima feruntur, inter res prædictas, " aut ipsas etiam hominum personas, ut vel fidem " lædere valeant vel fideles, impelli permittuntur. " Ideoque in synagogas vestras nunquam fulmina

¹ At] D.; Id, Rd.; Et, Camden.

² quod enim scio nescio] Rd., Camden. Not in D.

³ hoc] D., Camden; hæc, R. B. Hc. Rd.

⁴ Interdum permittuntur]

This clause in D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

“ cadunt, quia nec in cloacas unquam¹ ea cecidisse “ vel vidit quispiam vel audivit.”

And of a Cistercian abbot on a French
 knight.

Unde et² hic notabile censeo, quod cum in Francia nostris diebus inter monachos Cisterciensis ordinis et militem quemdam, super metis agrorum et terrarum suarum terminis, contentio sæpe fuisset, et acciderit aliquando vi tempestatis ingruente culturam monachorum, damno eorundem non modico, nocte quadam funditus destructam et demolitam fuisse, cultura militis ei contermina et quasi continua indemni penitus et illæsa manente, miles ea occasione in monachos insolenter invectus, monachorum injuriam in agri illius possessione divinitus declaratam publice proclamavit. Abbas autem, hoc audito, satis facete respondit, nequaquam ita esse, sed plures habuisse militem amicos in illo equitatu quam monasterium, monachos e contra hostes ibidem plures et inimicos, verius esse demonstravit.

91.

Sensible and visible appearance of the son of an incubus demon.

In hac³ eadem provincia de Pembroch, tertio in loco, domo videlicet Eliodori de Stakepole, circa eadem fere tempora, non solum sensibiliter sed et visibiliter, sub juvenis rufi specie, qui et Simonem se vocabat, quidam apparuit. Hic primo claves a clavigero præripiens, se ad seneschaliam domus regendam impudenter ingressit. Eam tamen tam provide, ut videbatur, tamque⁴ prudenter administrabat, ut omnia sub ejus manibus abundare, nullusque defectus in domo fieri posse videretur. Quicquid autem lieris et hera ad quotidianos usus vel esus aut præmeditati fuerant, aut secreto⁵ prælocuti, id ipse non præmonitus, non invitatus, mirabili explebat agilitate, dicens, “ Id fieri “ vultis, hoc vobis fiet.” Thesauros autem ipsorum, et

¹ unquam] R. B. He., &c.; nunquam, D.

² This section, Unde et demonstravit, in D. Rd., Camden. Not in E. B. He.

³ This section, In hac professa, in He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ tamque] He. Rd., Camden; tam, D.

⁵ secreto] D., &c. Not in He.

secretas repositiones omnes¹ sciebat, eisque aliquoties exprobrabat. Nam quoties avare aliquid aut parce nimis² agi volebant, dicebat; “ Ut quid acervum illum “ aut illum³ auri vel argenti tangere timetis et “ expendere? Brevissimi nempe dies vestri sunt: “ pecuniaque, quam tantopere congeritis, nunquam “ vobis erit ad usus aliquos proventura.” Rusticis autem, ministrisque domus mercenariis,⁴ pretiosiora libentius cibaria atque pocula ministrabat, dicens ea illis præcipue cum abundantia largiri debere, quorum erant laboriosis operibus acquisita. Quicquid autem agi statuerat, quanquam id domino vel dominæ displiceret, quoniam secreta eorum, ut diximus, omnia noverat, et quoniam cuncta fere tam expedite tanque mature gerebat, sine omni contradictione complebat. Ecclesiam autem⁵ nunquam adibat, nec verbum aliquod catholicum unquam pronunciabat. In domo nocte non jacebat, sed mane quotidie ad obsequia promptus astabat. Observatus tandem a familia domus cum⁶ forte fuisset, circa molendinum et aquæ stagnum nocturna ejusdem inventa est conversatio. Quo comperto, statim in crastino coram domino domus constitutus et domina, claves, quas quadraginta diebus vel amplius gestaverat, eis licentiam accipiendo porrexit. Interrogatus autem in discessu et obtestatus quisnam esset, respondit, se in uxore rustici cujusdam de parochia eadem sub specie mariti ab incubo spiritu fuisse progenitum, nominans virum ac vitricum⁷ suum jam defunctum, et matrem suam⁸ adhuc susperstitem. Cujus inquisita diligentius rei certitudine, sic in veritate fuisse palam mulier est professa.

91 b.

¹ omnes] D. Rd. Not in Hc., Camden.

² nimis] D., &c. Not in Hc.

³ aut illum] D. Not in Hc. Rd., Camden.

⁴ mercenariis] D., &c.; et mercenariis, Hc.

⁵ autem] D., &c. Not in Hc.

⁶ cum] D., &c.; ubi, Hc.

⁷ vitricum] Rd., Camden; vitricum, Hc. D.

⁸ suam] D., &c. Not in Hc.

A similar instance in Denmark.

Similis¹ hujus in Dacia nostris diebus casus accidit. Archiepiscopo namque clericus quidam ignotus adhæsit, qui sub obtentu obsequii, quia diligens et discretus esse videbatur, literarum etiam et historiarum omnium promptissimam habebat notitiam atque memoriam, magnam cum ipso familiaritatem in brevi contraxit. Quadam autem die, cum narraret archiepiscopo de historiis antiquis et ignotis rerum eventibus, unde ipsum libenter et frequenter audiebat, accidit ut de tempore incarnationis Dominicæ loqueretur; qui et inter alia et hoc subjunxit; “Antequam Christus carnem sumpsisset, magnam habebant dæmones in genus humanum potestatem; sed in adventu ipsius valde diminuta fuerat eorum potestas; adeo quidem ut a facie ipsius undique diffugerint et dissipaverint.”² Alii namque in mare se præcipitaverunt; alii in concavitates arborum, et rimas petrarum; et ego ipse in fontem quemdam insilii.” Quo dicto, quasi verecundans erubuit, et surgens statim exivit. Archiepiscopus autem, et qui cum eo fuerant, vehementer admirantes, cœperunt de verbo illo ad invicem inquirere, et plurima conjecturare.³ Et cum moram aliquantam ille fecisset, putabatur enim statim reversurus, præcepit archiepiscopus cuidam suorum illum vocare. Ipse vero, vocatus et quæsitus undique, nusquam comparuit. Nec longe post duo clerici, quos archiepiscopus Romam miserat, reversi sunt: Quibus cum archiepiscopus et sui rem gestam et eventum illum retulisset, cœperunt illi inquirere diem eventus illius et horam. Quod cum audissent, dixerunt quod eodem die et hora eadem obviaverat eis in Alpibus, dicens se propter negotia domini sui, scilicet archiepiscopi, nuper emersa, ad curiam Romanam fuisse transmissum. Sic-que compertum est dæmonem ipsos in humano corpore delusisse.

¹ This section, Similis . . . delusisse, in D., &c. Not in R. B. Hc.

² dissipaverint] D. Rd.; disappeared, Camden.

³ conjecturare] D. Rd.; conjecture, Camden.

De falconibus quoque partium istarum egregiis et generosis, qui gravissimam in aves tam fluviales quam campestris tyrannidem exercent, prætereundum non putavi. Unde et Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, cum in partibus istis iter in Hiberniam parando moram aliquamdiu faceret, et avium aliquando volatu delectari voluisset, “falconem¹ nobilem in saxo quodam sedentem cum “forte conspiceret, eundem lateraliter² ambiendo, accipitrem “Norwagiensem generosum et grandem quem gestabat a³ “læva projecit. Falco vero, quanquam in primis tardior, ad “alta tamen vix subvectus, iraque⁴ vindice vice versa de “præda prædo jam effectus, a summis impetuosius ad ima “descendens, quadrati pectoris ictu vehementi, præpositaque “talorum armatura, talionem reddens, ad pedes regios accipitrem confodiendo prostravit. Unde et ab hac hora singulis “rex annis, circa nidificationis tempora, propter falcones “terræ illius qui marinis in rupibus excluduntur, mittere “consuevit. Nec in terræ sua nobiliores illis aut præstantiores invenit.” Sed hæc hactenus: ad viam de cetero revertamur.

Falcons of these parts.

92.

Henry II. and his Norway hawk.

[CAP. XIII.]

De transitu per Kamros et Neugol,⁵ cum notabilibus suis.

Iter igitur ab Haverfordia versus Meneviam, quasi miliaribus duodecim inde distantem, aggredientes, primo per Kamros; ubi pro juvenis egregii, Giraldi scilicet filii Guillelmi nece, multorum cædibus cruen-

Progress from Haverford to St. David's.

¹ falconem, &c.] This from Exp. Hib. (vol. v. 274). Henry II. was here, on his way to Ireland, in October 1171.

² lateraliter] B. He. D., &c., and F. by alteration; letaliter, R., and F. originally.

³ a] D. Not in R. B. He. Rd., &c.

⁴ iraque] R. B. He. Rd., &c.; ira, D.

⁵ Neugol] D.; Niwegal, R. B. And so in other cases. See supra, 10, n. 2; 86, n. 6.

Denudation of an ancient forest, in the stormy winter of 1171-2.

92 b.

tam¹ nimis et gravem, tempore Stephani regis, propinqui et necessarii sui, quanquam minus in hoc necessarii, vindictam in Rosenses exercuerant; deinde per sabulum de Neugol transivimus; ubi et ea tempestate qua prædictus Anglorum rex Henricus secundus in Hiberniæ finibus hyemavit, necnon et aliis fere cunctis partium illarum portubus² ab occidente marinis, res contigit non indigna memoratu. “Ex nimia”³ nimirum “præter solitum procellæ vehementia, sabulosus australis Kambriæ litoribus solo tenuis sabulo nudatis, longis operta retro seculis terræ facies apparuit; arborumque in ipsum mare stipites stantium undique præcisarum, ictusque securium tanquam hesterni, terra quoque nigerrima, lignaque truncorum ebene simillima; mirandis⁴ rerum mutationibus, ut⁵ olim navium via nunc navibus invia, non⁶ litus jam sed lucus esse videretur, aut forte a diluvii tempore, aut potius longo⁷ post, antiquitus tamen tam præcisus, quam maris violentia, semper exerescentis et terram amplius eluentis, paulatim absumptus et absorptus.”

Contigit etiam inaudita tempestatibus ejusdem rabie congros, aliosque marinos pisces per plurimos, trans rupes maris altissimas vi ventorum intra dumeta projectos a multis reperiri. Apud Meneviam igitur a loci ejusdem antistite Petro, viro videlicet personali et liberali, qui nobis individuus hætenus in via comes extiterat, decenter exhibiti pernoctavimus.

*Explicit*⁸ Liber primus.

¹ cruentam] R. B. Hc., &c.; cruentatam, D.

² portubus] R. B. Hc., &c.; partibus, D.

³ Ex nimia, &c.] This from Expug. Hibern. (vol. v. 284).

⁴ mirandis] R. B. Hc., &c., Exp. Hib.; mirandisque, D.

⁵ ut] R. B. Hc., Exp. Hib.; quod ubi, D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁶ non] R. B. Hc., &c., Exp. Hib.; nec, D.

⁷ longo] longe, Exp. Hib.

⁸ Explicit, &c.] B. Hc. D. Rd. Not in R. F.

INCIPIT¹ SECUNDUS.

Quoniam igitur caput est Kambriæ Menevia, et urbs olim metropolitana, quanquam hodie plus nominis habens quam omnis, antiquæ tamen et authenticæ matris nostræ tanquam exsequias plangere, et funus prosequi lamentabile, cineresque semisepultæ lacrimosis deplorare singultibus non abstinui. Qualiter huc igitur, et unde,² et a quo tempore pallium allatum, et qualiter ablatum,³ quot palliis induti antistites, et quot spoliati, eorumque nomina, usque ad hæc tempora nostra paucis absolvam.

[CAP. I.]

De sede Menevensi, cum notabilibus suis.

Sicut Britannicæ referunt historiae, apud urbem Legionum, in curia illa magna quam prætaxavimus, beatus Dubricius, loci ejusdem tunc temporis archiepiscopus, David, qui regis Arthuri ut dicitur avunculus extiterat, propter ætatis defectum, et quoniam contemplationi potius indulgere volebat,⁴ cessit honorem: et ex tunc, procurante David, usque Meneviam sedis facta est translatio: quanquam tamen prior ille

Geoffrey,
ix. 15,
supra, 56.

Primacy transferred by David

¹ Incipit, &c.] B. He. D. Not in R. F. In He. and D. it forms one rubric with the "Explicit" supra of Lib. I. Rd. has instead, "Incipit Præfatio Secundi Libri."

² unde] He. D., &c., and F. by alteration; unum, R. B., and F. originally.

³ ablatum] He. D., &c.; suballatum, R. B.

⁴ volebat] D., &c.; voluerat, R. B. He.

from Caerleon to St. David's.

93.

David's sanctity ;

miracles.

Succession of archbishops.

locus, sicut in priori Libro descripsimus, longe metropolitanae sedi plus congruerit.¹ Hic etenim angulus est supra Hibernicum mare remotissimus : terra saxosa, sterilis, et infecunda ; nec silvis vestita, nec fluminibus distincta, nec pratis ornata ; ventis solum et procellis semper exposita ; inter hostiles hodie populos, hinc Flandrensem, inde Kambrensem, frequenter attrita. Ex industria namque viri sancti talia sibi delegerunt habitacula, ut populares strepitus subterfugiendo, vitamque eremiticam longe pastorali præferendo, parti liberius quæ non auferetur indulgerent. Fuerat autem David² sanctitate conspicuus et religione, sicut de vita ipsius testatur liber conscriptus. Inter omnia vero quæ de ipso leguntur miracula, tria mihi videntur admiratione dignissima : de origine videlicet ipsius et conceptione ; et triginta annis ante ortum præelectione ; et quod omnibus præstat, de terra quæ apud Brevi, vidente populo et admirante, sub pedibus prædicantis in collem exerevit.

Sederunt autem a tempore David,² successivis temporum curriculis, archiepiscopi ibidem viginti quinque,³ quorum hæc nomina : David,⁴ Eliud qui et Thelïau vocatur, Keneu, Morwal, Haernueu, Elwaid, Gurnueu, Leudiwit, Gorwiust, Gogaun, Clelauc, Aman, Eludged, Elduven, Elave, Mailswid, Sadurnueu, Catulus, Sulhaithuai, Novis, Sadurnueu, Doithwal, Asser, Archuail, Sampson.

¹ congruerit] He. D., &c. ; congruit, R. B.

² David] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ quinque] D. Rd., Camden ; tres, R. B. He. Compare Descr. Kamb., i. 4 (infra) ; and the De Jure, §c. (vol. iii. 151).

⁴ David, §c.] I give this list as in D. The names of the twenty-three archbishops, in R. B. He., are as follows, with no variations worth noticing : " David, Kenauc, Eliud, " Keneri, Morwal, Haernueu, El- " wid, Gurneu, Lhendivord, Gor- " wiust, Gugaun, Clelauc, Amman, " Eluoed, Ethelemun, Elauc, Mais- " coit, Sadernueu, Nortwal, Aser, " Artwail, Idwalaui, Sampson." See Professor Stubbs' Episcopal Succession, 154.

Tempore¹ Sampsonis hujus, pallium in hunc modum est translatum. Ingruente per Kambriam, isto præsidente, peste quadam, qua catervatim plebs occubuit, quam flavam pestem vocabant, quam et physici ictericam dicunt passionem, præsul, quanquam sanctus et ad mortem intrepidus, tamen ad suorum instantiam navem scandens, flante Circio, cum suis indemnem in Armorica Britannia se suscepit: ubi et vacante tunc forte sede Dolensi, statim ibidem in episcopum est assumptus. Unde contigit ut ob pallii gratiam, quod Sampson secum hinc illuc attulerat, succedentes ibi episcopi usque ad nostra hæc fere tempora, quibus prævalente Turonorum archipræsule adventitia dignitas evanuit, pallia semper obtinuerunt. Nostri vero vel propter ignaviam vel paupertatem, aut potius² propter Anglorum adventum in insulam, et Saxoniam interpositam hostilitatem, ea occasione continue pristina caruerunt dignitate. Semper tamen usque ad plenam, quæ per Anglorum regem Henricum primum facta est, Kambriæ subactionem, episcopi Guallia a Menevensi antistite sunt consecrati;³ et ipse similiter ab aliis⁴ tanquam suffraganeis est consecratus;⁵ nulla penitus alii ecclesiæ facta professione vel subjectione.

The pall removed by Sampson to Dol in Brittany.

93 b.

Sederunt autem a Sampsonis ibidem tempore, usque ad prædicti Henrici primi tempora, novemdecim,⁶ quo-

Bishops of St. David's after Sampson.

¹ Tempore] D., Camden; Tempore autem, R. B. Hc. Rd. This section is repeated in the De Jure, &c. (vol. iii. 151).

² aut potius . . . hostilitatem] D. Rd., Camden, De Jure. Not in R. B. Hc.

³ sunt consecrati] R. B. Hc., &c., and De Jure; munus consecrationis obtinuisse feruntur, D.

⁴ aliis] R. B. Hc., &c., and De Jure; illis, D.

⁵ est consecratus] R. B. Hc., &c., and De Jure; consecrari solet, D.

⁶ novemdecim . . . Wilfre] D. In R. B. Hc., with scarcely any variation in the spelling of the names, we have this: "episcopi xxi., quorum hæc nomina; Ruelm, Retherch, " Elgiun, Morbiu, Lunnerd, Nergu, " Sulhidir, Eneuris, Morgeneu, Nathan, Johannes, Augustus, Mor- " genueth, Blethuth, Eruin, Trame- " rin, Joseph, Blethuth, Sulgen, " Abraham, Wilfridus." Compare Descr. Kamb., i. 4 (infra), and the De Jure (vol. iii. 151). See Professor Stubbs' Episc. Success., 155.

rum hæc nomina; Kuelm, Retherth, Eluin, Lunuere, Nergu, Sulidir, Eneuris, Morgeneu; qui primus inter episcopos Meneviæ carnes comedit, et ibidem a piratis interfectus est; unde et eadem nocte quam duxit extremam apparuit cuidam episcopo in Hibernia, ostendens vulnera sua et dicens, "Quia carnes comedi, caro factus sum;" Nathan, Iewan, hic Iewan una sola nocte vixit episcopus, Arwistel, Morgenennith, Eruin, Tramerin, Joseth, Bleidhud, Sulghein, Abraham, Wilfre. Post hos vero, subacta jam Wallia, usque hodie tres: tempore regis Henrici primi Bernardus, tempore¹ regis Stephani David secundus, tempore regis Henrici secundi Petrus Cluniacensis monachus. Qui tres, regio urgente mandato, Cantuariæ² consecrationem susceperunt.³ Sicut et⁴ quartus, his succedaneus tempore regis Johannis, nomine Gaufredus, Lanthoniensis prior et canonicus, per operam Huberti Cantuariensis archiepiscopi in eadem sede promotus, et ab eodem consecratus.

Baldwin
the first archbishop of Canterbury to enter Wales.

De nullo vero Cantuariensi antistite legitur, vel post subjectionem⁵ istam vel ante, Kambriæ fines intrasse, præter hunc solum; qui legationis hujus occasione, et salutiferæ crucis obsequio, terram tam⁶ hispidam, tam inaccessibilem et remotam laudabili devotione circuivit, ¹ tempore . . secundus] Omitted, by mistake, in R. B.; more is omitted in Rd. Hc. has "vero" after tempore.

Bernard was consecrated Sept. 19, 1115, and died in 1147; David, consecrated Dec. 19, 1148, died May 8, 1176; Peter, consecrated Nov. 7, 1176, died July 16, 1198.

² Cantuariæ] R. B. Hc., &c.; a Cantuariensi, D. Either reading involves a mis-statement. David and Peter were consecrated at Canterbury, but Bernard at Westminster. Bernard and David were consecrated by archbishops of Canterbury; but the officiating bishop at Peter's consecration was Gilbert Foliot, bishop of London.

³ susceperunt] R. B. Hc., &c.; acceperunt, D.

⁴ Sicut et . . consecratus] D., &c. Not in R. B. Hc. Geoffrey was consecrated Dec. 7, 1203, and died in 1214.

⁵ subjectionem] Hc. D., &c.; subactionem, R. B.

⁶ tam] B. Hc. D., &c. Not in R. F.

et in ¹ singulis cathedralibus ecclesiis, tanquam ² investituræ cujusdam signum, missam celebravit.

Adeo autem, ante finales hos dies et tempora novissima, Menevensis ecclesia Cantuariensem nullo subjectio-Until just latterly, the church of 94. St. David's in no way subject to Canterbury.
 nis vinculo respiciebat, ut etiam in Anglicana Historia, Beda ³ referente, legatur; Augustinum Anglorum episcopum, post conversionem regis Æthelfridi et Anglorum populi, episcopos Gualliaë in confinio Occidentalium Saxonum et Britonum, tanquam sedis apostolicæ legatus, ⁴ convocasse. Et cum septem episcopi venissent, quoniam Augustinus in sella sedens venientibus Romano fastu non assurrexit, eum superbiæ notantes, sumpto quidem a viro quodam anachorita de gente sua sanctissimo experimenti illius documento, tam ipsum quam ejus statuta statim reversi spreverunt; nec ipsum pro archiepiscopo se habituros publice proclamabant; testantes ad invicem quia “Si nunc nobis assurgere “ noluit, quanto magis, si ei subdi cœperimus, jam nos
 “ pro nihilo contemnet?”

Quod ⁵ autem septem tunc erant episcopi Britonum, cum hodie non nisi quatuor, hæc ratio assignari potest; quia plures tunc forte fuerant in hoc Gualliaë spatio, quam nunc sunt, sedes cathedrales; vel potius, se tunc ampliori Guallia fine, quia ⁶ usque ad Sabrinæ fluvium, dilatabat.

Inter tot ⁷ igitur episcopos tanto privatos honore, Bishop Bernard.
 solus Bernardus ille, primus Francorum apud Meneviam episcopus, ecclesiæ suæ jura publice protestans, post multas sumptuosas et graves ad curiam Romanam

¹ et in . . . celebravit] R. B. D., &c. Not in Hc.

² tanquam] D. Rd., Camden; tanquam in, R. B.

³ Hist. Eccl., ii. 2, in brief substance only.

⁴ legatus] R. B. Hc. D. Rd.; legatum, Camden.

⁵ Quod] Hc. D., &c.; Idem, R.

B., and F. originally, but altered to “ibidem.”

⁶ quia . . . fluvium] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁷ Inter tot, &c.] This section and the following one are repeated in the De Jure, &c. (vol. iii. 152), not quite word for word.

vexationes, demum nisi¹ professionis factæ, et subjectionis exhibitæ Cantuariensi ecclesiæ veri aut falsi testes, coram Eugenio papa Meldis in Francia palam prodiissent, non ineffaciter reclamasset. Tribus igitur fultus auxiliis, tam formidabiles tantæ causæ conflictus confidenter est aggressus; regis videlicet Henrici primi familiaritate subnixus plurima et favore, tempore pacifico gaudens, et pacis sequela sufficienti.² Adeo quidem, ex nimie securitatis audacia, debito de jure [confidebat]³ quandoque [et]³ præsumpsit, ut et⁴ crucem interdum sibi præferri per Kambriæ fines attemptasset.

94 b. Bernardus iste, quanquam in aliquo commendabilis, pompositatis tamen et ambitionis vitio trans modestiam notabilis fuerat. Quoniam enimvero de curia exierat, et plantatio regis extiterat, ad Anglicanas opulentias per translationem semper anhelans, quo morbo laborant [fere]⁵ singuli ab Angliæ finibus hic intrusi, terras ecclesiæ suæ plurimas infructuose penitus et inutiliter alienavit. Alias vero tam improvide et tam indiscrete divisit, ut ubi militaribus officiis decem terræ carucatas, viginti, vel⁶ triginta amplissima manu largiretur, ibi divinis sanctique David obsequiis et canonicis, ab ipso misere nimis et infeliciter institutis, vix unam, vix duas vel tres impertiret.

¹ nisi . . . prodiissent] D. Rd., De Jure; nisi factæ professionis falsi testes in Remensi concilio palam prodiissent, R. B. Hc. Camden's text is compounded from these two readings. See the De Jure, §c. (vol. iii. 180), where is a letter of pope Eugenius on the subject to archbishop Theobald, dated "Mel-dis." At p. 168 of the De Jure, Giraldus states that Bernard moved the question before pope Eugenius, "quasi xxvii. suæ promotionis anno," which would be in 1141 or 1142; but Eugenius did not become pope until February 27, 1145. See also De Invectionibus (vol. iii. 50-53).

² sufficienti] D. Rd.; sufficientia, R. B. Hc., Camden, De Jure.

³ confidebat and et] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c., or De Jure.

⁴ et] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁵ fere] Not in R. B. Hc. D. In Rd., Camden, De Jure.

⁶ viginti vel] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

De duabus¹ autem sedibus istis de quibus facta est mentio, Cantuariensi videlicet et Menevensi, quod mihi videtur juxta moderna tempora paucis edisseram. Illinc hodie regum favor, opum affluentia, suffraganeorum antistitum opulenta numerositas, literatorum et juris-peritorum copia multa; hinc autem omnium istorum defectus, et jus remotum. Quapropter, nisi per regnorum forte mutationes, rerumque vicissitudines magnas, quæ variis et inopinatis eventibus accidere solent, difficilis erit [antiqui juris]² recuperatio.

Probable future of St. David's in regard to Canterbury.

Dicitur autem locus ubi ecclesia Menevensis sita est, et in honore beati Andreae apostoli primo fundata, Vallis Rosina. Quæ tamen marmorea potius quam vel³ rosea vel rosina dici posset; quoniam rosis minime, marmore vero plurimum abundat.

Name of the site of St. David's.

Labitur hic autem Aluni fluvius, aqua turbida et infecunda, cœmiterium lateraliter a borea disternans, sub lapide Lechlavar marmoreo pedibus transeuntium perpolito; de cujus quantitate, qualitate, et nominis ratione, in Vaticinali Historia disseruimus. Ubi rex Anglorum Henricus secundus, ab Hibernia rediens, per eundem lapidem transeundo devote Sancti Andreae Sanctique David ecclesiam intrasse describitur, in hunc modum.⁴

The river Alan, and the stone Lechlavar, vol. v. 287.

“ Relictis ergo demum custodibus; apud Dubliniam videlicet Hugone de Lacy, cui jam Midiam in feodum donaverat, cum militibus viginti, Stephanide quoque et Mauricio Giraldide, cum aliis viginti; Guaterfordiæ vero Humfredo Bohonensi, Roberto filio Bernardi, et Hugone de Gundevilla, cum militibus quadraginta; Gueisefordiæ Guillelmo Aldelini⁵ filio, et Philippo de Breusa, cum viginti; Paschali luce

95.

¹ De duabus, &c.] This section repeated in the De Jure, &c. (vol. iii. 103).

² antiqui juris] Rd., Camden, De Jure. Not in R. B. He. D.

³ vel] R. B. He., &c. Not in D.

⁴ in hunc modum] This, and the three sections which follow, repeated here from Expug. Hibern., i. 38 (vol. v. 286), are in D. Rd., Camden; but not in R. B. He.

⁵ Aldelini] It is quite uncertain, in D., whether this or Aldelmi be the reading intended. I write “Aldelini” because such is certainly the reading of the early and best

Henry II.
and the abusive Welsh-
woman.

“ secunda, sole recens orto, apud Gueisfordiam, exterioro “ scilicet portus limbo, navem scandens, circio flante, pro“ spero navigio in portu Menevensi circa meridiem rex appli“ cuit. Accedens itaque Meneviam devote, peregrinantium “ more, pedes baculoque suffultus, cōnicorum ecclesia “ processionem, ipsum debita reverentia et honore suscipien“ tium, apud albam portam obviam invenit.

“ Accidit autem ut procedente seriatim processione, et rite “ procedente, mulier Kambrica ad pedes regis se subito “ provolveret; quæ et, querimonia de loci illius episcopo facta, “ et regi per interpretis linguam exposita, quoniam jus suum “ incontinenti non est assecuta, voce altisona et proterva, cum “ manuum quoque complosione non modica, cœpit coram “ omnibus exclamando ingeminare, ‘Vindica nos hodie, “ ‘Lechlavar; vindica genus et gentem de homine hoc.’ Cum“ que ab illis qui Britannicam linguam noverant inhiberetur “ et expelleretur, ipsa quoque tanto fortius et acrius in hunc “ modum vociferabat; alludens illi fictitio vulgari, nec vero “ Merlini proverbio, quo dici solebat, Angliæ regem Hiberniæ “ triumphatorem, ab homine cum rubra manu in Hibernia “ vulneratum, per Meneviam redeundo super Lechlavar mori“ turum. Erat autem hoc nomen lapidis, qui trans flumen “ Aluni, quod cœmiterium a boreali ecclesiæ parte præter-“ fluendo disternat, jacens, [quo]¹ vice pontis fungebatur.
“ Erat autem lapis hic marmoreus et pulcher, transeuntium “ pedibus superficie tenuis perpolitus, decem pedes in longum “ et sex in latum præferens, et unius pedis spissitudinem ha-“ bens. Sonat autem Lechlavar Britannica lingua Lapis “ loquax. Erat enim de lapide hoc ab antiquo vulgata relatio, 95 b. “ quod cum hominis cadaver super illum aliquando deferretur, “ eadem hora in sermonem erumpens ipso conatu crepuit “ medius, fissuram² adhuc per medium prætendens. Unde “ et de barbarica superstitione illi antiquitus exhibita, usque “ in hodiernum quoque per ipsum mortuorum corpora non “ efferuntur.

“ Accedens igitur ad lapidem rex, quia forte illius vaticinii “ mentionem audierat, ad pedem lapidis paulisper gradum “ sistens, et eundem acriter intuens, incunctante tamen passu “ audacter pertransiit, Verso itaque vultu ad lapidem re-“ spiciens, in vatem invectus, verbum hoc indignanter emisit; manuscripts of the Expugnatio. See

vol. v. 219, n. 2. After Aldelini filio, the Exp. Hib. has, “Philippo “ de Hastings;” and it assigns to the three 30 milites.

¹ quo] Not in Rd., Camden, Exp. Hib. In D.

² fissuram] Rd., Camden, Exp. Hib.; fixuram, D.

“ ‘Merlino mendaci quis de cetero fidem habeat?’ ” Lecator¹ autem ibi cum aliis astans, et rei eventum observans, ut vatis injuriam vindicaret, sic alta voce subiecit; ‘Tu vero non es rex ille, qui Hiberniam conquirere debet; nec de te Merlinus mentionem fecit.’ “Et sic rex intrans ecclesiam, in Sancti Andreae Sanctique David honore fundatam, fuis devote orationibus, et missa solemniter audita, a capellano quodam quem solum inter tot loci illius presbyteros ea hora jejunum tanquam ad hoc divina reservaverat providentia, cœna ibidem sumpta, statim ad castrum Haverfordiæ, quasi per miliaria duodecim abinde distans, transmigravit.”

Hoc autem mihi notabile videtur, quod nostris temporibus,² præsidente videlicet David secundo, tam fluvium hunc vino manare, quam fontem quem³ Pistildewi, id est, Fistulam David vocant, quia quasi per fistulam quamdam in cœmiterium ab oriente fons dilabitur, lac stillare constat aliquoties esse compertum.⁴

The Alan flowing with wine; and St. David's spring with milk.

Aves quoque loci istius, quæ monedulæ dicuntur, ex longo pacis usu a clericis ecclesiæ eis exhibitæ, adeo quasi mansuetas et domesticas invenies, ut homines nigris indutos non refugiant.

The tame jackdaws.

Ab hinc⁵ autem sereno tempore montes Hiberniæ prospici possunt; mari Hibernico tantum uno contractiore transnavigabili die interjacente. Unde et Guillelmus, Guillelmi regis bastardi⁶ filius, et Normannorum in Anglia rex secundus, qui⁷ et rex Rufus est agnominatus, Kambriam suo in tempore animose penetrans et circumdans, cum a rupibus istis Hiberniam forte prospiceret, dixisse memoratur; “Ad terram istam

Ireland to be seen from hence.

William Rufus's intention

96. to invade Ireland.

¹ Lecator . . . mentionem fecit] This clause is not in the Exp. Hib., except in one MS. of little or no authority. See vol. v. 288, n. 3.

² temporibus] R. B. D.; diebus, Hc. Rd., Camden.

³ quem] R. B. Hc., &c.; qui, D.

⁴ constat aliquoties esse comper-

tum] R. B. Hc., &c.; aliquoties est compertum, D.

⁵ Ab hinc, &c.] This section is repeated in the De Instr. Princ., p. 144.

⁶ regis bastardi] D. Rd., &c. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁷ qui et . . . agnominatus] D. Rd., &c. Not in R. B. Hc.

“ expugnandam, ex navibus regni mei huc convocatis, “ pontem adhuc faciam.” Quo verbo ad Murchardum tunc Lageniæ principem in Hiberniam forte translato,¹ cum aliquamdiu propensius inde cogitasset, fertur respondisse ; “ Numquid tantæ comminationis verbo rex “ ille ‘ Si Deo placuerit ’ adjeit ? ” Audito vero quod nullam prorsus Dei mentionem in hoc suo sermone rex fecisset, tanquam prognostico gaudens certissimo, “ Quoniam,” inquit, “ homo iste de humana tantum “ confidit potentia, non² divina, ejus adventum non “ formido.”

[CAP. II.]

De transitu per Kemmeis, et monasterium Sancti Dogmaelis, cum notabilibus suis.

Progress
to St. Dogmael's abbey, and Cardigan.

Cum igitur archiepiscopus in ecclesia Sancti David, et ara principali, missam summo diluculo celebrasset, relicto ibidem Menevensi archidiacono prætaxato, eique ad populum officio sermonis injuncto, obviam Reso principi per Kemmeis versus Aberteivi properavit.

Duo vero quæ in provincia de Kemmeis, alterum his nostris diebus, alterum parum ante contigerant, mihi non reticenda³ succurrunt.

The man worried to death by toads.

Hoc itaque nostro tempore contigit [scilicet]⁴ juvenem quemdam, de finibus his oriundum, tantam a bufonibus in ægritudinis lecto persecutionem fuisse perpeßum, ut omnes totius provinciæ tanquam ex conducto in ipsum concurrerent. Et cum a custodibus et amicis ipsius interfecti fuissent infiniti, semper tamen undique confluentes tanquam Hydræ capita sine

¹ translato] R. B. Hc., &c.; de-lato, D.

² non] R. B. Hc., &c.; et non,
D.

³ non reticenda] Hc. D., &c.; non recitanda, B., and R. originally, but non altered to “ nunc ” in margin

by a later hand ; nunc recitanda, F.

⁴ scilicet] Not in R. B. Hc., &c.
In D.

número succreverunt. Tandem vero, lassatis universis tam necessariis quam extraneis, in arbore quadam excelsa, mutilata frondibus et levigata, in loculo quodam est sublimatus. Nec ibi venenosis tutus ab hostibus; immo certatim in arborem rependo petitus, et usque ad ossa consumptus interiit. Nomen vero juvenis fuerat Seisillus Eskeirhir, id est, Tibia longa.

Similem quoque legitur, occulto Dei judicio sed nunquam injusto, murium majorum, qui vulgariter Rati dicuntur, in virum quemdam olim factam persecutionem.

Another, by rats. 96 b.

In eadem¹ provincia, tempore regis Henrici primi, contigit ut vir quidam locuples, a boreali montium de Presseleu² latere mansionem habens, tribus noctibus continue in somnis moneretur, quatinus in fonte proximo, qui Sancti Bernaci fons dicebatur, lapidi qui scaturigini fontis supereminebat manum submitbens, aureum inde torquem extraheret. Qui die tertio monitis obtemperans, vipereo ibidem morsu letalem in digito læsionem suscepit.

A three-nights dream, and its result.

Sed quoniam multos, e diverso, thesauros per somnia constat inventos fuisse, mihi quidem verisimile videtur, sicut rumoribus sic et somniis credi oportere et non oportere locum communem esse.

Quod autem³ in principali de Kemmeis castro, scilicet apud Nanhever,⁴ nostro notabile contigit ævo, hic non prætereo. Resus filius Griphini, instinctu Griphini filii sui viri versipellis et versuti, viro nobili Willelmo filio Martini genero suo, contra sacramenta plurima eidem super indemnitate et securitate sua sibi

Prince Rhys, and his sons, and Ne-vern castle.

¹ In eadem, &c.] This section and the next, Sed . . . communem esse, are repeated from Exp. Hib. (vol. v. 296), but not in the same words.

² Presscleu] D.; Presseli, R. B. and Exp. Hib.

³ Quod autem, &c.] This section and the next, Illud . . . includi, are in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ Nanhever] D.; Lanever, Hc.; Llanhever, Rd. And so again, a few lines below. It is called "Ny-ver" in Brut, "Newer" in Annal. Camb. The existing village,—it was once a place of far more importance,—is now Nefern, or Nevern; but the remnant of the castle is called Llanhyver castle.

tanquam filio perpetuo¹ conservanda pluries super reliquias pretiosissimas corporaliter præstita, castrum² suum de Nanhever ei³ viribus armatis et obsidione sustulit,³ et Griphino filio suo tradidit; contra sacramentum etiam de castro eodem ei nominatim non tradendo specialiter datum. Sed quoniam

Ov. I. Am.
x. 48.

“Non habet eventus sordida præda bonos,”

Rom. xii.
19.

Dominus, qui per prophetam suum clamat, “Mihi vindictam, et ego retribuam,” in brevi post machinatori sceleris et auctori Griphino munitionem auferri, hominique sub sole quem magis exosum habebat, Mailgoni scilicet fratri suo, tradi fecit. Resus⁴ quoque, circa biennium post, ibidem ubi filiam suam immo filias duas et nepotes exheredare curavit, exquisito divinitus vindictæ modo, in bellico conflictu a filiis est captus, et in eodem castro incarceratus. Et sic ubi turpitudinem majorem et enormiorem excessum perpetravit, ibi dedecus e contra majus, et ampliorem suscipere meruit confusionem.

97.

Torque of St. Cynawg,
supra, 25.

Illud et hic notabile censui, quod eodem quo istud ei accidit tempore, torquem Sancti Kanauci de Brecheniauc apud Dinevur captam tenebat et inclusam. Per quod et ipse ultione divina capi meruit et includi.

Sermon at St. Dogmael's, and on the way to Cardigan.

Apud cœnobium itaque Sancti Dogmaelis pernoctantes, tam ibi in crastino quam versus Aberteivi, id est, casum Teivi fluminis in mare, ubi⁵ a Reso principe ea nocte decenter exhibiti fuimus, ex latere tamen Kemmeisensi, non procul a ponte, convocato partium illarum populo, et tam Reso quam duobus filiis suis, Mailgone

¹ perpetuo] D. Rd., Camden; proprio et perpetuo, Hc.

² castrum] Hc. D.; castellum, Rd., Camden.

³ ei . . . sustulit] D. Rd., Camden; Hc. has no “ei,” and “subduxit” instead of “sustulit.” The Brut says that, in 1191, “The lord Rhys took the castle of Nyver;”

and the Ann. Camb. adds, “Die assumptionis S. Mariæ” (August 15).

⁴ Resus] Camden; Resum, Hc. D. Rd. This imprisonment of Rhys by his sons was in 1194: Brut, Ann. Camb.

⁵ ubi] R. B. Hc., &c.; ibi, D.

scilicet et Griphino, præsentibus, verbo Domini tam ab archiepiscopo quam Menevensi archidiacono persuasorie prolato, ad obsequium crucis multos alleximus. Quorum uno¹ cruce signato, quanquam unico filio et unico matris solatio jam senio confectæ, eundem statim mater intuita, et divinitus ut videbatur inspirata, subjecit; "Gratias tibi, carissime Domine Christe Jhesu, "intimas ago, quod talem mihi filium quem tuo dignareris obsequio parere² concessisti."

Fuit et alia ibidem mulier, matrona videlicet de Aberteivi, animo a priore longe dissimili; quæ virum suum, ne ad archiepiscopum iret, neve crucem susciperet, per pallium et zonam firmiter tenens, coram cunctis impudenter retrahebat. Sed eadem, tertia post nocte, terribilem hanc in somnis vocem audivit; "Ser-
"vientem meum mihi abstulisti; quamobrem et a te
"quoque quod plurimum diligis auferetur." Qua visione viro cum utriusque tam admiratione quam terrore relata, cum iterum obdormisset, filium parvulum, quem secum in toro materna plus dilectione quam diligentia jacentem habebat, non minus infeliciter quam insuaviter oppressit. Et statim vir, diocesano³ episcopo tam visionem referens quam vindictam, crucem suscepit; uxore favente, ipsaque signum sponte propriis manibus armo virili insuente.⁴

In loco vero prædicationis, juxta caput pontis, tanquam tanti conventus memoriale, locum capellæ in viridi planitie statim plebs devota signavit; ubi vestigia loquendo ad populum archiepiscopus fixerat, altare designantes. Ubi et multa miracula languentium turbis huc undique confluentibus, quæ singula referre longum esset, certum est contigisse.

¹ Quorum uno, &c.] This, and the following section, Fuit et alia, &c., are repeated in the De Gestis (vol. i. 77, &c.).

² The De Gestis has "parare."

³ diocesano] D. Rd., De Gestis; a diocesano, R. B. He., Camden.

⁴ insuente] R. B. He.; inserente, D. Rd., De Gest.; inperente vel insuente, Camden.

[CAP. III.]

De fluvio Teivi, et Keirdigan,¹ et Emelyn, cum notabilibus suis.

The river
Teivi.

Salmon fishery near Cil-gerran, at Cenarth.

Salmon
leap.

Mode of leaping:
vol. v. 127.

Church,
&c., of St.
Llawddog.

Beavers in this river.

Labitur autem hic fluvius egregius, cui nomen Teivi, præ cunctis Kambriæ fluviis salmone præpingui fecundissimus. Habet et piscariam copiosam juxta Kilgar-ran,² in summitate rupis cujusdam, Sancti Leudoci manibus olim exsculptam, in loco qui dicitur Kenarthmaur,³ per quam aqua prædicta transcurrens ab alto ut assolet cum strepitu magno ad ima descendit. Ubi et salmones ab imis ad summam rupis concavitatem, quantum hastæ longissimæ est altitudo, saltu mirabili transferuntur, et, nisi piscis proprietates hæc exigeret, miraculoso. Hoc etenim piscium genus saltum appetit ex natura: unde et a saltu Salmo nomen accepit.

“Modus autem saliendo et proprietates,” sicut in Hibernica Topographia descripsimus, “hæc est. Pisces “hujusmodi naturaliter aquæ cursum contra nitentes,—sicut “cnim avibus contra flatus, sic et piscibus contra fluctus mos “est eniti,—cum obstaculum inveniunt valde præruptum cau“dam ad os replicant; interdum etiam, ad majorem saltus “efficaciam, caudam ipsam ore comprimunt; dumque a cir“culo hujuscemodi se subito resolvunt, cum impetu quodam, “tanquam subita⁴ virgæ circulatæ explicatione, se ab imis
“ad alta cum intuentium admiratione longe transmittunt.”

Stant autem simul, in angusto scilicet terræ arpeno, ecclesia sancti illius, molendinum, cum ponte et piscaria, et pomerium cum horto delectabili.

Habet et aliud fluvius iste sua specialitate notabile. Inter universos namque Kambriæ seu etiam Loegriæ

¹ Keirdigan] D.; Keredigan, R.
B.

² Kilgarraan] D.; Gilkarran, R.
B.

³ Kenarthmaur] D.; Kanartmaur,
R. B.

⁴ subita] D. Rd., Top. Hib. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

fluvios, solus hic castores habet. In Albania quoque,¹ ut fertur, fluvio similiter unico habentur, sed rari.

De hujus autem² bestię natura, qualiter a silvis ad aquas materiam vehant; quanto artificio ex attracta materia mediis in fluctibus munimenta connectant; quam defensionis artem contra venatores in occidente prætendant, quam in oriente; de caudis³ quoque piscis, ut aiunt, potius quam carnis, pauca interserere non inutile reputavi.

Castores enim, ut castra sibi in fluviis⁴ construant, sui generis servis pro rheda utentes, a silvis ad aquas lignea robora miro vecturę modo contrahunt et conducunt. Quidam enim ex his, naturę imperio servire parati, ligna ab aliis præcisa ventrique supino imposita⁵ quatuor pedibus complectentes, lignoque in ore ex transverso locato dentibus ab aliis hinc inde cohærentibus, retrogradeque⁶ trahentibus, non absque intuitum admiratione simul cum oneribus attrahuntur. Simili quoque naturę artificio, in scrobium purgatione, quas sibi pedibus in terram fodiendo scalpendoque conformant, meloti⁷ utuntur. In utroque vero animalium genere servi notabiles inveniuntur, tam degenerante quadam naturę deformitate, quam abrasa et attrita dorsorum depilatione.

In aliquo vero profundissimo fluvii angulo et paci-

98.
Habits of this animal.

Their mode of carrying materials for their dams.

The like in badgers.

Site and

¹ quoque] D.; quippe, R. B. Hc., &c.

² hujus autem] Hc. D.; cujus, R. B. Rd., Camden; hujus enim, Descr. Kamb. This account of the beaver, down to "pro pisce vescuntur" (infra, 118), is repeated in the Descr. Kamb., i. 5, infra. A small portion of it had appeared before in the Top. Hib. (vol. v. 58, &c.), where Giraldus promised a much fuller account, when he came to write the Topographies of Wales and Scotland.

³ causis, in R. B.,² and F. originally, but altered in F. to "caudis."

⁴ fluviis] Before this Rd. and Camden have "mediis."

⁵ imposita] R. B. Hc., &c. D. has "supposita" here, but "imposita" in Descr. Kamb.

⁶ retrogradeque] B. Hc. D., &c.; retrograde, R. F.

⁷ meloti] D. Rd. (and so D. again in Descr. Kamb.); melotæ, R. B. Hc. "Melota" is the word used by Giraldus in Top. Hib. (vol. v. 58). See Glossary, infra.

plan of their dams.

fico, in castrorum constructione tanto artificio ligna connectunt, ut nec aquæ stilla¹ penetrando subintret,² nec procellæ vis labefactando concutiat; nec violentiam quamlibet præter humanam, et hanc ferro munitam reformident.

Ex salicum³ autem ramis in castrorum constructione ligna connectunt; soliisque variis in altum, quantum aqua excrescere solet et ultra, ostiis interius a solio in solium aptatis, machinam distinguunt; ut juxta fluminis incrementa fluctuantes undas, cum voluerint, ab alto despicere valeant: ex salicibus autem, ut per annuos crescendo⁴ salicum saltus hispidum exterius silvescat arbustum, tota interius arte latente.

They breathe in water as 98 b.
well as in air.

Hoc animal in aquis ad libitum perdurat; et sub eisdem, more bufonum, velutique phocæ pilosæ, quæ fluxum maris atque refluxum lenitate pilorum et hispiditate declarant, halitum fovet.

Sub aquis igitur indifferenter et sub divo, tria hæc animalium genera spiritum trahunt. Suntque tibiis curtis, corpore lato, caudis nullis vel quasi mutilatis, et talpis quodammodo sive melotis in corporis compositione⁵ conformia.

Their
teeth.

Notandum etiam quod quatuor hæc solum bestia dentes præfert; oris anteriori parte duos supra, et duos inferius e contra; eisque, latis plurimum et acutis, tanquam dolabris utitur ad secandum.

Their burrows on the banks of the river.

Habent autem in proxima castris ripa scrobes subterraneas, latibulaque in sicco munitissima. Ad quæ venator explorans dum præacutis sudibus desuper trans-

¹ After stilla Camden has "de facili," which I have found in no manuscript of this treatise; but it is in the Descr. Kamb. infra.

² subintret] R. B. D., &c.; subintrat, Rd.; dissolvat, He.

³ Ex salicum, &c.] This section and the three following ones, down to "ad secandum," in He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ crescendo] D. Rd., Camden. Not in He., and not in manuscripts of 1st edition of the Descr. Kamb.

⁵ in corporis compositione] D. Rd., &c.; scilicet corporis conformitate, He.

penetrare molitur, ietum audiens et violentiam timens, quam citius ad castrum munimenta se bestia confert. Sed primo ad ipsum foraminis ingressum in ripa residens, aquam exsufflat, terram pedibus scalpens immiscet,¹ et ex limpida visuique pervia turbidam reddit et cœnulentam; ut sic hostis a ripa cum fuscina ferrea saltum observantis artem arte deludat.

In eois autem regionibus, cum canes narium sagacitate sequaces se nullatenus effugere posse præsentit, ut damno partis totum redimat, partem quam appeti naturali industria novit projiciendo in venatoris prospectu seipsam bestia castrat. Unde et a castrando Castor nomen accepit. Præterea, si bestiam præcastratam canes iterum forte persequantur, ad eminentem statim se conferens locum, coxa in altum elevata, partem venatori quam appetit præcisam ostendit. De quibus² Cicero in Scauriana; "Redimunt se ex illa parte corporis, propter quam maxime expetuntur." Juvenalis;

The Castor of eastern countries.

" Qui se
" Eunuchum ipse facit, cupiens evadere damno
" Testiculi."

Juv. xii.
34.

Et Bernardus;

" Prodit item castor proprio de corpore velox
" Reddere quas sequitur hostis avarus opes."

Bernard.

Sic igitur ut hinc pellem, quæ in occidente quæritur, tueri valeat, illinc partis medicinalis quæ in oriente diligitur largitione, totum quanquam tamen non 99.

¹ terram pedibus scalpens immiscet] So D. here, and Rd.; but "pedibus scalpendo terram immiscet," D. in Descr. Kamb., and Camden here; "terram immiscet" only in R. B. He., and in MSS. of 1st edition of Descr. Kamb.

² De quibus avarus opes]

These quotations in D. Rd., &c. Not in R. B. He., and not in MSS. of 1st edition of Descr. Kamb. Of Cicero's oration, Pro Scauro, only fragments remain. This, with the quotation from Juvenal, is in Isidore's Etym., xii. 2, 21, whence, no doubt, it was cited by Giraldus.

totum conservet, mirabili, ne dicam ingenio, vi quadam ingenita et quasi discretiva, venatoris astutiam vitare molitur.

Notandum¹ quoque quod castores caudas habent latas et non longas, in modum palmæ humanæ spissas; quibus tanquam pro remigio natando funguntur. Cumque totum corpus reliquum valde pilosum habeant, hanc partem omni pilositate carentem, in morem phocæ marinæ, planam habent et levigatam. Unde et in Germania, arctoisque regionibus, ubi abundant beveres, caudis hujusmodi, piscium ut aiunt naturam tam sapore quam colore sortitis, viri etiam magni et religiosi jejuniorum tempore pro pisce vescuntur.

Videtur tamen, quod juris in toto quoad totum, hoc in parte quoad partem: nec pars a toto tanta generis diversitate distare consuevit.

Progress
from Cardigan to Pont Stephan.

Transivimus autem a castro prædicto versus Pontem Stephani; Crugmaur,² id est, colle magno, juxta Aber-teivi a sinistro latere relicto. Ubi Griphinus filius Resi filii Theodori, post obitum Anglorum regis Henrici primi, in bello publico, de Anglorum populo, per necem nobilis viri Ricardi Clarensis juxta Abergevenni, ut dictum est, paulo ante interempti, sine capite relicto, et ob hoc in impetu primo statim confecto, stragem non modicam fecit.³ In summitate collis ejusdem tumulus⁴ reperitur, quem se cuilibet staturæ præstare conformem incolæ testantur. Et si arma quæcunque vespere ibidem integra relinquuntur, mane confracta vulgari assertionem reperientur.

Supra, 47.

¹ Notandum, &c.] This section, and the next, Videtur . . . consuevit, in Top. Hib. (vol. v. 59), in nearly the same words.

² Crugmaur] D. ; Cruc maur, R. B.

³ This in 1135, Brut; 1136, Anal. Camb.

⁴ tumulus] This, described as a "Sepulchrum . . . in cacumine montis qui cognominatur Cruc-mare," is the last of the 21 Mirabilia Britannia at the end of Nennius in MS. Nero D. viii. f. 71.

[CAP. IV.]

De transitu per Pontem Stephani, per monasterium quoque de Stratflur, per Brevi, et ecclesiam Paterni magni, cum notabilibus suis.

Apud Stephani vero Pontem sermone in crastino From Pont Stephan to Strata Florida. facto, tam ab archiepiscopo quam Menevensi archidiacono, necnon et abbatibus Cisterciensis ordinis duobus, de Alba domo scilicet Johanne et de¹ Stratflur Seisillo, qui nobis in partibus istis et usque in Norwalliam fideliter astiterunt, plurimis quoque ad crucis obsequium allectis, ea nocte apud Stratflur moram fecimus. Progressis inde parum, montanis de Moruge magnis et immensis, quæ Kambrice dicuntur Elenmith, a latere dextro relictis, in silvæ cujusdam ora obviavit nobis Kenewricus² filius Resi, juventute septus expeditissima. Adolescens ipse flavus et crispus, pulcher et procerus, ut patriæ gentique morem gereret, pallio tenui solum et interula indutus, tibiis et pedibus nudis tribulos et spinas non formidantibus; vir non arte quidem, sed natura munitus; plurimum quippe³ dignitatis ex se præferens, ex adjuncto parum. Sermone Sermon to the sons of prince Rhys. igitur (tribus filiis adultis, Griphino scilicet, Mailgoni, et Kenewrico, in præsentia patris ibidem facto, et altercantibus de crucis susceptione fratribus, tandem Mailgo se cum archiepiscopo ad curiam regis iturum firma sponsione concessit, et tam regis quam archiepiscopi consilio, nisi per ipsos steterit, obtemperaturum.

Transivimus inde per Landewi Brevi, id est, ecclesiam⁴ Then by Llanddewi Brefi to Llanbadarn Fawr. David de Brevi, quæ sita est in collis vertice, qui sub pedibus ejusdem David prædicantis olim excreverat:

¹ de] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

² Kenewricus] D.; Kenewreic, R. B.

³ quippe] R. B. Hc., &c. Not in D.

⁴ ecclesiam] R. B. Hc. Rd.; ecclesia, D., Camden.

in illa scilicet synodo magna episcoporum omnium et abbatum Kambriæ totius, necnon et cleri¹ universi ibidem una cum populo collecta, propter Pelagianam hæresim, quanquam olim a beato Germano Autisiodorensi episcopo ab insula Britannica deletam, his denuo tamen² in partibus recidivo morbo redivivaque peste jam tunc emersam. Ubi et unanimi totius conventus tam electione quam acclamatione, ob tanti miraculi signum, quanquam invitus et renitens, David in archiepiscopum est sublimatus. Præsertim cum Supra, 56. beatus quoque Dubricius, in memorata Urbis Legionum curia, eidem paulo ante sua tam destinatione quam nuncupatione cessisset honorem: sede metropolitana ab Urbe Legionum usque Meneviam abhinc translata. Ea igitur nocte apud Lanpadern maur, id est, ecclesiam Paterni magni, mora facta, mane ad Christi obsequium plures alleximus.

Lay abbots. Notandum autem quod³ hæc ecclesia, sicut et aliæ per Hiberniam et Walliam plures, abbatem laicum⁴ habet. Usus enim inolevit et prava consuetudo, ut viri in parochia potentes, primo tanquam œconomi seu potius ecclesiarum patroni et defensores a clero constituti, postea processu temporis aucta cupidine totum sibi jus usurparent, et terras omnes cum⁵ exteriore possessione sibi impudenter appropriarent: solum altaria cum decimis et obventionibus clero relinquentes; et hæc ipsa filiis suis clericis et cognatis assignantes. Tales itaque defensores seu potius ecclesiarum destructores⁶ abbates se vocari fecere; et tam nomen indubitum quam rem sibi quoque assignari præsumpsere.

¹ cleri] B. Hc. D., &c.; clerici, R., and F. originally, but altered to "cleri."

² tamen] B. Hc. D.; dum, Rd. Not in R. F., Camden.

³ quod] D. Rd., Camden; quoniam, R. B. Hc.

⁴ abbatem laicum] D. Rd., Camden; abbates laicos, R. B. Hc.

⁵ cum] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁶ destructores] Hc. D., &c.; destructores, R. B.

In hoc statu ecclesiam hanc invenimus destitutam;¹ veteri quodam et inveterato dierum malorum, cui nomen Ethenoweyn² filius Withfoit,² se abbatem gerente, et filiis ejusdem altari incumbentibus.

Tempore tamen regis Henrici primi, Anglorum potestate per Kambriam vigente, cœnobium Sancti Petri Glovernæ³ prædictam ecclesiam quiete possedit. Sed post obitum regis ejusdem, Anglis expulsis, monachi quoque sunt ejecti, et more præfato tam clerici interiorum quam laici exterius violenter intrusi.

Contigit autem, regnante Stephano, qui successit Henrico primo, militem quemdam de Armorica oriundum Britannia, peragratis regionibus multis ut variarum gentium tam urbes quam mores discerneret, huc tandem forte fortuitu advectum esse. Cum itaque, die quodam festivo, ad missæ celebrationem adventum abbatis tam clerus quam populus expectaret, demum abbati venienti cum aliis occursans, vidit turbam juvenum venire circiter viginti, more gentis expeditam et armis munitam. Cumque quærenti, quisnam illorum abbas esset, virum quemdam ostenderent alios cum lancea longa præcedentem, intuens in eum et admirans ait; "Numquid ne alium habitum, aliumve baculum, abbas iste quam illum quem nunc præfert habet?" Responderunt, "Nequaquam." At ille; "Sat," inquit, "hodie novitatis vidi, satque miraculi jam audivi." Et ab illa statim hora reversus, finem labori posuit et explorationi.

Jactat autem gens hæc et generatio prava, episcopum quemdam ecclesiæ istius, quia cathedralis aliquando fuerat, a decessoribus suis interemtum.⁴ Et

Llanbarn
darn rightly a cell of St.
Peter's Gloucester.

The knight traveller of Brittany and the lay abbot.

Llanbarn
darn once a cathedral church.
100 b.

¹ destitutam] R. B. D. Rd.; de- structam, Hc.; capite destitutam, Camden.

² Ethenoweyn . . Withfoit] D.; Edhenewein . . Witfoit, R. B.

³ See Hist. Monast. Gloucestricæ, ii. 73, &c.

⁴ See Rice Rees's Welsh Saints, 216, and Stubbs' Episcopal Succes- sion, 157.

hac præcipue allegatione in loco eodem jus sibi vindicant et proprietatem.

Temporizing of the archbishop.

Elegimus¹ itaque has potius enormitates ad præsens sub dissimulatione transire, quam, nullo ibidem quærimoniam deponente, gentem iniquam exasperare.

[CAP. V.]

De fluvio Devi navigio transcurso, et terra filiorum Chanani,² cum notabilibus suis.

Progress into North Wales, to Towyn in Merioneth.

Accedentes igitur ad aquam Devi, quæ Norwalliam secernit a Sudwallia, reversis jam Menevensi episcopo et Reso Griphini filio, qui nos a castro de Aberteivi per Kereticam regionem usque ad aquam istam laudabili in principe liberalitate deduxit, transcurso navigio flumine, et Menevensi diocesi jam post terga relictæ, terram filiorum Chanani, scilicet Merionyth, et primam ea ex parte Venedotiæ provinciam, et episcopatum Bangoriensem³ intravimus, apud Teweyn⁴ pernoctantes.

Thence over the river Maw to Llanfair.

In crastino vero, mane, occurrit nobis filius Chanani Griphinus, quod diutius obviam archiepiscopo venire distulisset humiliter et devote veniam petens. Transivimus eodem die navigio bifurcum Maviæ flumen; ubi Mailgo filius Resi, qui individuum archiepiscopo ad curiam regis se comitem dederat, juxta mare tamen vadum invenit. Ea nocte jacuimus apud Lanmeir,⁵ id est, ecclesiam Mariæ, in provincia de Ardudoe.⁵

Character of this district: its mountains.

Hæc autem terra Chanani, et præcipue Merionyth, omnium totius Kambriæ terrarum hispida magis est.

¹ Elegimus] Hc. D., &c.; Legimus, R. B.

² Chanani] D. here, but afterwards "Chanani;" Kanani, R. B., but "Canani" as well afterwards. The heading in Hc. is, "De aqua

" quæ dicitur Devi, cum notabilibus suis."

³ Bangoriensem] D.; Bangornensem, R. B.

⁴ Teweyn] D.; Towen, R. B.

⁵ Lanmeir . . Ardudoe] D.; Lanmair . . Ardudi, R. B.

et horribilis. Habet enim montes altissimos, arctos tamen et in modum arcis acutissimos, nec raros quidem sed creberrimos, et tanta inæqualitate consertos, ut in summis eorum verticibus pastores confabulantes ad invicem vel conviciantes, si concurrere forte statuerint, a mane in vesperam vix convenient.

Sunt autem his in partibus lanceæ longissimæ. Sicut enim arcu prævalet Sudwallia, sic lanceis præstat Ven-dotia: adeo ut ictum hic lancea cominus datum ferrea lorice tricaretur minime sustineat.

Use of the lance in North Wales

101.

In crastino obiit nobis filius Chanani junior, cui nomen Meredutius, in transitu pontis cujusdam, cum plebe provinciæ illius. Ubi quamplurimis ad crucem allectis, tandem uno de familia ipsius cruce signato¹ juvene pervalido, eique familiarissimo, quoniam pallium cui crux assui debuerat tenue nimis et vile videbatur, cum uberrimo lacrimarum fonte suum ei Meredutius pallium projecit.

[CAP. VI.]

De Traitmaur et Traitbochan transcursis; de Nevin² quoque, Kairarvon, et Bangor, cum notabilibus suis.

Transivimus inde Traitmaur et Traitbochan, id est,³ From tractum maris majorem et tractum minorem, ubi duo Llanfair to Nefyn. castra lapidea de nova sita fuerunt; unum in Evionyth versus montana borealia, quod erat filiorum Chanani, cui nomen Deutrait; alterum vero ex alia fluvii parte versus mare in capite Lhein, quod erat filiorum Oenei, cui nomen Karnmadrund.⁴ Dicitur

¹ crucesignato] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

² Nevin] D.; Newein, R. B. "Transcursis" and "et Bangor" are not in the heading of Hc.

³ id est] Hc. D., &c.; et, R. B., and F. originally, but altered to "id est."

⁴ Karnmadrund] D.; Karmadrund, R. B.

autem Trait, lingua Kambrica,¹ sabulum mari influente,² longius et se retrahente nudatum. Transieramus³ tamen aquas antea non ignobiles, Dyssenyth inter Maviam et Traitmaur, Arthro inter Traitmaur et Traitbochan. Ea nocte jacimus apud Newein,⁴ vigilia videlicet Paschæ floridi. Ubi Merlinum Silvestrem, diu quæsitum desideratumque, archidiaconus Menevensis dicitur invenisse.⁵

Palm Sunday, April 10.

Bardsey island :

or Ynys Enlli

Jacet autem extra Lhein insula modica, quam monachi inhabitant religiosissimi, quos Cœlibes vel Colideos vocant. Hæc autem insula, vel ab aeris salubritate quam ex Hiberniæ confinio sortitur, vel potius aliquo ex miraculo et sanctorum meritis, hoc mirandum habet, quod⁶ in ea seniores præmoriuntur, quia morbi in ea rarissimi; et raro vel nunquam hic quispiam moritur, nisi longa senectute confectus. Hæc insula Enthli⁷ Kambrice vocatur, et lingua Saxonica Berdeseie. Et in ea, ut fertur, infinita sanctorum sepulta sunt corpora; ibique jacere testantur corpus beati Danielis Banchoensis⁸ episcopi.

101 b.

From Nefyn, by Carnarvon, to Bangor.

Plurimis igitur in crastino ad archipræsulis sermonem cruce signatis, versus Bangor iter arripientes transivimus per Kairarvon, id est, castrum de Arvon. Dicitur autem Arvon provincia contra Mon, eo quod sita sit contra Moniam insulam.

The rough and fatiguing journey.

Venientibus itaque nobis ad vallem via duce, tam in ascensu quam descensu valde præruptam, cuncti ab equis dilapsi⁹ pedites perreximus, ex condicto, tanquam

¹ Kambrica] R. B. He., &c.; Britannica, D.

² influyente] D. Rd., Camden; refluente, R. B. He.

³ Transieramus . . Traitbochan] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He. Giraldus's memory as to the order of these rivers failed him, when he added this clause in his 3rd edition.

⁴ Newein] D.; Newey, R. B. See note 2, p. 123, supra.

⁵ dicitur invenisse] D. Rd., Camden; invenit, R. B. He.

⁶ quod] D. Rd., Camden; quod semper, R. B. He.

⁷ Enthli] D.; Enchli, R. B.

⁸ Banchoensis] D.; Bangornensis, R. B.

⁹ dilapsi] D., Camden; delapsi, Rd.; clapsi, R. B. He.

Ierosolimitanæ peregrinationis sicut tunc credebatur jamjam instantis quædam præludia facientes.) Valle igitur transmeata, cum ad partem oppositam transcendere, fatigatis universis, in quercu quadam vi ventorum stirpitus¹ avulsa et prostrata, quiescendi respirandique gratia cum archiepiscopus resedisset, laudabilem in tanto tam gravitatis authenticæ viro² resolutus in jocunditatem, circumstantibus ait; “ Quis vestrum in hæc turba sibilando aures delectare nunc prævalet “ fatigatas?” Quod fessis ex itinere fieri solet difficile. Ipso vero se id posse si vellet protestante, auditur in silva propinqua sibilus aviculæ dulcisonus, quam alii picum, alii verius aureolum dixere. Dicitur autem picus avicula, lingua Gallica Spee dicta, quæ rostro robusto quercum perforans, majores viribus ictus ingeminat. Dicitur et aureolus avicula aureo croceoque colore conspicua, dulcemque suo in tempore pro cantu sibilum reddens; quæ et aureolus ab aureo colore nomen accepit. Ad hæc igitur quodam dicente, nunquam philomenam partes istas intrasse, subjunxit archiepiscopus, modesta quadam subrisus significantia; “ Philomena quidem sapienti freta est consilio, quæ Kambræ fines non intravit; nos autem insipienti, qui “ Kambriam et penetravimus et circuivimus.”

The archbishop's pleasantry.

No nightingale ever in Wales.

Ea igitur nocte moram fecimus apud Bangor, cathedralem videlicet Venedotiæ sedem, a loci ejusdem episcopo decenter exhibiti. In crastino vero, missa in principali altari ab archipræsule celebrata, sedis ejusdem antistes, cui nomen Guianus,³ a dextris altaris ad tam archiepiscopi quam aliorum plurium magnam instantiam, et importunam magis quam persuasoriam, ad crucis susceptionem est compulsus; cum magna suorum 102.

The bishop of Bangor compelled to take the cross.

¹ stirpitus] R. B. He., &c.; strepitus, D.

² authenticæ viro] He. D., Camden, (Rd. corrupt); auctoritate, R. B.

³ Guianus] Called “Gwido,” or “Vido,” in Ben. Abb. (i. 165); “Guido” by Gervase (Twysden, 1674), and Diceto (598); “Gwiawn” in Brut, A^o 1191.

ipsa in ecclesia lamentatione, miserabilique sub barbara quadam vociferatione utriusque sexus hominum tam clamore quam mœrore.

[CAP. VII.]

De Monia insula, cum¹ notabilibus suis.

The island of Anglesey.

Sermon of the archbishop, &c.

Men who refused to take the cross.

Their punishment.

Prince Rhodri's incest ;

His ita peractis, transivimus in Moniam insulam, quasi² milibus passuum³ duobus inde distantem, brevi maris brachio transnavigato. Ubi⁴ junior Oenei filius Rothericus, cum insulæ totius necnon et terrarum adjacentium populo, nobis devotus occurrit. Facta igitur in loco quodam non procul a ripa consessione, petrosis in⁵ rupibus in theatri modum orbiculariter circumstantibus, ad sermonem archiepiscopi, et ejusdem loci archidiaconi, scilicet⁶ interpretis nostri Alexandri, necnon et abbatis de Stratflur Seisilli, multi de plebe ad crucis obsequium sunt allecti. Sedebant autem in opposita rupe de familia Rotherici juvenes electi, quorum nullus allici potuit ; quanquam tamen illos, quasi⁷ mel frustra de petra elicere conantes, et oleum de saxo, tam archiepiscopus quam alii, præcipue ad ipsos sermone directo, verbis suasoriis nec persuasoriis invitarent.

Contigit autem post infra triduum, tanquam divina ultione secuta, quod juvenes iidem cum aliis multis prædones patriæ persequerentur ; qui statim a prædonibus confecti et in fugam dati, interemtis quibusdam, et aliis letaliter vulneratis, crucem quam antea spreverant in carne sibi invicem jam ultronei affixerunt.

Rothericus quoque, qui sanguine sibi propinquam, et in tertio gradu cognatam, Resi principis filiam

¹ cum] Hc. D., &c. ; et, R. B.

² quasi] R. B. D., &c. ; intra, Hc.

³ milibus passuum] D. Rd. ; miliaribus, Hc., Camden ; stadiis, R. B.

⁴ Ubi] D. Rd. ; Ubi et, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁵ in] D. Rd. Not in R. B., &c.

⁶ scilicet] D. Rd. ; et, R. B., &c.

⁷ quasi] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

paulo ante incestuoso sibi contubernio copulaverat, ut contra fratrum filios quos exheredaverat se Resi auxilio fortius tueretur, salutaribus archiepiscopi monitis super hoc non obtemperans, a tota quam possederat terra in brevi postmodum ab eisdem est ejectus:¹ unde sibi illicite speraverat defensionem, inde merito reportans confusionem.

Habet autem hæc insula Moniæ trecentas et sexaginta tres villas, et pro tribus tamen² Kantaredis reputatur. Dicitur autem Kantaredus composito vocabulo, tam Britannica quam Hibernica lingua, tanta terræ portio quanta centum villas continere solet.

Adjacent autem insulæ Britannicæ tres lateraliter diversis ex partibus insulæ, quæ ejusdem fere quantitatis esse perhibentur; ab austro Vecta, a zephyro Monia, a circio Mania. Sed duæ priores propinquius adjacent, modicis distinctæ maris interstitiis. Tertia vero, quæ Mania dicitur,³ medio inter Hibernicam Ultoniam et Scoticas Galwedias libramine jacens, remotius extenditur.

Est autem Monia arida tellus et saxosa, deformis aspectu et inamœna; terræ de Pebidiauc, quæ adjacet Meneviæ, exteriori qualitate simillima, verumtamen interiori naturæ dote longe dissimilis. Est etenim hæc insula præ cunctis Kambriæ finibus triticeo gramine⁴ incomparabiliter fecunda: adeo ut proverbialiter dici soleat lingua Britannica, Mon mam Kembre,⁵ quod Latine sonat, Monia mater Kambriæ. Quoniam aliis undique terris deficientibus, hæc sola gleba præpingui uberique frugum proventu Kambriam totam sustentare consuevit.

rejection of the archbishop's monitions; and punishment.

102 b. Extent of Anglesey.

The islands of Wight, Anglesey, and Man.

Character of Anglesey.

Its fruitfulness in grain.

¹ est ejectus] This was in 1193, Brut.

² tamen] R. B. Hc. Rd. Not in D., Camden.

³ quæ Mania dicitur] D., &c. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁴ gramine] R. B. Hc. Rd.; germinate, D., Camden. Compare Descr. Kamb., i. 6, infra.

⁵ mam Kembre] D.; man Kemere, R. B.; mam Kemere, Hc.

Miraculous
stone.

Sed quoniam in hac insula digna memoratu multa reperies, quedam ex his excerpte et hic interserere non superfluum duxi. Est igitur hic lapis humano femori fere ¹ conformis, cui insita virtus hoc habet, ut spatio quantolibet asportatus proxima per se nocte revertatur, sicut ab accolis pluries est compertum. Unde et comes Hugo Slopesburiensis,² qui tempore regis Henrici primi tam insulam istam, quam terras adjacentes viriliter occupaverat, audita hac lapidis virtute, ipsum alii lapidi longe majori ferreis catenis fortiter ligatum, probandi causa, procul in mare projici fecit. Qui tamen summo diluculo, cum multorum admiratione, pristino more loco in suo repertus est.

103. Cujus rei occasione publico comitis edicto prohibitum est, ne quis de cetero lapidem a loco movere præsumat.

Contigit aliquando rusticum quemdam, experiendi gratia, ad femur suum lapidem ligasse: sed putrefacto statim femore ad locum pristinum³ lapis evasit. Dicitur etiam⁴ quod si venereum opus in loco eodem vel prope fieri contigerit, sicut aliquoties probatum est, statim lapis guttis magnis desudabit. Similiter etiam si procacitatem ibidem vir et mulier exercuerint. Ex venere quoque ibidem expleta nunquam genitura provenit.⁵ Unde et ob hoc, casula deserta penitus quæ ibidem olim esse solebat, tantum muro lapideo fatalem hodie lapidem videas circui.

The hill over which no shout heard.

Est et in eadem insula collis saxosus, non magnus et parum altus, cujus ex una parte si clamaveris, ex altera nequaquam audieris; et vocatur ab incolis, per antiphrasin, Rupis audientium.

¹ fere] R. B. Hc., &c. Not in D.

² Slopesburiensis] All the MSS; Cestrensis, Camden. Hugh earl of Shrewsbury, and Hugh earl of Chester, were joint leaders of the expedition into Anglesey in 1098. Giraldus is wrong in saying, "temp. Henrici primi."

³ pristinum] D. Rd., Camden; suum, Hc. Not at all in R. B.

⁴ Dicitur etiam . . . circui] Camden, or rather David Powell, modestly omits this.

⁵ provenit] D. Rd.; proveniet, R. B. Hc.

In boreali quoque majoris Britanniae latere, quod ab Humbro flumine, quasi trans Humbrum in boream,¹ ab Anglis nomen accepit, est collis haud dissimilis; cujus ex uno latere si cornu altisonum vel tubae clangor experiatur, opposito in latere non audietur.

Est et in hac insula ecclesia Sancti Tevredauci confessoris, in qua comes Hugo Cestrensis,² quoniam et ipse fines [et]³ hos Kambriae suo in tempore subjugaverat, cum canes nocte posuisset, insanos⁴ omnes mane recepit: et ipsemet infra mensem miserabiliter extinctus⁵ occubuit. Accesserant enim ad insulae portum⁶ ab Orchardum insulis piratae in navibus longis: quorum adventum ubi comes audivit, statim eis usque in ipsum mare, forti residens equo, animose nimis occurrit. Et ecce navium princeps, cui nomen Magnus, primae navis in prora cum arcu prostans sagittam direxit. Et quanquam comes a vertice capitis usque ad⁷ talum pedis, praeter oculos solum, ferro fideliter esset indutus, tamen dextro percussus in lumine, perforato cerebro, in mare corruit moribundus. Quem cum sic corruentem victor ab alto despiceret,⁸ superbe in victum et insolenter⁹ invectus, dixisse memoratur lingua Danica, "Leit loupe,"¹⁰ quod Latine sonat Sine salire. Et ab hac in posterum hora potestas Anglorum in Monia cessavit.

A like hill in Northumberland.

Hugh de Montgomery killed by Magnus of Norway (A.D. 1098).

103 b.

¹ in boream] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

² Cestrensis] So all the MSS. Slopesburiensis, Camden, with the whole sentence different. Camden is right as to his "Slopesburiensis." It was Hugh de Montgomery, earl of Shrewsbury, who was killed. See Flor. Worc. A° 1098, and Ord. Vit. x. 6.

³ et] D. Not in R. B. Hc. Rd.

⁴ insanos] R. B. D., &c.; rabi- dos, Hc.

⁵ extinctus] R. B. D., &c. Not in Hc.

⁶ portum] Hc. D., &c.; portam, R. B., and F. originally, but altered to "portum."

⁷ ad] D.; in, R. B. Hc., &c.

⁸ despiceret] R. B. Hc., &c.; respiceret, D.

⁹ insolenter] Hc. D., &c.; in- lenter, B.; violenter, R. F.

¹⁰ loupe] B. D.; hloupe, R. F.

Henry II.'s expedition into North Wales (in 1157). Nostris quoque temporibus, Anglorum rege Henrico secundo in Venedotiam exercitum ducente, ubi et in arcto silvestri apud Coleshulle, id est,¹ Carbonis collem, bellicam aleam expertus est, classe in Moniam transmissa, cum prædictæ ecclesiæ aliisque sanctorum per insulam locis spoliando prædando minime deferrent, divina secuta vindicta, accolæ tandem in advenas, pauci in multos, inermes in armatos subito irruentes, multis interemptis, multisque captis et in vincula datis, victoria potiti sunt cruentissima.

Vol. v. 137. Quomodo enim Hibernica testatur Topographia, sicut natio Hibernica, necnon et Kambrica, præ aliis gentibus præcipites in iram et ad vindictam in vita proni reperiuntur, sic et in morte vitali terrarum earundem sancti præ aliis animi vindicis esse videntur.

Death of Henry, Giraldus's uncle, son of Henry I. Fuerant autem duo nobiles viri, et ejus qui scripsit hæc avunculi, cum aliis huc a rege transmissi; Henricus scilicet regis Henrici primi filius, et secundi avunculus, ex nobili Nesta, Resi filii Theodori filia,² in australi Kambria Demetiæ finibus oriundus; et Robertus Stephani filius, Henrici frater non germanus sed uterinus; vir quidem qui nostro primus tempore aliis viam præbens, Hibernicam non longe post aggressus est expugnationem; cujus quoque præconia Vaticinalis depromit Historia. Henricus igitur, nimia fretus audacia, bonaque destitutus omnino sequela, cum magno suorum dolore inter primos lanceis con-

Narrow escape of Robert Fitz-Stephen.

¹ id est, Carbonis collem] D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden.

² Resi fil. Theod. filia] D. Rd.; Resi filia, Hc., Camden.; Griphini filia, R. B. She was Nest, daughter of Rhys ab Tewdwr. The blunders of the MSS. of the early editions are rather curious; we can hardly suppose them to be due to Giraldus, whose grandmother Nest was.

The death of Henry, her son by H. I., in this attack on Anglesea, is placed by Brut under 1156, in Ann. Camb. under 1158. By the former he is called Henry son of king Henry; by the latter, Henry son of Girald, or, according to others, son of king Henry. He was the father of the famous Meiler, the great hero of the Irish invasion.

fossus occubnit. Robertus vero, de defensione diffidens, vix ad naves graviter vulneratus evasit.

Est et insula modica, collateralis Moniæ et fere continua, quam solum eremitæ labore manuum viventes et Deo servientes inhabitant. De quibus hoc mirandum, quod cum aliquando forte motibus humanis discordes ad invicem inventi fuerint, statim mures minutissimi, quibus abundat insula, escas eorum omnes et potiones tam consumunt quam corrumpunt. Cesante vero discordia, continuo cessat et incommodum.

Nec mirandum si Dei famuli discordes interdum inveniantur; quoniam in Rebeccæ utero Jacob et Esau bella gessere, Paulus et Barnabas contentiose ab invicem discessere. Inter discipulos quoque Jhesu facta est contentio, quis eorum videretur esse major. Infirmittatis enim humanæ temptationes sunt hæ: verumtamen et virtus plerumque in infirmitate perficitur, et fidei constantia tribulationibus augmentatur. Dicitur autem insula prædicta Kambrice Enislannach,¹ id est, Insula ecclesiastica; propter copiam sanctorum, quorum ibi corpora jacent. Et hanc insulam feminae non intrant.

Præterea vidimus in Monia canem curtum, non natura quidem sed casu solo cauda mutilatum. Cujus et progenies plurima, tam a genitore descendens quam genitura, similem jam naturaliter pati defectum ostensa est. Mirum enimvero quod solum parenti casus adjecit, hoc sibi prolem in posterum tanquam a natura conformare.

Militem quoque in Anglia vidimus, ex Devonæ finibus oriundum, cui nomen Erchembaldus: de quo contigit, ut dum matris in alvo gestaretur patre partum penitus abnegante, et matrem zelotypiæ causa ex sola suspitione fortiter accusante, puero in lucem prodeunte, sola litem per se natura diremit. Fissuram

¹ Enislannach] D.; Enislenach, R. B.

namque, quam ictu lancee militari exercitio per medium sub nare superius labrum genitor olim susceperat, laudabili naturæ miraculo eodem in loco genitura prætendit. Erchembaldi quoque filium vidimus, cui nomen Stephanus, eodem indicio patrisantem; casuali læsione tanquam in naturam jam conversa.

And in the case of earl Alberic de Vere. 104 b. Item in comite Alberico, Alberici comitis de Ver filio, simile naturæ miraculum vidimus. Cum enim pater ejusdem, matre jam prægnante, filia scilicet Henrici de Essexia, ob ignominiosum patris eventum¹ jam ad divortium modis omnibus elaborasset, partu prodeunte, quem pater in oculo casuali læsione sustinuit, eadem in² parte defectus in filio parentavit.

Such cases, perhaps, from impressions of the memory; as with the queen and the negro's picture. Sed forsitan ex rei visæ memoria, quæ per aspectum contrahitur et reservatur, hujusmodi proprietas in prolem descendit. Sicut de regina legitur, quæ, quoniam Ethyopem in thalamo depictum³ inspicere consueverat, ex inopinato Ethyopem peperit; quam⁴ et Quintilianus per picturam excusavit. Similiter et de ovibus variis contigit, quas Laban nepoti suo Jacob de grege concessit, per virgarum præfixarum variationem multiplicatis.

Nec tantum ex mulieris, verum etiam ex imaginaria viri memoria partus interdum informatur. Compertum est enim de quodam, qui cum forte transeundo hominem inspiceret se ante et retro continua passione moventem, ad uxorem illico accedens, eamque cognoscens, quoniam motionis illius memoria a mente excidere præ admiratione non potuit, eadem hora puerum genuit simili passione percussum.

¹ See Gervase (Twysden, 1380); Diceto (535); and Jocelin de Brakelond (Camden Soc., 50, &c.)

² in] D., &c.; ex, R. B. He.

³ depictum] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ quam . . . excusavit] D., &c. Not in R. B. He.

[CAP. VIII.]

De Cunewe fluvio navigio transcurso, et Dynas Emereis, cum notabilibus suis.

Reversis a Monia Bangor iterum, ostensum est nobis principis Oenei sepulchrum, qui in presbyterio coram altari, cum fratre juniore Cadwaladro, in spelunca duplici jacebant:¹ quanquam tamen Geneus, ob publicum cum consobrina incestum, a beato martyre Thoma excommunicatus obierit. Injuncto itaque loci illius episcopo ut visa opportunitate, et occasione captata, corpus ab ecclesia quantocius ejiceret, per litora maritima, hinc rupibus præruptis, illinc fluctibus æquoreis arctati, versus Cunewe flumen, marinis undis non impermixtum, iter incunctanter arripuimus. Non procul ab ortu Cunewe in capite montis Ereri, quod ex hac parte in boream extenditur, stat² Dynas Emereis, id est, promontorium Ambrosii, ubi Merlinus prophetizavit, sedente super ripam Vortigerno. Erant enim Merlini duo; iste qui et Ambrosius dictus est, quia binomius fuerat, et sub rege Vortigerno prophetizavit, ab incubo genitus, et apud Kaermerdyn³ inventus; unde et ab ipso ibidem invento denominata est Kaermerdyn,³ id est, urbs Merlini; alter vero de Albania oriundus, qui et Celidonius dictus est, a Celidonia silva in qua prophetizavit, et Silvester, quia cum inter acies bellicas constitutus monstrum horribile nimis in aera suspicendo prospiceret, dementire cœpit, et ad silvam transfugiendo silvestrem usque ad obitum vitam perduxit. Hic autem Merlinus tempore Arthuri fuit, et longe plenius et apertius quam alter prophetasse perhibetur.⁴

Return to Bangor. The tombs of Owain Gwynedd, and Cadwalader his brother.

The river Conway.

Dinas Emrys, Merlin, and Vortigern.

Two Merlins, Am- 105.

brosius, and Celidonius.

¹ Owain Gwynedd, son of Gruffudd ab Cynan, prince of North Wales, died in 1169; and Cadwalader his brother in 1172, Brit. Annal. Camb. place the deaths of both under 1171.

² stat] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ Kaermerdyn] D.; Keirmerdhn, R. B.

⁴ prophetasse perhibetur] D., &c.; prophetizavit, sicut Vaticinalis Historia manifeste depromit, R. B. He.

Quid autem,¹ inortuo Oeneo, vel etiam in extremis agente, filii ejusdem, pravo dominandi ambitu, fraterna non respicientes fœdera, diebus nostris inter se gesserint,² hic prætereo.

The sons of Owain Gwynedd.

Illud autem, quod nostris hic diebus notabile censui, prætereundum non putavi.³ Oeneus filius Griphini, princeps Norwalliæ, inter multos quos genuit filios tantum unum legitimum suscepit, scilicet Ierverdum Troyndun, quod Kambrice *simus*⁴ sonat, agnominatum: qui et filium similiter legitimum suscepit Luelinum. Hic in transitu nostro patruis suis David et Rotherico, quos de consobrina sua cui nomen Christiana⁵ Oeneus susceperat, quanquam puer tunc quasi⁶ duodennis, infestare cœpit. Et licet totam Venedotiam, præter terram Canani, inter se pro herili portione divisissent; licet etiam propter⁷ hoc David Anglicano fulciretur auxilio, puta qui sororem regis Henrici secundi sibi matrimonio copulaverat, ex qua et filium quoque susceperat; tamen intra paucos postmodum annos, de publico incestu natos, divitiis pariter et divitum auxilio fultos, legitimus iste,⁸ terris omnino carens et thesauris, a Venedotia fere⁹ tota, divina opitulante vindicta, viriliter ejecit: nihil eisdem nisi ultroneo motu, bonorumque virorum consilio, misericorditer et ex pietate relinquens.

105 b. Argumentum adulterinos et incestuosos Domino displicere.

¹ Quid autem, &c.] Hence, to end of chapter, in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

² gesserint] D., &c.; gesserunt, Hc.

³ putavi] D., &c.; existimavi, Hc.

⁴ simus] D. Rd.; simum, Hc., Camden.

⁵ Christiana] Hc. Rd., Camden; Christina, D.

⁶ quasi] D. Not in Hc. Rd., Camden.

⁷ propter] D. Rd.; præter, Hc. Camden.

⁸ iste] Hc., Camden. Not in D. Rd.

⁹ fere] D. Rd. Not in Hc., Camden. David was expelled by Llywelyn ab Iorwerth in 1194.

[CAP. IX.]

De montanis Eleri, cum notabilibus suis.

Montana vero¹ quæ a Kambris Eleri, ab Anglis The Snow-vero Snaudunc, id est² Nivium montes dicuntur, quæ don range a terra filiorum Canani paulatim incrementa susci- of mounpiunt, et prope Dugannu in boream se protendunt, tains.
 contra Moniam vero turribus aereis nimis enormiter usque ad nubes excrescunt, sub silentio non sunt præ-tereunda. Tantæ siquidem et tam immensæ quanti-tatis esse perhibentur, ut antiquo proverbio dici solet ; sicut Moniam insulam³ hominibus in annona, sic Eleri Their in pascuis, coactis in unum armentis omnibus, toti prolific posse Walliæ sufficere. Unde⁴ et his pascuis illud pastures.
 Virgilianum adaptari potest ;⁵

“ Et quantum longis carpunt armenta diebus, Georg. ii.
 “ Exigua tantum gelidus ros nocte reponit.” 201.

In summis autem montium istorum verticibus duo The lake lacus reperiuntur, sua non indigni admiratione. Alter with the enim insulam habet erraticam, vi ventorum impellen- floating tium ad oppositas plerumque lacus partes errabundam. island.
 Hic armenta pascentia nonnunquam pastores ad longinquas subito partes translata mirantur.

Fieri namque potuit ut pars aliqua ripæ olim avulsa, radicibus salicum aliorumque fruticum naturaliter insertorum vinculis astricta et colligata, paulatim postea per alluvionem incrementa susceperit. Et quoniam violenta ventorum rapacitate, quæ loco tam arduo fere continua reperitur, ad varias creberrime ripas in-

¹ vero] B. Hc. D., &c. Not in R. F.

² id est] Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

³ Moniam insulam] R. B. Hc., &c. ; Monia insula, D.

⁴ Unde, &c.] This quotation from Virgil in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁵ potest] D., &c. ; posset, Hc.

pellitur, firmas solo tenus et altas figere radices non permittitur.

The lake with the one-eyed fish.

Alter vero miro et inaudito miraculo pollet: quia cum trium generum piscibus abundet, anguillis, turtris, et perehiis, omnes in eo pisces monoculi reperiuntur, oculum dextrum habentes et sinistro carentes. Si rei tam novæ tamque stupendæ rationem scrupulosus lector efflagites, assignare non præsumo.

One-eyed mullets in Scotland.

Notandum¹ etiam quod in Albania quoque, duobus in locis, uno ad mare orientale, altero ad occidentale, pisces marini qui Mulvelli dicuntur monoculi reperiuntur, dextrum oculum habentes et sinistro carentes.

106.

The fabulous eagle of Snowdon.

In eisdem montanis de Eleri aquila fabulosa frequentat; quæ qualibet quinta feria lapidi cuidam insidens fatali, ut interemptorum cadavere famem satiet, bellum eodem die futurum² fertur³ expectare; lapidemque prædictum, cui consuevit insidere, jam prope, rostrum purgando pariter et exacuendo, perforasse. Unde⁴ et aquila locum ubi prædam invenire debeat scire dicitur, sed non tempus: corvus autem tempus, sed non locum.

[CAP. X.]

De transitu per Dugannu et Rudhelan, sedem quoque⁵ Lanelvensem; de vivo sabulo, et Koleshulle; cum notabilibus suis.

Progress to Rhuddlan castle.

Transnavigato deinde Cunewe fluvio, vel potius maris brachio sub Dugannu, monasterio⁶ Cisterciensis ordinis ¹ Notandum, &c.] Hence to end of chapter in D. Rd.; and in He., except the last clause "Unde . . . locum." Not in R. B.

² futurum] D. Rd. Not in He., Camden.

³ fertur] D., &c.; fingitur, He.

⁴ Unde, &c.] This last clause in D., and Rd. (corruptly). Not in He., Camden.

⁵ sedem quoque] R. B. He., &c.; and D. in the table of chapters, supra, 10; sedemque, D. here.

⁶ monasterio relicto] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

super Cunewe ab occidua fluvii parte a dextra relicto, usque Ruthelan,¹ nobile similiter castrum primævi Oenei filii [de consobrina]² David super Cloid³ fluvium, via duce pervenimus. Ubi et ab ipso, ad instantiam ejusdem magnam, ea nocte decenter exhibiti fuimus.

Est fons non procul a Rudhelan in provincia de Tegengel, quem non bis tantum die naturali more marino, sed vicissim et crebro, diebus et noctibus, nunc undis deficere, nunc exuberare certum est.

Item⁴ refert Trogus Pompeius, quod Gramantum est oppidum in quo fons ebullit, qui vicissim nocte dieque friget et fervet.

Multis itaque mane ad Christi obsequium allectis, ad pauperculam sedis Lanelvensis ecclesiam parum inde distantem transivimus; ubi et missa ab archipræsule celebrata, iter incontinenti aggressi sumus; et per divitem venam fructuosumque argenti scrutinium, ubi penitima scrutando

“Itum est in viscera terræ,”

Ov. Met.
i. 138.

transeuntes, in cellula de Basingeworc pernoctavimus.

In crastino vero, longum vivumque per loca sabulum non absque formidine permeantes, silvestria de Coleshulle, id est, Carbonis colle, a dextra reliquimus; ubi Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, nostris diebus⁵ cum primo Walliam hostiliter⁶ intravit, juvenili impetu et inconsulto calore arctum illud silvestre penetrare præsumens, cum detrimento suorum et damno non modico ambiguan bellorum aleam expertus est.

Ter enim prædictus rex in manu forti Walliam in-

¹ Ruthelan] D., and Rudhelan directly afterwards; R. B. have “Rutheland” and “Rudhelant.”

² de consobrina] Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He. D.

³ Cloid] D.; Cloit, R. B.

⁴ Item . . . fervet] This section in D., &c. Not in R. B. He.

⁵ diebus] He. D., &c.; temporibus, R. B.; the latter with “vel diebus” interlined over it.

⁶ hostiliter] D., &c. Not in R. B. He.

The ebbing well.
Thence to Llanelwy, or St. Asaph, and Basingwerk.

Henry II.'s expeditions into Wales: 1st in 1157

106 b.

2nd, in 1163;

travit; primo, Norwalliam, prænotato in loco; secundo, Sudwalliam, per maritimam de Wlatmorgan et Goher viam, versus Kaermerdhin¹ et usque Pencadeir, id est, Cathedræ caput, intrando, et per Elenyth ac Mailen-nyth usque Radenoram revertendo; tertio vero, Powisiam, apud Oswaldestreo.²

3rd, in 1165.

His bad success, and its causes.

His autem expeditionibus cunctis rex ideo minime profecit, quoniam probris patriæ viris, proceribusque provinciæ gnaris et peritis, fidem non habuit; solum in his viros a Marchia remotos, mores gentis et modos prorsus ignorantes, consiliarios habens principales.

“ In qualibet nimirum expeditione, sicut artificei credendum “ in sua facultate, sic horum præcipue standum est arbitrio, “ qui circa similia patriæ negotia conversati diutius et usitati, “ mores gentis et modos agnoscunt; quorumque magnopere “ refert ut gens inimica, quacum ex crebris belli diutini con“ flictibus hostilitatem³ plurimam et odium implacabile con“ traxerunt, eorundem opera vel debilitari possit vel deleri,”

Vol. v. 395.

sicut in *Vaticinali Historia*⁴ declaravimus.

The greyhound and his dead master.

In hac eadem silva de Koleshulle, interfecto juvene quodam Kambrensi per exercitum prædicti regis trans-euntem, leporarius ejusdem inventus est per octo fere dies absque cibo domini cadaver non deserens,⁵ sed illud a canibus, lupis, et avibus prorsus indemne fideliter et admiranda in bruto dilectione conservans.⁵

Quis itaque patri filius, quisve Eurialo Nisus, quis Tydeo Polinices, quis Piladi Herestes, hunc dilectionis affectum exhiberet? Ob hujus⁶ igitur eventus gratiam, leporarii que favorem, diutina fere jam fame confecti, ¹ Kaermerdhin . . . revertendo] So in D., and Rd. corruptly. In R. B. Hc. it is, “Kaermerdhin et “ Pencader intrando, et per Elenith

“ ac Melenith revertendo;” and with this Camden nearly agrees.

² Oswaldestreo] D.; Oswaldes-troë, R. B.

³ hostilitatem] Hc. D., &c.; and

F. by alteration; hospitalitatem, R. B., and F. originally.

⁴ The above quotation from the Exp. Hib. occurs again in Descr. Kamb. ii. 8, infra.

⁵ deserens . . . conservans] D. Rd.; deseruisse : . . . conservasse, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁶ hujus] Hc. D., &c.; ejus, R. B.

ab Anglorum populo, Kambriæ gentibus inimicissimo, corpus jam foetidum debito humanitatis officio est tumultatum.

[CAP. XI.]

De fluvio Deicæ transcurso, et Cestria, cum notabilibus suis.

Transvadato tandem Deicæ fluvio sub Cestria, quem Arrival at Chester, 107. Kambri Deverdoeu dicunt, feria tertia ante Pascha, die videlicet absolutionis, Cestriam venimus. Sicut enim Thursday before Easter, April 14, 1188. Waia¹ ab austro sub castro Strigulensi, sic Deia a borea sub Cestrensi castro² Gualliam ab Anglia separat et secernit.

Item, ut asserunt accolæ, aqua ista singulis mensibus Changes of channel in the river Dee. vada permutat; et utri finium, Angliæ scilicet an Kambriæ, alveo relicto magis incubuerit, gentem illam eo in anno succumbere, et alteram prævalere, certissimum prognosticum habent.

Fluvius iste de lacu quodam cui nomen Pemmes- Its source. mere originem ducit; et cum salmonibus fluvius abundet, nunquam tamen in lacu piscis hujusmodi reperitur. Hoc etiam de eodem fluvio notabile reperies, quod pluviis nunquam, frequenter autem et fere semper ventis exuberat.

Imperatorem itaque Romanum Henricum se jactat The emperor Henry at Chester. hæc urbs habere sepultum.³ Qui, quoniam suis diebus tam patrem carnalem, quam etiam spiritualem, sum-

¹ Waia] D.; Vaga, R. B.

² castro] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

³ This, about the emperor Henry V., occurs again in the De Invectionibus of our author (vol. i. 186). Walter Map (De Nugis Curial., 229) records a belief that his death and burial, as stated by historians, was fictitious, and that he passed his last years in penitential exile; but he has nothing about Chester as the place of his last retirement and death. Higden (Twysden, 2382, 44) adopts Giraldus's statement as probably true; adding that Henry lived ten years at Chester as a hermit, under the name of Godescall. Brompton repeats this (1015, 47).

And king
Harold.

mum pontificem scilicet Paschalem incarceraverat, demum pœnitentia ductus, et ultroneus exul effectus, sanctam in eremo finibus istis vitam, ut fertur, consummavit. Similiter et Haroldum¹ regem se habere testantur: qui, ultimus de gente Saxonica rex in Anglia, publico apud Hastings² bello cum Normannis congregiendus, pœnas succumbendo perjurii luit; multisque,³ ut aiunt, confossus vulneribus, oculoque sinistro sagitta perduto ac perforato,⁴ ad partes istas victus evasit: ubi⁵ sancta conversatione cujusdam urbis ecclesiæ jugis et assiduus contemplator adhærens, vitamque tanquam anachoriticam ducens, viæ ac vitæ cursum, ut creditur, feliciter consummavit. Ex utriusque, ut fertur, ultimi articuli confessione, veritas antea non comperta demum prodiit publicata.

¹ Haroldum] D.; Haraldum, R. B. The tract De Invent. S. Crucis, &c., valuable in itself, and now all the more valuable because lately edited by Professor Stubbs (Oxford, 1861), which narrates the foundation and early history of Waltham abbey, speaks of Harold's escape from the battle of Hastings, and subsequent death at Chester, as a mere fable. After relating the bringing of Harold's body to Waltham, and its burial there, it adds: "Ubi usque hodie, quicquid fabulatur homines quod in rupe manserit Doroberniæ et nuper defunctus sepultus sit Cestriæ, pro certo quiescit" (p. 30, bottom). Ailred of Rievaulx says that Harold "aut misere occubuit, aut, ut quidam putant, pœnitentiæ tantum reservatus evasit" (Twysden, 394, 40), without any mention of Chester. Higden (2342, 61) quotes the statement of Giraldus, but puts little faith in it; adding that Harold is said to have spent his last days, as an anchorite, in the cell of St. James, near St. John's church. Brompton has nearly the same, with the addition that his tomb was still to be seen in St. John's church (961, 40). See Professor Stubbs' note (90) to De Invent. S. Cruc., 30. For a most interesting, very able, and thorough disquisition on the subject of Harold's death and burial-place, see a paper by E. A. Freeman, Esq., on Waltham abbey, in vol. ii. of the Essex Archaeological Society's Proceedings.

² Hastinges] D.; Hestinges, R. B.

³ multisque] R. B. He., &c.; Multis itaque, D.

⁴ ac perforato] D. Rd. Not in R. B. He., Camden.

⁵ ubi . . . consummavit] He. D. Rd., and Camden nearly; et eremitica solitudine vitam ibidem terminavit, R. B.

Vidimus hic quod¹ in oculis nostris novum apparuit, Cheese from deer's milk.
 caseos scilicet² cervinos. Comitissa namque, et comitis mater, cervas habens domesticas, ex earundem lacte coagulato tres caseos [modicos]³ expressos et fiscella formatos archiepiscopo præsentavit.

Eisdem quoque finibus, his nostris diebus, visa est The half-deer cow: Top. Hib. vol. v. 109. 107 b.
 vacca cervina. “Ad vaccam enim cervus accesserat; unde “et vacca cervina processit. Parte enim anteriore tota usque “ad inguina bos erat, coxas subinde cum cauda, et tibiae, et “pedes, expresse cum pilositate et colore cervinos habens.
 “Sed quia plus pecoris quam feræ præferbat, inter armenta “resedit.”

Contigit eisdem in partibus, nostris quoque temporibus, canem, ex simia prægnantem, catulos tandem produxisse, parte anteriore tota simiam præferentes, in canem vero versus posteriora descendentes. Quos cum aulæ militaris custos rusticus intueretur, prodigiorum novitate stupescens, et tam deformes biformis naturæ formas abhorrens, baculo quem manu gestabat, non absque damno proprio, et domini, re comperta, indignatione quamplurima, cunctos statim interemit.

Visa est⁴ et in urbe Cestrensi nostris diebus mulier The handless woman, a good sempstress with her feet.
 manca, manibusque carens a nativitate; cui tamen contra defectum istum tale natura remedium dederat, ut pedes tam flexibiles, tamque⁵ delicaciter articulatos haberet, quod articulorum proceritate pariter et flexibilitate, non minus subtiliter quam aliæ mulieres ac suere consueverit. Et quicquid filo ac forfice manibus fieri solet, citra defectum omnem, cum intuentium admiratione pedibus ista compleret.

¹ quod] D. Rd., Camden; quod et, R. B. Hc.

² scilicet] D. Not in R. B. Hc., &c.

³ modicos] Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. D.

⁴ Visa est, &c.] This last section in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁵ tamque] D.; tam, Hc. Rd., Camden.

[CAP. XII.]

De transitu per Album monasterium et Oswaldestreo ;¹ Powisiam quoque et Slopesburiam ; cum notabilibus suis.

After Easter, progress
to Whitchurch and Oswestry.

Hic itaque Paschali festo debita solemnitate com-pleto, multis quoque ad archiepiscopi monita cruce-signatis, versus Album monasterium iter aggressi sumus: et inde versus Oswaldestreo: ubi, tanquam in ipsa regionis Powisiensis ora, occurrerunt nobis Powisiæ principes, Griphinus Madoci filius, Elisset,² et alii, cum populo terræ suæ. Ubi nonnullis ad crucem allectis,—ab episcopo namque³ loci illius Reynerio mul-tudo fuerat ante signata,—a Griphino quoque terræ illius principe consobrina sua, Angharat⁴ scilicet Oenei principis filia, quam, publico gentis illius vitio, diu pro uxore tenuerat, coram archipræsule palam abjurata, apud Oswaldestroe, id est, Oswaldi arborem,⁵ pernoc-taviimus; a Guillelmo Alani filio, juvene nobili ac liberali, ad importunam ejusdem instantiam, Angli-canæ sumptuositatis more splendide nimis et laute procurati.

Acciderat autem his in partibus paulo ante, Reinerio episcopo crucem prædicante, juvenem quemdam pervalidum, cum a sociis crucesignatis ad ejusdem signi susceptionem cum instantia magna verbis suasoriis invitaretur, demum respondisse; “Priusquam,” inquit, “domini mei mortem hac lancea quam manu gesto “vindicavero, monitis non acquiescam;” Oeneum sig-nificans⁶ Madoci filium, virum egregium, ab Oeneo

¹ Oswaldestreo] D. ; Oswaldes-troe, R. B. And so afterwards.

² Elisset] B. D. ; Eliset, R. F.

³ namque] R. B. Hc., &c.; enim, D.

⁴ Angharat] D. ; Angharet, R. B.

⁵ id est, Osw. arborem] D. Rd.,
Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

⁶ significans] R. B. Hc., &c.; signans, D. According to the Brut, Owain ab Madog was treacherously slain in 1186, not by Owain Cyveiliog himself, but by his two sons Gwenwynwyn and Cadwallon.

de Kevciliauc¹ consobrino suo dolose nuper et scele-rose peremptum. Et inter loquendum,² cum ira vindice defervens lanceam fortiter excuteret, ipsa forte, ex utraque manus excutientis parte confracta, statim in terram decidit; tantum trunculo quem manu clauderat ei remanente. Quo prognostico perterritus plurimum³ et consternatus, tanquam certissimo crucis suscipiendæ signo provocatus, crucem illico sponte suscepit.

In hac tertia Gualliaë portione, quæ Powisia dicitur, sunt equitia peroptima; et equi emissarii laudatissimi, de Hispaniensium⁴ equorum generositate, quos olim comes Slopesburiaë Robertus de Beleme in fines istos adduci curaverat, originaliter propagati. Unde et qui hinc exeunt equi, cum nobili formæ pictura, ipsa protrahente natura, tam membrosa sui⁵ majestate, quam incomparabili velocitate, valde commendabiles⁶ reperiuntur.

The horses of Powys, from Spanish horses imported by Robert de Belesme.

Hic Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, cum expeditione, quanquam inutili, sumptuosa tamen et nobili, nostris temporibus Powisiam intravit. Ubi demembratis solum obsidibus, quos antea susceperat, subita et inopinata pluvialium aquarum inundatione frustra reverti compulsus est. Die namque⁷ præcedente Anglicani exercitus satrapæ Walensium ecclesias aliquot, cum villis et cœmeteriis, igne apposito combusserunt. Unde et Oenei magni filii, cum expedita exercitus juventute, patrem aliosque principes suos super hoc acriter convenerunt, dicentes et asserentes se Anglo-

Henry II.'s expedition into Powys, A.D. 1165.

¹ Keveiliauc] D.; Keveilant, R. B.

² loquendum] D. Rd., Camden; loquendo, R. B. Hc.

³ plurimum] R. B. Hc., &c.; multum, D.

⁴ de Hispan . . . propagati] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc. Robt. de Belesme became earl of Shrewsbury on the death of earl Hugh his brother in 1098 (supra, 129). See Ord. Vit. x. 7.

⁵ sui] D. Rd.; sua, R. B. Hc., Camden.

⁶ commendabiles] R. B. Hc. Rd.; commemorabiles, D., Camden.

⁷ Die namque, &c.] Hence to end of the section, "ultionem," in Hc. D., &c. Not in R. B.

108 b. rum ecclesiis de cetero nullatenus deferre velle. Cumque totus propemodum populus¹ in hoc communiter assentiret, solus Oeneus, ut erat vir in gente sua moderantiæ magnæ et sapientiæ, sedato tumultu, demum in hujusmodi verba prorupit; "Mea quidem
 " in hanc sententiam non concordat opinio; gratulari
 " namque potius ob hoc et gaudere debemus, quia
 " cum Anglis, nisi divino fulciamur auxilio, longe
 " impares viribus² sumus, ipsi in hoc facto Deos quo-
 " que, qui et se et nos potenter vindicare prævalent,
 " inimicos constituere. Proinde et devote Domino
 " compromittamus, nos ecclesiis amodo locisque sacris
 " majorem solito reverentiam exhibituros et honorem."
 Quo facto, præscriptam nocte sequente divinitus emis-sam sensit Anglorum exercitus ultionem.

Progress
 to, and stay at Shrewsbury.
 Giraldus's
 gracious sermons.

Progressi sumus inde versus Slopesburiam, a Sabrinae fluvio complexam: ubi et diebus aliquot recreandi respirandique gratia perendinavimus. Et tam ad archiepiscopi monita, quam gratiosos quoque archi-diaconi Menevensis sermones, ad crucis obsequia multos alleximus. Oeneum quoque de Keveiliaue, quia solus inter Gualliae principes archipræsuli cum populo suo non occurrerat, excommunicavimus.

Owain Cyveiliog.

Oeneus iste, præ aliis Kambriæ principibus, et linguæ dicacis extiterat, et in terræ suæ moderamine ingenii perspicacis. Hic cum Anglorum rege Henrico secundo, quoniam primatibus gentis suæ viris semper fere contrarius esse, regique fidelius adhærere videbatur, familiaritatem contraxerat plurimam. Unde et aliquando cum rege apud Slopesburiam in mensa sedens, cum ei de panibus propriis unum, in honoris, ut assolet,³ et amoris signum rex misisset, ipse statim

¹ populus] D. Rd.; exercitus,
 He., Camden,
² viribus] D. Rd.; Not in He.,
 Camden.

³ ut assolet] He. D., &c. Not in
 R. B.

in regio conspectu elemosynaria panem in frusta concidit; et elemosynarum more primo remotius exposita, deinde singulatim¹ retracta, comedit universa. Cujus rei rationem cum rex requisisset, respondens Oeneus sub risu modici² simulatione; "Domino," inquit, "meo morem in hoc gero:" subtiliter et acute in regem, qui ecclesiasticos honores vacantes diutius in manu tenere consueverat, ambitus et avaritiæ notam intorquens. 109.

Notandum³ hic quoque, quia tres viri tantum nostris diebus, in tribus Gualliaë partibus, justitia, prudentia, principalisque modestia regiminis emicuerunt; Oeneus Griphini filii Canani filius, in Venedotia; Meredutius nepos ejusdem, filius Griphini, quem fata festina surripuere, in Sudwallia; Oeneus iste de Keveiliauc, in Powisia. Duo vero largitatis eximiæ prærogativa enituere; Kadwaladrus filius Griphini in Venedotia, et Griphinus de Bromfeld, filius Madoci, in Powisia. Resus autem Griphini filius, in Sudwallia, liberalitate et animositate laudem meruit. In Venedotia vero David Oenei filius, et in Sudwallia, finibus de Morgannoc, Hoelus filius Ierverth de urbe Legionum, æqua se inter Kambros et Anglos trutina librantem, fidem integram et opinionem servaverunt.

¹ singulatim] R. B. Hc., &c.; singillatim, D.

² modici] Hc. D., Camden; Rd. corrupt; modio, R. B., and F. originally; modica, F. by alteration.

³ Notandum, &c.] This last section of the chapter in D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. Hc.

[CAP. XIII.]

De transitu per Gueneloc et Bromfeld,¹ castellum de Ludelawe, et Leonis monasterium, usque Herefordiam.²

Progress to Wenlock.

Profecti sumus inde³ versus Gueneloch, per arctam viam et præruptam, quam Malam plateam vocant. Hic autem contigit nostris diebus, Judæo quodam cum archidiacono loci ejusdem, cui cognomen Peccatum, et decano cui agnomen⁴ Diabolus, versus Slopesburiam iter agente, cum archidiacono forte referente audiret⁵ archidiaconatum suum ab hoc loco qui Mala platea dicitur incipere, et usque ad Malum passum versus Cestriam durare, considerans et colligens⁶ quoque tam archidiaconi cognomen quam et decani agnomen, lepide satis et facete subjecit; "Mirum," inquit, "si ab hac unquam patria me mea sors reducat incolumem, cujus quippe Peccatum archidiaconus, Diabolus decanus, archidiaconatus vero Mala platea introitus, et Malus passus exitus."

109 b.
Thence by Bromfield,
Ludlow, and Leominster, to Hereford.

Transivimus autem a Gueneloch per cellulam de Brumfeld, per nobile castrum de Ludlawe, per Leonis monasterium, usque Herefordiam; Mailenyth et Elvail⁷ a dextra relictis; a puncto quo per Gualliam laboriosum hoc iter arripuimus, tanquam in circino circueundo, ad punctum denuo jam reversi.

¹ Gueneloc et Bromfeld] D.; Gueneloch et Brumfeld, R. B.

² "Cum notabilibus suis" is here added in R. F. only.

³ inde] D., Camden; abinde, R. B. Hc. Rd.

⁴ agnomen] R. B. D. Rd.; nomen, Hc., Camden. Richard Peche, or Peccatum, was archdeacon of Salop about 1180 and 1190 (Hardy's Le Neve, i. 573). The list of deans about this time is very imperfect. The dean in question was probably a Dayville, or De Eyville, the name of a family of considerable note.

⁵ audiret] Hc. D., Camden; audierat, R. B.

⁶ colligens] So the MSS.; intelligens, Camden.

⁷ Mailenyth et Elvail] D.; Meleit et Elevel, R. B.

In hujus itaque legationis longo laudabilique labore, circiter tria virorum millia crucis signaculo sunt insignita, lanceis et sagittis expeditissima, martiisque negotiis exercitatissima, solam cum hostibus fidei congre-
 Number of those who took the cross during this progress.

Porro, occulto Dei judicio sed nunquam injusto, imperatori Romano viæ, regibusque nostris discordiæ data sunt impedimenta; regi Siculo, qui præ cunctis Impediments to the Crusade.

terræ regibus terram sacram annonis et alimentis in tantæ desolationis articulo sustentabat, mors inopinata et intempestiva; et mortis sequela, [principum]² nostrorum gravis ob regni jura decertatio, et publicæ stratiæ disturbatio; gravissima fidelium populi, transmarinis interea partibus fame et inedia miserabiliter afflicti, medios inter hostes expectatio.

Verumtamen, ut intellectum forte præbeat vexatio, ut aurum igne probetur, et virtus in infirmitate firmetur, hæc accidere permittuntur. “Adversitas”
 S. Greg. Mag. Epist. ix. 122. (Migne, iii. 1053.)

quippe, Gregorio testante, “quæ bonis votis objicitur, probatio virtutis est, non judicium reprobationis.”
 “Quis enim nesciat quam prosperum fuit quod Paulus ad Italiam vergebat? Et tamen vehemens naufragium pertulit. Sed navis cordis in maris fluctibus integra stetit.”

¹ expeditio] Hc. D., &c.; expeditior, R. B.

² principum] Not in R. B. Hc. D. In Rd., Camden.

[CAP. XIV.]

*Descriptio Cantuariensis archiepiscopi Baldewini.*¹

Description of archbishop Baldwin.

Ejus autem, cujus legationis insignia, et quasi peregrinationis sanctæ præludia, succincta brevitate prælibavimus, tam interioris hominis quam exterioris proprietatem exprimere, præter rem ne putetur.²

110.

Erat igitur vir fuscus, vultu simplici ac venusto, statura modica, pro corporis captu habitudine bona, ad tenuitatem tamen quam ad corpulentiam magis accommoda. Erat enim vir modestus ac sobrius, vir abstinentiæ magnæ, et continentiæ tantæ ut vix unquam in ipsum quicquam sinistrum ausa fuisset fama præsumere, vir sermone parcus, iracundia serus, cunctis propemodum naturæ motibus [vel dotibus]³ temperatus. Erat quippe “Velox ad audiendum, tardus ad loquendum, et tardus ad iram.” Literarum⁴ studiis a puerilibus annis affatim imbutus, et jugum Domini ab adolescentia portans, moribus et vita emicens in populo lucerna fuit. Unde et⁵ archilevitæ quem canonicè adeptus fuerat⁵ cedens honorem et sponte deserens, mundique pompas alta mente despiciens, Cisterciensis ordinis habitum sancta cum devotione suscepit. Et quoniam moribus olim plusquam monachus extiterat, infra anni terminum abbas effectus; et intra

Jac. i. 19.

¹ Baldewini] He. D., &c. Not in R. B. This chapter is placed, in He., after the first preface to the treatise, supra, 8.

² ne putetur] R. B. He., &c.; non putavi, D.

³ vel dotibus] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He. It seems an unmeaning addition, and sounds vastly like an interpolation from a marginal note.

⁴ Literarum, &c.] Most of what follows, hence to the end, is repeated in Cap. 29 of the Vit. Remigii, &c., of our author; Anglia Sacra, ii. 430, &c.

⁵ Unde et, and quem canonicè adeptus fuerat] D., &c., and Vit. Rem. Not in R. B. He.

paucos postmodum annos in episcopum, deinde in archiepiscopum est sublimatus; tanquam super pauca fidelis inventus, et ob hoc supra multa constitutus.

Ceterum quoniam, ut ait Tullius, "Nihil simplici Cic. de Invent. Rhetor. ii. 3. in genere omni ex parte perfectum natura expolivit," innatæ benignitatis mansuetudinem, quam privatus exercuerat, in potestate non exuens, tanquam baculo sustentans, et non virga castigans, tanquam ubera His kindness of heart, and too great lenity. dans matris, et non verbera patris, remissionis in publico gravi cum scandalo notam incurrit. Adeo nempe lenitatis in ipso tepor ac torpor pastorem penitus rigorem absumpsit, ut melior monachus simplex quam abbas, melior abbas quam episcopus, melior episcopus quam archiepiscopus fuisse videretur. Unde et ¹ eidem Pope Urban's rebuke to him. Urbanus papa quandoque scripsisse recolitur in hunc modum; "Urbanus episcopus, servus servorum Dei, " monacho ferventissimo, abbati calido, episcopo tepido, " archiepiscopo remisso, salutem, etc." Sane, ² quoniam in Anglicanis finibus inter regnum et sacerdotium frequens esse solet altercatio et fere ³ continua, insulari tyrannide semper ingruente, tanto notabilior lenitatis hujus eminet excessus, quanto beatum Thomam ejusdem sedis antistitem, pro ecclesiæ libertate usque ad 110 b. martyrii palmam dimicando, nostris diebus ⁴ constat St. Thomas's triumph. gloriosius triumphasse. Quod itaque martyr insignis, pravas regni consuetudines in ecclesiam Dei pullulantes extirpando, multis prius allegatis, demum caput allegando feliciter evicit, hoc Ille, cujus occulta quidem The victory lost by the remissness judicia sed nunquam injusta, per martyris ejusdem primi successoris remissam liberalitatem, ne dicam

¹ Unde et . . . salutem] D. Rd., Camden. Not in R. B. He. It is in Vit. Rem., but in a different place.

² The rest of this section, Sane . . . recuperandum, in all the MSS.,

and in Vit. Rem., is omitted in Camden.

³ fere] R. B. D., &c.; quasi, He.

⁴ nostris diebus] D. Rd., and Vit. Rem. Not in R. B. He.

of Richard and Baldwin, his successors.

ignaviam, recidivo jam morbo, redivivaque¹ malitia, quod non absque dolore dicendum vel audiendum, in ecclesiæ suæ damnum enorme, perditum ire permisit. Quod utique, secundi istius tempore, contra obstinatum nequitiam non lenitate, non patientia dissimulandum, sed rigore² potius et asperitate,³ usque ad sanguinis etiam si opus fuisset effusionem, denuo fuerat recuperandum.

Death-bed dream of archbishop Richard,
the first
successor of S. The-mas.

Unde,⁴ cum primus martyris ille successor morbo decumberet quo paulo post occubuit, noctu in somno vocem hanc terribilem cœlitus emissam audivit; "Dis-
" sipasti ecclesiam meam, et ego eradicabo te de terra." Sed utinam de terra morientium, et non viventium, de terra quam terimus, non terra quam quærimus, de terra laboris et sudoris, non de terra dulcoris et decoris. Occulta⁵ sunt ergo judicia Dei, sed nunquam injusta. Si talis enim martyri pontifex primo loco vel etiam secundo successisset, qui strenue defenderet quod sub tanto discrimine, capitisque periculo, sed felici commercio, vir sanctus evicit et viriliter obtinuit, pro carnali corona corrupta in terris incorruptibilem et immarcescibilem sumens in cœlis, Angliæ clerus, miserrime suppeditatus iterum et oppressus, continua debitaque libertate gauderet: quam quidem, nisi per sanguinis iterum pastoralis effusionem, vix ullo poterit tempore, tyrannica præcipue regnante prosapia, recuperare. Fructum itaque grandem hac spontanea quasi

¹ redivivaque] R. Hc. Rd. and Vit. Rem.; rediviva, B.; redivivaque, D.

² The Vit. Rem. has "cum" before "rigore."

³ The Vit. Rem. has "austeritate."

⁴ Unde . . . exagitetur] This section in D. Rd. Not in R. B. Hc., Camden. The first part only, relating archbishop Richard's deathbed dream, is in the Vit. Rem. The whole section is repeated by our author in the De Invectionibus (vol. i. 144). Gervase describes archbishop Richard's dream more circumstantially (Twysden, 1465); Hoveden also mentions it (Savile, 355).

⁵ Occulta, &c.] Rest of this section not in Vit. Rem.

jactura sibi divina providentia prævidit, ut cre litur, in posterum eliciendum; quatinus ex pontificali denuo constantia, et consecutiva demum martyrii gloria, et fidelium devotio, jam quasi languescens et sopita, per miracula denuo resuscitetur; et fidei fervor, qui jam refrixerat,¹ ut igne caritatis reflammescat, signis recrebrescentibus et prodigiis tanquam follibus quibusdam et ventilabris exagitetur.

111.

Inter primos² tamen martyris successor hic secundus, audita Salvatoris et salutiferæ crucis injuria, nostris proh dolor! diebus per Saladinum irrogata, crucesignatus, in ejusdem obsequiis, tam remotis finibus quam propinquis, prædicationis officium viriliter assumpsit. Et postmodum iter arripiens, navigioque fungens³ apud Marsiliam, transcurso tandem pelagi profundo, in portu Tyrensi incolumis applicuit: et inde ad exercitum nostrum, [obsidentem pariter et obsessum],⁴ Aconem⁵ transivit. Ubi multos ex nostris inveniens, et fere cunctos, principum defectu, in summa desolatione jam positos et desperatione; alios quidem longa expectatione fatigatos, alios fame et inopia graviter afflictos,⁶ quosdam vero aeris inclementia distemperatos; diem feliciter in terra sacra clausurus extremum, [singulos pro posse vinculo caritatis amplectens, sumptibus et impensis, verbis et vitæ meritis, confirmavit.] Cujus, cum universo fidelium cœtu, vias, vitas, et actus dirigat in veritate, et ad gloriam nominis sui, fideique palmam quam ipse plantavit, manus ipsorum ad præ-

Baldwin goes to the Holy Land.

His death at the siege of Acre (Nov. 19, 1190).

¹ refrixerat] D.; refrigerat, Rd.

² Inter primos . . . hic secundus] D. Rd., &c., and Vit. Rem.; Inter primos hic tamen, R. B. Hc.

³ fungens] D. Rd., &c., and Vit. Rem.; fruens, R. B. Hc.

⁴ obsidentem pariter et obsessum] In Rd. and Camden, only.

⁵ Aconem] D.; Aconum, R.; Acoñ, B.; Acaronem, Vit. Rem.

⁶ graviter afflictos] R. B. D., &c.; cruciatos, Hc.

lium doceat,¹ et digitos eorum ad bellum, Ille qui solus via, veritas est,² et vita; via sine offendiculo, veritas sine ambiguo, vita sine fine. Amen.³

*Explicit*⁴ Itinerarium Giraldi.

¹ doceat] R. B. He. D., Camden; }
docere dignetur, Rd.

³ Amen] D. Rd. Not in R. B
He., Camden.

² est] He. D., &c. Not in R. B.

⁴ Explicit, &c.] D. Not in R. B.
He., &c.

GIRALDI CAMBRENSIS
DESCRIPTIO KAMBRIÆ.

DESCRIPTIO KAMBRIÆ.

STEPHANO¹ CANTUARIENSI ARCHIEPISCOPO. 111 b.
IN KAMBRIÆ DESCRIPTIONE PRÆFATIO
PRIMA.

Ille ego, qui quondam Hybernicam Topographiam, Having cum abditis suis et naturæ secretis, in tribus distinc- formerly tionibus triennii labore digessi; et Vaticinalem Ex- written the pugnationis Hybernicæ subsequenter Historiam, duabus Top. Hib.
distinctionibus, biennali lucubratione complevi; quique, and the Itinerarium educens, laboriosam viri sancti per Walliæ also, the fines legationem sub ignorantiae tenebris perire non Itin.
permisi; Kambriæ nostræ descriptionem, gentisque Kamb.;
naturam, aliis alienam nationibus et valde diversam, Giraldus hoc opusculo declarare, tibi que, vir inclite, Stephane² now pur-Cantuariensis archiepiscopo, quem religio pariter³ et poses to write a Description of Kambria.

¹ Stephano] D., &c.; Huberto, V. N. In T., the MS. of the Symb. Elect. in Trin. Coll. Library, Cambridge, the heading of this preface is, "In Kambriæ descriptionem "præfatio prima" (vol. i. 394). The copy of the treatise, from which T. repeated this preface, as appears from the next note, was dedicated to bishop Hugh of Lincoln, Hugh of Burgundy, no doubt, who died in 1200.

² Stephane] D., &c.; Huberte,

V. N.; Hugo Lineolnensis episcopo, T.

³ quem religio pariter et literatura com.] T. D., &c.; quem discretio pariter morumque venustas laudabilem reddunt, V., and N. but without "pariter." Compare the Itin., supra, 7. The alteration, from the discretion and polished manners in the address to Hubert, to the religion and learning in that to St. Hugh and Stephen Langton, is worth remarking.

literatura commendat,¹ sicut Itinerarium olim,² sic præsentem quoque diligentiae nostræ laborem vestræ sanctitati destinare disposui, quanquam tanto forte³ viro munus indignum, digno tamen⁴ cui digna donentur præsentatum.

Objections to his employing his talents on such unworthy subjects.

Objiciunt autem nonnulli, et sub dilectionis specie me pictori assimilant; qui pretiosis abundans coloribus, et tanquam Zeusis alter arte⁵ præcellens, ubi palatium insigne aut templum depingere cum multa expectatione sperabatur, tugurium aliquod, seu vile quodecunque in sui natura despectumque, tanto artificio tantisque sumptibus illustrare contendit. Sic etenim inter tantas tam illustres mundi materias, me finales hos terrarum angulos, Hyberniam scilicet, Kambriam, [et]⁶ Britanniam, literis extollere, rhetoricisque coloribus insignire velle mirantur.

That his gifts of grace ought to be devoted to higher and better studies.

Præterea dicunt alii, et acutius obloquuntur, collatam desuper gratiam non in infimis istis evacuandam; nec in principum laudes vana lucubratione consumendam, qui hodie, nec literati nec largi, gloriosa literarum studia nec remunerare norunt nec laudare; quinimmo, quod de sursum illabitur.⁷ potius ad superna referri, et ejus ad gloriam cuncta converti debere, de cujus plenitudine id totum accepimus, ejusque summopere laudibus inservire, a quo "Omne datum optimum⁸ et omne "donum perfectum" tanquam ab indeficienti fonte descendit, cui vere nunquam ingrato nihil unquam oblatum transire potest⁹ irremuneratum.

Jac. i. 17.

112.

¹ commendat] D. Rd.; commendant, T., Camden, and Itin., supra, 7.

² olim] D., &c.; ante, V. N. T.

³ forte] V. N. T. Rd., Camden; fore, D.

⁴ tamen] V. N. T., &c.; inde, D.

⁵ arte] V. D. Rd. Not in N., Camden.

⁶ et] Not in T. D. Rd. In V. N.

Camden has "et Cambriam," without Britanniam.

⁷ illabitur] V. N. T., &c. D. has "elabitur" in text, but corrected by "illabitur" in margin.

⁸ omne datum optimum] V. N. T. D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁹ transire potest] V. N. T. D.; transire (only), Rd.; transit, Camden.

Sed quoniam nobiles aliarum regionum historiæ, Giraldu's egregiis olim editæ scriptoribus, in lucem prodire, reasons for nos, ob patriæ favorem et posteritatis, finium nostro- his choice rum abdita quidem¹ evolvere,² et inclite gesta, necdum of subjects.
tamen in memoriam luculento labore digesta, tenebris exuere, humilemque stilo materiam efferre, nec inutile quidem nec illaudabile reputavimus. Trojano³ excidio, Thebis, et Athenis, Lavinisque litoribus, impar et inculta quid addere posset opera nostra? Quoniam igitur actum agere quasi nihil agentis opus existeret, malui potius et longe præelegi pauperes finium nos-trorum historias, ab aliis hætenus omnino fere relictas, industria nostra parentibus et patriæ non ingrata⁴ de-clarare; et sic postmodum ad majora pedetentim et paulatim anhelare.

Et ut ex minoribus utcunque liqueat istis, quemad-modum majores, cum sors materias obtulerit, noster valeat stilus explicare.

Ad hæc etiam, quia quædam agenda sunt, et alia non prætermittenda, rudis adhuc⁵ viridisque juventæ conamina licuit in istis⁶ exerceri, ne sub otio penitus, et delicti fomite⁷ desidia, tempora transierint⁸ dulciora.

Hæc igitur, quasi præludia quædam, ad inclitos scientiæ scientiarum⁹ thesauros, quæ sola scit scire, sola scientes facere hominem tam regere quam imbuere,

¹ quidem] So the MSS.; quædam, Camden.

² evolvere] V. N. T. D., Camden; enucleare, Rd.

³ After Trojano, Rd. and Camden have "nimirum."

⁴ ingrata] So the MSS.; ingratas, Camden.

⁵ rudis adhuc viridisque] T. D., &c.; rudisque adhuc et viridis, V. N.

⁶ After istis, Rd. and Camden have "et similibus."

⁷ fomite] So the MSS.; fonte, Camden.

⁸ transierint] V. N. T. D.; transirent, Rd.; transeant, Camden.

⁹ Giraldu is adapting from a passage of Gregory Nazianzen. The Greek is (Orat. I., Apologet. 8 C., ed. Cologne, 1690): Τῷ ὕντι γὰρ αὐτῆ μοι φαίνεται τέχνη τις εἶναι τεχνῶν, καὶ ἐπιστήμη ἐπιστήμων, ἔνθρωπον ἀγειν, τὸ πολυτροπώτατον τῶν ζώων καὶ ποικιλώτατον. See vol. i. 272, where Giraldu quotes the passage more fully.

quasi præambula prælibavimus: quam solam facultates aliæ tanquam pedisequæ reginam longe sequuntur, et vestigia semper adorant. In his itaque, tanto ædificio juvenilibus annis tuta struentes fundamenta, ad eximios tam maturæ tam sacræ scientiæ tractatus postmodum explicandos, maturiores annos, Deo duce, vitæ comite, reservavimus.¹ “Ardua quippe fides,” ut ait poeta, “robustos exigit annos.” In aliis itaque, gratia istius, moram facere fas est, sed moderatam; in hac vero non solum morari, verum etiam mori desiderabile.

Lucan,
Phars. viii.
282.

His long promised 112 b.
De Instr.
Princ.; and his purposed
Top. of Britain.
Gildas
the British writer whom Giraldus especially follows.

Porro ad hæc aggrediendum² inducias petimus, sed exiguas; donec, cum libello De Principis Instructione toties promisso, Kambriæ quam præ manibus habemus Descriptio, et Britannica Topographia, in publicam notitiam emanaverint.

Præ aliis itaque Britannici scriptoribus, solus mihi Gildas, quoties eundem materiæ cursus obtulerit, imitabilis esse videtur. Qui³ ea quæ vidit et ipse cognovit scripto commendans, excidiumque gentis suæ deplorans potius quam describens, veram magis historiam texuit quam ornatam.

Gildam itaque Giraldus sequitur. Quem utinam moribus et vita sequi posset; factus ejusdem plus sapientia quam eloquentia, plus animo quam calamo, plus zelo quam stilo, plus vita quam verbis imitator.

¹ reservavimus] So all the MSS.; Camden has “reservabimus.”

² aggrediendum] V. N. T. D.; ingrediendum, Rd., Camden.

³ Qui] V. N. T. D.; Quia, Rd., Camden.

INCIPIUNT¹ CAPITULA LIBRI GIRALDI KAMBRENSIS DE KAMBRIÆ DESCRIPTIONE.

- I.²—Primus liber continet de longitudine Walliæ et latitudine; qualitate terræ, et inequalitate.
- II.—De divisione Walliæ totalis³ in tres partes.
- III.—De generatione principum Walliæ.
- IIII.—Quot cantaredos Wallia contineat; quot curias principales; et quot sedes cathedrales.
- V.—De duobus montanis, a quibus aquæ nobiles emanantes, Walliam egregie dividunt et distinguunt.
- VI.—De amœnitate Walliæ et fertilitate.
- VII.—Unde dicta sit Kambria, et unde Wallia.
- VIII.—De gentis istius natura, moribus, et cultu. Et primo de audacia ejusdem, agilitate, et animositate.
- IX.—De sobria ejusdem cœna, et parcimonia.
- X.—De hospitalitate, et dapsilitate.
- XI.—De crinium tonsura, dentium cultu, et barbæ rasura.
- XII.—De ingenii acumine et subtilitate, musicis instrumentis, coloribus rhetoricis, et dictaminum inventionibus.
- XIII.—De symphonicis eorum cantibus, et cantilenis organicis.

¹ Incipiunt . . . descriptione] N. D. Rd. Not in V. The whole Table of chapters is omitted in Camden.

² I. II., §c.] D. Not in V. N. Rd.

³ totalis] V. N., and D. infra at head of chapter; totius, D. here.

- XIIII.—De verborum facetia et urbanitate.
 113. XV.—De loquendi audacia et securitate.
 XVI.—De divinatoribus in hac gente, et¹ quasi arrip-titiis.
 XVII.—De generositatis amore, et genealogia longe retenta.
 XVIII.—De antiqua fidei fundatione, Christianitatis amore, et devotione.

Capitula² secundi libri.

- I.—Secundus liber continet de inconstantia gentis hujus et instabilitate; fidei quoque, sacramentique reverentia nulla.
 II.—Quod rapto³ vivunt; et pacis amicitiaque fœdera non custodiunt.
 III.—De martio conflictu invalido, turpique fuga et illaudabili.
 IIII.—De ambitiosa terrarum occupatione; et inter fratres divisione.
 V.—De gravi eorum exactione, et immoderantia.
 VI.—De incestus crimine; ecclesiarum quoque per successiones et participes abusione.
 VII.—De peccatis eorum; et tam Britanniae quam
 Trojæ, meritis urgentibus, amissione.
 VIII.—Qualiter gens ista sit expugnanda.
 IX.—Qualiter, expugnata, sit gubernanda.
 X.—Qualiter eadem resistere valeat; et rebellare.

¹ et] V. N. D. ; nonnullis, Rd.

² Cap. sec. libri] D. Not in V.
 N. Rd.

³ rapto] V. N. Rd., and D. infra
 at head of chapter; raptu, D. here.

PRÆFATIO SECUNDA. AD EUNDEM.¹

Cum inter varia literarum studia ad historias scri- Giraldus.
 bendas studiosæ mentis aciem applicuerim, imprimis having patriam, patriæque vicinas et conterminas ex industria given his regiones, ne natali ingratus solo viderer, pro ingenii mind to modulo literis illustrare, et sic seriatim ad ulteriora writing simul² et utiliora, Deo duce, vitæque comite, quasi history, salutata primum patria transire disposui. Sed quo- will not nam nonnulli viri magni, quos vidimus et novimus, neglect quibus literæ nauseam creant, libros egregios eis obla- his own tos statim in scriniis recondere, et tanquam perpetuo country.
 carceri tradere et retrudere³ solent, a te, vir optime, To some cui præsens opusculum transmitti deproperat, peti- great men tum, si placet, et impetratum esse cupio; quatinus hæc literature nostræ diligentiae monumenta, sicut et priora vobis⁴ nauseous.
 exarata, quanquam in se modica, aliquando tamen et aliquibus forsitan accepta futura, tenebris involvi quæ lucem desiderant non permittas; sed ea potius, quæ publica pulchrius elucescent,⁵ voce liberali ac libera jubeas in commune deduci. Pretium quippe⁶ laboris et præmium reputem, si, sopitis interdum orationum Giraldus
 hopes for encouragement from those to 113 b.
 whom he dedicates his works.
 Only wants his works
 to be read.

¹ Præfatio . . . eundem] D. Rd., Camden; "Ad eundem" only in V. N. The heading in T. is, "In Kambriæ descriptionem præfatio secunda;" vol. i. 394.

² simul et utiliora] V. N. T. D. Not in Rd., Camden.

³ retrudere] T. D. Rd., Camden; recondere, V.; rescindere, N.

⁴ vobis] T. D. Rd.; nobis, N.; doubtful in V. Camden has "a nobis."

⁵ elucescent] T. D.; elucescunt, V. N., Camden; elucescant, Rd.

⁶ quippe] V. N. T. Rd., Camden; quidem, D.

instantiis et occupationum curis, vel oculos ad hæc quandoque legendum, vel saltem aures ad audiendum¹ accommodes. Nee enim aliam a vobis, cum hodie scripta nemo remuneret, vel expeto, vel exspecto retributionem. Quanquam rationi tamen id dissonum minime foret, nisi a magnatibus hodie quasi conjuratio in auctores facta fuisset, si ille, qui tot virtutibus, et tam industriæ quam naturæ dotibus, moribus electis et munificentis, his nostris diebus longe præeminet et præcellit, et in hac virtute, ab aliis omnibus derelicta dudum et destituta, se quoque spectabilem et quasi singularem exhiberet.

Desires and expects no remuneration, however right this might be.

Ille, inquam, ut brevi eloquio laudis ad cumulum multa concludam, cui versus illi Marcialis ad Trajanum sub Diocleciano militantem² digne poterunt adaptari, Epigram. xii. 6, 11.

“Laudari debes,³ quoniam sub principe duro, “Temporibusque malis, ausus es esse bonus;”

et illi Maronis ad Mecenatem, principis mansuetudinem declarantes, “Omnia⁴ cum posses, tanto tam clarus amico,

“Te sensit nemo posse nocere tamen.”

Objections of his friends to his devotion to literature.

“Ad hæc⁵ autem objiciunt multi, et hi præsertim qui dicuntur amici, ob studii vehementiam⁶ me rebus secularibus negotiisque familiaribus minus intentum, et ob hoc segnius in mundanæ dignitatis gradibus provehendum;

¹ ad audiendum] V. N. T. D. Not in Rd. Camden has instead, “attente.”

² militantem] T. D. Rd.; adhuc militantem, V. N.

³ Martial has :

“Nunc licet, et fas est; sed tu “cum principe duro,

“Temporibusque malis, ausus es
“esse bonus.”

⁴ In Scaliger's Catalecta Virgilio (ed. 1617, p. 95), these lines are in

“C. Pedonis Albinovani in Mæcenatis obitum Elegia,” where “carus,” instead of clarus, in the first line.

⁵ Ad hæc, &c.] The rest of this preface, with the exception of a quotation from Horace, has already appeared, all but word for word, as the latter portion of the first preface to Exp. Hib. (vol. v. 211, &c.).

⁶ vehementiam] T. D., &c., and Exp. Hib.; reverentiam, V. N.

“ auctorum olim tam historicorum quam poeticorum auctori-“ tatem in desuetudinem abiisse; literarum honorem cum “ literatis principibus præteriisse; aliis hodie viis ad honorem “ perveniri. Fateor hæc, equidem¹ fateor; et facile veris “ acquiesco. Sequuntur enim principes improbi, curiam “ cupidi, codices” et pixides ambitiosi. Sed quoniam,

‘ Trahit sua quemque voluptas,’

Virg. Ecl.
 ii. 65.

“ me literarum a pueritia traxit amor, et tanquam deliciarum “ omnium caput literatæ studium delectat eloquentiæ. Hoc “ itaque præditus voto, supra coætaneos multos scrutabunda “ tam naturalium³ cursus rerum quam excursus inquisitione “ profeci; et posteritati consulens, inclita nostri temporis “ acta sub silentio perire non permisi.

Giraldus's
 love of literature :
 114. and proficiency.

“ Nec ista tamen absque labore complentur plurimo, sed “ jocundo. Difficilis namque est tam⁴ certa rerum singula-“ rum⁵ indagatio; difficilis inquisitæ simul et exquisitæ veri-“ tatis ordinata dispositio; et ab initiali puncto finalem ad “ usque,⁶ non discrepante materia, recta per medium funis “ extentio. Difficilis quoque, quatinus tam verbis quam sen-“ tentiis scintillet oratio, ornati sermonis elocutio: quippe “ cum ad explicandam memorandum seriem, non minus “ interdum⁷ elegantium verborum torqueat electio quam “ vexet⁸ inventio. Tanto namque propensiore opus est opera, “ tantoque singula prius elimanda videntur quam eliminanda, “ quanto scripto commendata se oculis multorum subijcere

Labour attending it.

This necessary, because writings

¹ equidem] After this word, V. and N. proceed, “ pascor deliciis et reficior,” &c., as infra, 164, l. 22. They are followed by a number of late MSS. Rd. is the only late MS. I have seen, which gives this preface complete, as in T. D. In all, however, the portion here missing is found in the middle of Cap. 7, Lib. ii. infra, with no hint of disconnection. As will be seen hereafter, under Cap. 8, V. and N., followed by the same late MSS., have another and a very large omission, which is not found elsewhere, as with this smaller omission. They must have been derived from some earlier MS., one leaf of which in this preface had somehow got misplaced into the middle of Lib. ii., and which had also altogether lost several leaves afterwards of Lib. i.

² codices] V. N. T. D., and Exp. Hib.; codices clerici, Rd., Camden.

³ naturalium . . . excursus] Instead of this the Exp. Hib. has, “ cursum naturæ quam excursuum.”

⁴ tam] V. N. T. D. and Exp. Hib. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁵ singularum] V. N. T., &c.; singularium, D.

⁶ After usque, Rd. and Camden have “ terminum.”

⁷ interdum] T. D. Rd., Camden. Not in V. N., Exp. Hib.

⁸ vexet] T. D. Rd.; vexat, V. N., Camden, and Exp. Hib.

- are not only for present eyes.
- “ non formidant, nec solum presentibus sed futuris, argutorum simul subitura iudicium et offensorum. Verba nimium emissa, quia statim evolant et evanescent, nec laudis eorum memoria nec vituperii diuturna. Scripta vero, quoniam edita semel et publicata non prætereunt, ad auctoris sui permanentem vel gloriam extant vel ignominiam. Quoniam, ut ait Seneca,¹ ‘Lividi lectoris malitia dictionem sanam et insanam pari revolvit appetitu; non amplius concupiscens electa quæ laudet, quam despecta quæ rideat.’” Unde² poeta :
- Sidon.
Apoll. Ep.
iii. 14.
- “ Discit enim citius, meminitque libentius illud, “ Quod quis deridet, quam quod probat et veneratur.”
- Hor. 2 Ep.
i. 262.
- “ Igitur inter studia laude dignissima, hujus quoque studii laus non ultima. ‘Historia namque,’ ut ait Seneca,³ est ‘antiquitatis auctoritas, testis temporum, lux veritatis, vita memoriae, magistra vitæ,⁴ nuntia vetustatis.’
- Cic. de Oratore,
ii. 9.
- “ Tanto denique labor hic delectabilior, quanto dignius quam aliena recitare recitanda proferre, quanto appetibilius ab aliis eligi quam bonus aliorum elector videri, quanto laudabilius digne ab aliis in laudem efferri quam dignus aliorum laudator haberi. His itaque pascor deliciis, et reficior; Ieronimo malens similis esse quam Creso, longaque plus opibus cunctis opum approbans contemptorem. His gratulor divitiis⁵ et delector; semper intemperantiæ modestiam, semper honestam superfluitati præferens sufficientiam. Et quoniam illa pereunt, ista perire non possunt, illa transeunt, ista cum æternitate contendunt, semper luero laudem, semper gazis gloriam anteponens.”
- Especial delight in this labour.
114 b.

¹ This quotation is in Sidonius Apollinaris. See vol. v. 213, n. 2.

² Unde . . . veneratur] T. D. Rd., Camden. Not in V. N. or Exp. Hib.

³ ut ait Seneca] D.; ut ait moralis ille philosophus, Rd., Camden.

It is not at all in V. N. T., Exp. Hib. The passage is from Cicero.

⁴ magistra vitæ] This omitted in T.

⁵ divitiis] V. N. D.; deliciis, T. Rd., Camden. Both readings are also in MSS. of the Exp. Hib.

[CAP. I.]¹

De longitudine Kambriæ, et latitudine; qualitate ejusdem, [æqualitate],² et inæqualitate.

Kambria, quæ adulterino vocabulo, usitatoque magis sed proprio minus, modernis diebus Wallia dicitur, ducenta milia passuum in longum, circiter vero centum milia in latum habet. Longitudo namque, a portu Yoiger³ in Monia usque ad portum Eskewin in Winta, quasi per octo dietas extenditur: latitudo vero, a Porthmaur Meneviæ, id est Portu magno, usque Ridhelic,⁴ quod Britannice⁵ Vadum salicis, Anglice vero nunc Wiliford⁶ dicitur, quasi per quatuor dietas expanditur. Montibus excelsis, vallibus imis, silvis immensis, aquis et paludibus, terra munitissima: adeo ut a tempore quo Saxones primum insulam occupaverant, reliquiæ Britonum, qui in has partes secesserunt, nec ab Anglis olim, nec a Normannis postmodum, expugnari ad plenum prævaluissent.⁷ Illi vero qui ad australem angulum, qui a ducis Corinei nomine nomen accepit, se susceperunt, quia terra tam munita non est, adeo rebelles esse non valuerunt. Tertia namque Kambria, improperly called Wales: its length and breadth.

Its mountains, forests, &c.; strong-holds against the English and Normans. The Britons of Cornwall;

¹ Cap. I., Cap. II., §c.] No numbering is given to the chapters in any MS., I therefore enclose these in brackets. But, as we have just seen, there is numbering in the Table of chapters (supra, 159) in D., the only early MS. of this treatise that has come down to us. The same is the case in the Itinerarium, which, in the early MSS., has the numbering in the Table of chapters (supra, 9), but not to the chapters themselves afterwards. I ought to have mentioned this, but have not in my notes to the Itinerarium.

² æqualitate] Not in V. N. Rd., nor in D., in Table of chapters, supra, 159. In D. here.

³ Yoiger] D. Rd.; Horger, V. N.; Gordber, Camden.

⁴ Ridhelic] N. D.; Rid helig, V.; Rithelic, Rd.

⁵ Britannice] So all the MSS.; Latine, Camden.

⁶ Wiliford] V. N. D.; Weliford, Rd.; Wilowforde, Camden.

⁷ prævaluissent] V. N. D.; potuissent, Rd., Camden.

and of Brittany.

Britonum extantium pars, quæ Armoricum australis Galliæ sinum obtinuit, non post Britannicum excidium, sed longe ante a Maximo¹ tyranno translata est: et post multos et graves, quos Britannica juvenus cum ipso sustinuit, bellicos sudores, ultimis his Galliarum finibus imperiali munificentia est remunerata.

[CAP. II.]

De divisione Walliæ totalis in tres partes.

115. Divisa est antiquitus Wallia totalis in tres partes tanquam æquales; plus equivalentiæ tamen, quam justæ quantitatis et proportionis habita consideratione; viz., North Wales, South Wales, and Powys. Venedotiam scilicet, quæ nunc Nortwallia, id est, Borealis Wallia dicitur; Sudwalliam, id est Australem Walliam, quæ Kambrice Deheubarth, id est, Dextralis pars dicitur; cujus etiam portio septem cantaredis est conserta Demetia;² et Powisiam, quasi mediam et orientalem.

By the three sons of Rhodri Mawr.

Divisionis autem hujus hæc causa suberat. Rothericus magnus, qui Britannice Rotheri Maur dicebatur, totique Walliæ præsidebat, tres filios habuerat,³ Mervinum, Anaraut, et Cadelh. Hi tres totam inter se Walliam diviserunt. Mervino cessit Nortwallia, Anaraut Powisia, Cadelh vero, cum populi totius et fratrum benedictione, Sudwallia. Ipsa nimirum, quam quantitate longe major, propter nobiles tamen qui Kambrice Hucheilwer quasi superiores viri vocantur, quibus abundabat,⁴ qui et dominis rebelles esse solebant, dominumque ferre detrectabant,⁵ deterior esse

¹ Maximo] D.; Maximano, V. N.; Maximo rege, Rd., Camden.

² Demetia] D. Rd.; Demetiam, V. N. See Itin., supra, 93, l. 5. This section is strangely altered, and made nonsense of, in Camden.

³ habuerat] So all the MSS.; habuit, Camden.

⁴ abundabat] V. N. Rd., Camden; abundat, D.

⁵ detrectabant] V. N., &c.; re-trectabant, D.

videbatur. Cadelh autem, præmortuis fratribus, totius Walliæ demum monarchiam obtinuit; et successores sui similiter, usque ad Theodorum. Descendentes enim a Theodoro tantum Sudwalliam obtinuerunt, sicut et pater eorum: hi scilicet, Resus filius Theodori, Griphinus filius Resi, et Resus filius Griphini qui hodie præest.¹

[CAP. III.]

De generatione principum Walliæ.

Hæc itaque est generatio principum Sudwalliæ: Resus filius Griphini, Griphinus filius Resi, Resus filius Theodori, Theodorus filius Cadelh, Cadelh filius Eneæ, Eneas filius Oenei, Oeneus filius Hoeli da, id est Hoeli boni, Hoelus filius Cadelh, Cadelh filius Roderici magni.

De Cadelo igitur, filio Rotherici magni, descendunt principes Sudwalliæ. De Mervino principes Nortwalliæ, in hunc modum; David² filius Oenei, Oeneus filius Griphini, Griphinus filius Canani, Cananus filius Iago, Iago filius Ythewal, Ythewal filius Meuric, Meuric filius Anaudrech, Anaudrech filius Mervini, Mervinus filius Rotherici magni.

De Anaraut autem generatio non provenit. Unde et principes Powisiæ suam habent per se generationem.

Hoc etiam³ mihi notandum videtur, quod bardi Kambrenses, et cantores, seu recitatores, genealogiam habent prædictorum principum in libris eorum anti-Genealogies of the princes of Wales.

115 b.

As preserved in the ancient books of the bards.

¹ hodie præest] V. N. D. ; diebus nostris præfuit, Rd., Camden. Rhys ab Gruffudd died in 1197.

² David filius Oenei] V. N. D. ; Leuelinus filius Iorwerth, Iorwerth filius Oenei, Rd., Camden. Llywelyn ab Iorwerth drove his uncle David from North Wales, and obtained the sovereignty, in 1194. See Itin., supra, 134.

³ ctiam] N., Camden; et, V.; tamen, D.; autem, Rd.

quis et authenticis, sed tamen Kambrice scriptam; eandemque memoriter tenent, a Rotherico magno usque ad beatam Virginem,¹ et inde usque ad Silvium, Ascanium, et Eneam; et ab Enea usque ad Adam generationem linealiter producant. Sed quoniam tam longinqua, tam² remotissima generis enarratio, multis trutonica potius quam historica esse videretur, eam huic nostro compendio inserere ex industria supersedimus.

¹ beatam Virginem] So all the MSS. Powel makes out, in a note to this passage (Camden, 883), that Giraldus no doubt wrote B. M., i.e. Beli Mawr, or Belinus Magnus, from whom all the princely families of Wales traced their descent, and whose name, of very frequent occurrence, was often so contracted in the Welsh pedigrees; and that ignorant Mariolatrous scribes converted Giraldus's B. M. into "beatam Mariam," for which others afterwards wrote "beatam Virginem." All this sounds very like truth; but there are serious objections to it. In the first place, it is difficult to believe that so many Mariolatrous scribes could possibly have concurred in allowing their pens to multiply such blasphemy as that the blessed Ever-Virgin, the mother of God, was also the mother of a mere man. Moreover, the entire evidence of the MSS. of Giraldus is wholly against Powel's supposition: had I found a single instance, where a MS. even so far favoured it as to give "beatam Mariam" instead of "beatam

"Virginem," I should have felt far less difficulty in accepting his supposition; but in no MS. that I have examined,—and I have examined many more than those whose readings I record in my notes,—is the reading other than "beatam Virginem."

It seems to me that the true solution of the difficulty is perhaps this; viz., that "usque ad beatam Virginem" means simply, Up to the time of the blessed Virgin. And Giraldus's thus introducing her name was not at all unnatural, because, in some Welsh pedigrees, Beli Mawr is said to have had for wife Anna cousin of the blessed Virgin. In the pedigree of Owain, son of Howel the Good, in an 11th century MS. in the British Museum, his descent is traced to "Amalech, qui fuit Beli Magni filius; et Anna mater ejus, quæ dicitur esse consobrina Mariæ Virginis, matris Domini nostri Jesu Christi." Annal. Camb. preface, x.

² tam] V. N. D.; tamque, Rd., Camden.

[CAP. IV.]

Quot cantaredos Wallia contineat, quot curias principales, et quot sedes cathedrales.

Continet autem Sudwallia cantaredos viginti novem, Norwallia duodecim, Powisia sex: quorum tamen hodie tres¹ ab Anglis et Francis occupati sunt. Terra namque, quæ² Slopesburia dicitur, olim pars³ Powisiæ fuerat. Unde et locus, ubi nunc castrum Slopesburia situm est, olim Penguern, id est Caput alneti vocabatur.

Tres etenim fuerant Walliæ totius curiæ principales,⁴ Dynevir in Sudwallia; modernis diebus, antiquitus enim apud urbem Legionum erat; Aberfrau in Nordwallia; Penguern in Powisia. Est itaque numerus omnium cantaredorum totius Walliæ quinquaginta quatuor. Cantaredus autem, id est⁵ Cantref, a Cant quod est centum et Tref villa composito vocabulo, tam Britannica quam Hybernica lingua dicitur tanta terræ portio, quanta centum villas continere solet.

Sunt autem in Wallia sedes cathedrales quatuor. In Sudwallia Menevensis, super Hybernicum mare; David archiepiscopo patrocinate. Hæc antiquitus metropolitana fuerat, et cantaredos continebat viginti quatuor; cum tamen hodie viginti tribus tantum contenta sit. Ergengel etenim, quæ et Anglice Urchensfeld dicitur, intra diocesim Menevensis olim aliquando, intra Landavensem quoque quandoque fuisse perhibetur. Habuerat⁶ autem sedes Menevensis archiepiscopos

Number of cantreys in Wales.

The three royal courts of Wales.

The four cathedral sees. St. David's; formerly metropolitan.

116.

Supra, 102;

¹ tres] So the MSS. Camden has "multi."

² quæ] D. Rd., Camden; quæ nunc, V. N.

³ pars] V. N. D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁴ Sec Itin., supra, 81, l. 1.

⁵ id est . . . villa] D. Rd., Camden. Not in V. N. Compare Itin. supra, 127, l. 10.

⁶ Habuerat] V. N. Rd., Camden; Habebat, D.

- and vol. iii. 151. successive viginti tres:¹ sublato vero pallio, episcopos usque in hodiernum diem viginti quatuor. Quorum nomina et ordinem, causamque pallii sublati, si scire Supra, 103. volueris, nostrum Itinerarium quæras.
- Llandaf. In eadem quoque australi Wallia sedes Landavensis; super mare Sabrinum, juxta nobile castrum de Kairdif; præsule Teliao presidente; quinque continens cantaredos, et quartam partem unius, scilicet Seighenith.
- Bangor. In Nortwallia, inter Moniam et montes Eleri sedes Bangorensis, Danielis abbatis patrocinio gaudens, cantaredos continens circiter novem.
- Llanelwy, or St. Asaph. In eadem, paupercula cathedra Lanelvensis; cui et Powisia subest, Asaph episcopo presidente; cantaredos continens quasi sex.

[CAP. V.]

De duobus montanis; a quibus aquæ nobiles² emanantes, Walliam egregie dividunt et distinguunt.

The two mountain ranges, whence rise the rivers of Wales.

Scinditur autem et distinguitur aquis Wallia nobilibus, quæ ex montanis duobus originem habent; Elenmyth scilicet in Sudwallia, quæ Angli Morige vocant, quasi paludum cacumina; Eleri quoque in Nortwallia, quæ³ Anglice Snaudune dicuntur, id est Nivium montes. Hæc tantæ quantitatis et capacitatis esse perhibentur, quod si cuncta totius Walliæ armenta in unum coacta fuerint, eis ad pascua multo tempore sufficere possent. In his etiam duo lacus illi esse perhibentur; quorum alterum insulam erraticam, alterum

The Snowdon lakes: Itin. supra, 135.

¹ tres] V. N. D. Rd., and 1st and 2nd editions of the Itin. (supra, 102, n. 3); "quinque" instead, in Camden and 3rd edition of the Itin., and in the De Jure, &c. (vol. iii. 151).

² nobiles] V. N. Rd., Camden, and D. (supra, 159) in list of chapters. But here D. has "notabile." "hiles."

³ quæ] D. Rd., Camden; qui, V. N.

autem pisces omnes monoculos certum est continere, sicut in Itinerario declaravimus.

“ Notandum hic etiam quod in Albania quoque, duobus in The one-eyed Scotch mullets; ibid., 136.
 “ locis, uno ad mare orientale, altero ad occidentale, pisces “ marini qui Mulvelli dicuntur monoculi reperiuntur; dextrum “ similiter oculum habentes, et sinistro carentes.”

De montanis igitur Elennyth nobilis emanat Sabrina The river Severn; its course; fluvius, castrum Slopesburiae complectens; deinde per nobile castrum Brugense, per urbem quoque Wigorniae, per Gloverniam ferream atque fabrilem; sub qua paucis passuum milibus in mare descendit, quod et ab ejus 116 b. quoque nomine Sabrinum mare nomen accepit. Hæc the ancient boundary of Wales and England.
 aqua, multis olim temporibus, inter Kambriam et Loegriam, hoc est inter Walliam et Angliam, marchia fuit. Hæc Britannice Haveren, a nomine puellæ, filia scilicet Locrini, ibi a noverca submersa, vocata est. Origin of its name; Geoffrey, ii. 5.
 Unde et Latine, mutatione aspirationis in S, ut in distortis a Græco in Latinum fieri solet, dicta est Sabrina. Sicut pro hal, sal; hemi, semi; hepta, septem.

Waia¹ fluvius, ab eisdem quoque montanis [de]² The river Wye; its course.
 Elennyth, per Haia castrum et Clifordiae, per urbem
 Herefordiae, per castellum de Wiltona et castellum Godricii discurrens, silvam quoque Danubiae ferro fertilem atque ferina transpenetrando, usque ad³ Stri- The modern boundary of Wales and England.
 gulense castrum, sub quo et in mare dilabatur, et Angliam ibidem a Wallia separans modernis diebus marchiam facit.

Oscha⁴ vero non ab Elennyth, sed a montanis de The river Usk.
 Cantrefbochan originem trahens, per principale castrum de Brecheniauc, quod Aberhotheni dicunt, id est Casum Hotherni, scilicet in Oscham; Aber enim Britannice dicitur locus omnis, ubi aqua in aquam cadit; per castrum de Abergevenni, per Oschæ castrum, per anti-

¹ Waia] D.; Vagæ, V. N. Rd. | ³ ad] V. N. D. Not in Rd.,
² de] D. Not in V. N. Rd., | Camden.
 Camden. | ⁴ Oscha] D.; Osca, V. N. Rd.

quam et authenticam Legionum urbem descendens, non procul a Novoburgo in Sabrinum mare demergitur.

The river Rhymni.

Remni fluvius de montanis de Brecheniauc per castellum et pontem de Remni in mare descendit. Et ab

The Taf.

eisdem montanis Taph per sedem cathedralem de Landaf, cui et nomen dedit, usque ad castrum de Kairdif, ubi se mari immiscet, impetuose transcurrit.

The Avan, and Nedd.

De montibus Wlatmorgan,¹ inter egregia Cyster-ciensis ordinis cœnobia, de Margan scilicet et Neth, Avennæ fluvius, et Neth de montibus Brecheniauc,² vivo sabulo et absorbente terribiles in mare deprope-rant. Neth fluvio juxta castellum de Neth profuente.

The Tawe.

The Llychwyrr.
117.

The Gwendraeth.
The Tywi.

De montanis quoque³ de Brecheniauc⁴ Tawe fluvius per castellum de Abertawe, quod Anglice Sweynesia dicitur, Locher per castellum de Loholt, et Wendraith per Kedwely, in profundum dilabuntur. Ab Elen-nyth iterum nobile flumen Tewi, Cantrefmaur, et Cantrefbochan ab invicem separans, per castrum Lanam-deveri, per castellum Dynevur silvis et situ munitissimum, ubi et principalis Sudwalliæ curia fuerat, per nobile castrum de Kairmerdhin, ubi et Merlinus inventus fuerat, a quo et nomen accepit, usque ad castellum de Landestephan in mare transfertur.

The Taf.

De montanis de Presseleu, non procul ab Albæ domus monasterio, per castellum de Sancto Claro, non longe ab Abercorran et Talachar Taph fluvius⁵ in mare devolvitur.

The two rivers Cleddy.

De montanis eisdem duo Cledeu, provinciam de Dugledeu complectentes, eique de suo nomine nomen donantes, alter per castellum de Lanwadein, alter per Haverfordiam, in mare decurrunt. Et dicuntur Britannice Dugledeu, quasi duo gladii.

¹ Wlatmorgan] D. Rd.; eisdem, V. N.

² de montibus Brecheniauc] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

³ quoque] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁴ Brecheniauc] D. Rd.; Cantefbochan, V. N.

⁵ Taph fluvius] D. In Rd. and Camden it comes before, after " Presseleu." Not at all in V. N.

A montibus autem¹ Elenith aqua Teivi nobilis The Teivi.
emanat, a superiori parte Cantrefmaur et Kerdigan, non procul ab armentis opimo de Stratflur monasterio, inferius autem Demetiam et Kerdigan usque in Hy-bernicum mare longe disterrinans. Hæc aqua sola in Beavers in this river.
Kambria castores habet. Quorum miracula si scire volueris, Itinerarium quæras. Salmone quoque præ-pingui, præ cunctis Cambriæ² fluviis, magis abundat.

Sed quoniam in multorum forte manus liber iste deveniet ad quas non ille, multaue de castoribus specialia reperies et notabilia, quædam et hic inter-serere præter rem non putavi. “ De hujus enim bestię Account of the beaver.
From Itin.
supra, 115.
“ natura, qualiter a silvis ad aquas materiam vehant; quanto “ artificio ex attracta³ materia mediis in fluctibus munimenta “ connectant; quam defensionis artem contra venatores in “ occidente prætendant, quam in oriente; de caudis quoque “ pisceis, ut aiunt, potius quam carneis, pauca interserere “ non inutile reputavi.⁴

“ Castores enim, ut castra sibi in fluviis construant, sui “ generis servis pro rheda utentes, a silvis ad aquas lignea “ roboram miro vecturæ modo contrahunt et conducunt. Qui 117 b.
“ dam cum ex eis, naturæ imperio servire parati, ligna ab “ aliis præcisa, ventrique supino imposita, quatuor pedibus “ complectentes, lignoque in ore ex transverso locato, denti“ bus ab aliis hinc inde coherentibus, retrogradeque trahen“ tibus, non absque intuentium admiratione, simul cum oneri-“ bus attrahuntur. Simili quoque naturæ artificio, in scrobium “ purgatione, quas sibi pedibus in terra fodiendo scalpendo“ que conformant, meloti⁵ utuntur. In utroque vero anima-“ lium genere, servi notabiles inveniuntur tam degenerante “ quadam naturæ deformitate, quam abrasa et attrita dorso“ rum depilatione.

¹ autem] D. Rd.; etiam, V. N., Camden.

² This is about the only instance where D. has Cambria, and not Kambria.

³ ex attracta] V. N. D., Itin.; extracta, Rd., Camden.

⁴ Camden here stops in this repe-tion about the beaver, with “ Re-“ liqua vide supra pag. 861,” the page of his Itin. where the account of the beaver begins.

⁵ meloti] D. Rd.; melotæ, V. N.
And so in the Itin., the 1st and 2nd editions have “ melotæ,” but the 3rd, “ meloti ;” supra, 115, n. 7.

The
beaver.
Itin. supra,
116.

“ In aliquo vero profundissimo fluvii¹ angulo et pacifico,
“ in castrorum constructione tanto artificio ligna connectunt, “ ut nec aquæ stilla de facili penetrando subintret, nec pro“ cellæ vis labefactando concutiat: nec² violentiam quamlibet “ præter humanam, et hanc ferro munitam reformident.

“ Ex salicum autem ramis in castrorum constructione ligna “ connectunt; soliisque variis in altum, quantum aqua ex“ crescere solet et ultra, ostiis interius a solio in solium “ aptatis, machinam distinguunt; ut juxta fluminis incrementa, “ fluctuantes undas cum voluerint ab alto despicere valeant.
“ Ex salicibus autem, ut per annuos crescendo³ salicum saltus “ hispidum exterius silvescat arbustum; tota interius arte “ latente.

“ Hoc animal in aquis ad libitum perdurat; et sub eisdem,
“ more bufonum, velutique phocæ pilosæ quæ fluxum maris “ atque refluxum lenitate pilorum et hispiditate declarant, “ halitum fovet.

“ Sub aquis igitur indifferenter et sub divo, tria hæc ani“ malium genera spiritum trahunt. Suntque tibiis curtis, “ corpore lato, caudis nullis vel quasi mutilatis; et talpis “ quodammodo, sive melotis, in corporis compositione con“ formia.

“ Notandum etiam quod quatuor hæc solum dentes bestia “ præfert; oris anteriori parte duos supra, et duos inferius e “ contra; eisque, latis plurimum et acutis, tanquam dolabris “ utitur ad secandum.

118. “ Habent autem in proxima castris ripa scrobes subterra-“ neas, latibulaque munitissima in sicco. Ad quæ venator⁴ “ explorans dum præacutis sudibus desuper transpenetrare “ molitur, ictum audiens, et violentiam timens, quamcitius “ ad castri munimenta se bestia confert. Sed primo ad ipsum “ foraminis ingressum in ripa residens, aquam exsufflat, pedi“ bus scalpendo⁵ terram immiscet, et ex limpida visuique “ pervia turbidam reddit et cœnulentam, ut sic hostis a ripa “ cum fuscina ferrea saltum observantis artem arte deludat.

“ In cois autem⁶ regionibus, cum canes narium sagacitate

¹ fluvii] D. Rd. and Itin.; fluviorum, V. N.

² nec] V. N. Rd. and Itin.; sed,
D.

³ crescendo] D. Rd. and Itin.
Not in V. N.

⁴ venator] V. N. Rd. and Itin.
Not in D.

⁵ pedibus scalpendo] D. Rd. Not in V. N. In like manner it is in the 3rd edition of the Itin., but not in the 1st and 2nd. See supra, 117,
n. 1.

⁶ autem] N. D. Rd. and Itin.; que, V.; quoque, Hc.

“ sequentes se nullatenus effugere posse præsentit, ut damno The “ partis totum redimat, partem quam appeti naturali industria beaver.
 “ novit projiciendo, venatoris in prospectu¹ seipsam bestia Itin. supra, “ castrat. Unde et a castrando Castor nomen accepit. Præ- 117.
 “ terea, si bestiam præcastratam canes iterum forte perse“ quantur, ad eminentem se statim conferens locum, coxa in “ altum elevata, partem venatori quam appetit præcisam “ ostendit. De quibus² Cicero in Scauriana; ‘Redimunt se “ ‘ex illa parte corporis, propter quam maxime expetuntur.’
 “ Juvenalis;

“ ‘ Qui se

“ ‘ Eunuchum ipse facit, cupiens evadere damno

“ ‘ Testiculi.’

“ Et Bernardus;

“ ‘ Prodit item castor proprio de corpore velox

“ ‘ Reddere quas sequitur hostis avarus opes.’

“ Sic igitur ut hinc pellem, quæ in occidente quæritur, “ tueri valeat, illinc partis medicinalis quæ in oriente diligi“ tur largitione, totum quanquam tamen non totum conservet, “ mirabili, ne dicam ingenio, vi quadam ingenita et quasi “ discretiva, venatoris astutiam vitare molitur.

“ Notandum quoque quod castores caudas habent latas et “ non longas, in modum palmæ humanæ spissas; quibus “ tanquam pro remigio natando funguntur. Cumque totum “ corpus reliquum valde pilosum habeant, hanc partem omni “ pilositate carentem, in morem phocæ marinæ,³ planam “ habent et levigatam. Unde et in Germania, arctoisque “ regionibus, ubi abundant beveres, caudis hujusmodi, pis“ cium ut aiunt naturam tam sapore quam colore sortitis, “ viri etiam magni et religiosi jejuniorum tempore pro pisce 118 b.
 “ vescuntur.”

A montibus eisdem Escud erumpit; et superiores The river Kereticæ regionis partes de Penwethig⁴ transpenetrando, Ystwyth.
 sub castro⁵ Aberescud in mare descendit.

¹ prospectu] N. D. and Itin.; |
 conspectu, V. He. Rd.

² De quibus avarus opes] |
 These quotations in D. Rd. Not in V. N. In like manner they are in the 3rd edition of the Itin., but not in the 1st and 2nd. See supra, 117,

 n. 2.

³ marinæ] D. Rd. and Itin. Not in V. N.

⁴ de Penwethig] D.; de Penweic, Rd. Not in V. N.

⁵ castro] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

The Dyvi. A niveis autem Eleri montibus nobilis Devi fluvius originem trahens, Sudwalliam a Nortwallia longe discernit et distinguit. Ab eisdem quoque montibus Mau

The rivers Maw, Traeth Mawr, and Traeth Bychan, Dysynwy, and Artro. The Conwy. fluvius magnus emanans, Trait maur et Trait bochan, id est Tractus Maris¹ major et minor, Dissennyth² similiter, et Arthro, per Meirionith et terram Canani dilabuntur. Cunewe vero de sub Eleri pede boreali montis emergens, sub nobili castello Dugannu se marinis undis immiscet. A latere montis ejusdem, per

The Clwyd. castellum Rudhelan,³ et sic usque⁴ in mare Clويد dilabitur. De lacu Pemmesmere Deverdoe,⁵ quam Angli Deiam vocant, originem ducens, et per Cestriam currens, longeque a latere dextro silvam de Coleshulle, Basingewore, et divitem non procul inde argenti venam, vivum⁶ et absorbens mare influendo sabulum facit; et inter Angliam et Walliam a parte boreali, sicut et Waia⁷ ab australi, moderno tempore marchiam facit.

The Dwyfyr Dwy, or Dee.

[CAP. VI.]

De amœnitate Walliæ et fertilitate.

Comparison of North and South
Wales. Totius autem Walliæ, sicut australis pars circa regionem Kereticam, et præcipue Demetiam, campestri planitie, maritimoque litore longe amœnior, sic borealis Venedotia et situ terrarum munitior, et robustis virorum corporibus fecundior, uberi que gleba fertilior

¹ Maris] V. N. Rd. Not in D. Compare Itin., supra, 123, l. 22. This clause is given very incorrectly in Camden; made utter nonsense of.

² Dissennyth . . . Arthro] D. Rd. Not in V. N. Compare Itin., supra, 124, where also is mention of these rivers in the 3rd edition of the treatise, but not in the 1st or 2nd.

³ castellum Rudhelan] D. Rd.; castellum de Rothelant, V. N.

⁴ usque] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁵ Deverdoe] D.; Devardoeu, Rd.; Benerdu, V. N. Dwyfyr Dwy, the Welsh name of the river Dee.

⁶ vivum] V. N. Rd., Camden; vivumque, D.

⁷ Waia] D.; Vaga, V. N. Rd., Camden.

esse dignoscitur. Sicut enim¹ montes Eleri cunctis Walliæ totius armentis in unum coactis ad pascua, sic insula Moniæ triticeæ graminis fertilitate toti Walliæ fertur aliquamdiu sufficere posse. Unde et Monia Mamkembre Britannice, id est Mater Kambriæ, dici solet.

The pastures of Snowdon, and cornland of Anglesea.

Merionyth autem et terra Canani præ aliis omnibus hispida nimis est et inaccessibilis.

Pars ista Walliæ lanceis longis præstat; sicut australis, et præcipue circa Wintæ fines, arcu solet prævalere.

Lances of the North, and bows of the South.

Notandum etiam, quia² in Nortwallia lingua Britannica delicatior, ornatior, et laudabilior, quanto alienigenis terra illa impermixtior, esse perhibetur. Kereticam tamen in Sudwallia regionem, tanquam in medio Kambriæ ac meditullio sitam, lingua præcipua uti et³ laudatissima plerique testantur. Cornubia vero, et Armorica Britannia, lingua utuntur fere persimili; Kambris tamen, propter originalem convenientiam, in multis adhuc et fere cunctis⁴ intelligibili. Quæ, quanto delicata minus et incomposita magis, tanto antiquo linguæ Britannicæ idiomati magis, ut arbitror, appropriata. Sicut in australibus Angliæ⁵ finibus, et præcipue circa Devoniam, Anglica lingua hodie magis videtur incomposita: ea tamen, vetustatem⁶ longe plus redolens, borealibus insulæ partibus per crebras Dacorum et Norwagiensium⁷ irruptiones valde corruptis, originalis linguæ proprietatem, et antiquum loquendi modum magis observat. Cujus etiam rei non solum argumentum, sed et⁸ certitudinem inde habere potes, 119.

Language of the North the purest.

Language of Cornwall and Bretagne very like Welsh.

Language of the South of England, of Devonshire especially, purer than that of the North.

¹ enim] V. N. D. Not in Rd., Camden.

² quia] D. Rd.; quod, V. N.

³ et] N. D. Rd.; et etiam, V. Hc.

⁴ et fere cunctis] D. Not in V. N. Rd. has "et fere" only.

⁵ Angliæ] V. N. Rd., Camden; Anglorum, D.

⁶ vetustatem] D. Rd.; vetustate, V. N.

⁷ et Norwagiensium] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁸ et] D. Rd.; etiam, V. N.

Old English books written in this idiom.

quod omnes libros Anglicos Bedæ, Rabani, regis Aeluredi, vel aliorum quorumlibet, sub hujus idiomatis proprietate scriptos invenies.

[CAP. VII.]

Unde dicta sit Kambria, et unde Wallia.

Origin of the name Kambria.

The three sons of Brutus.

119 b.

Dicta est autem Kambria a duce Kambro, Bruti filio. Brutus etenim ab Enea,¹ mediantibus avo Ascanio et patre Silvio, descendens, et Trojanorum reliquias, qui in Grecia detenti fuerant, in occidentalem hanc insulam ducens, cum annis non paucis feliciter regnasset, et tam terræ quam genti de suo nomine nomina dedisset, in extremo tandem positus articulo, tribus filiis suis regnum Britanniae totale divisit. Primo et² primævo, scilicet Locrino, medium illud et mediterraneum inter Humbrum et Sabrinam; quod et ab ejus nomine Loegria vocatur. Juniori³ vero, Albanacto, totam trans Humbrum insulae partem; quæ et ab ejus nomine Albania dicitur. Medio⁴ vero, scilicet Kambro, totam trans Sabrinam regionem; quæ similiter et ejus nomine Kambria nomen accepit. Hinc igitur proprie et vere patria Kambria, hinc patriotæ Kambri dicuntur, vel Kambrenses. Eorum autem qui Kembraec, linguam Kambricam, a Kam Græco, hoc est, distorto Græco, propter linguarum affinitatem, quæ ob diuturnam in Grecia moram contracta est, dictam asserunt,⁵ probabilis quidem et verisimilis est, minus tamen vera relatio.

¹ ab Enea] V. N. Hc. Not in D. Rd.

² et] V. N. D. Not in Rd., Camden.

³ Juniori] V. N. D.; Medio, Rd., Camden. Albanact was the younger son; Geoffrey ii., 1.

⁴ Medio] V. N. D.; Natu minori, Rd., Camden.

⁵ dictam asserunt] D. Not in V. N. Rd. And these have no "dictam" before, after "Kam Græco," as in Camden.

Wallia vero non a Walone duce, vel Wendoloena regina, sicut fabulosa Galfridi Arthuri mentitur historia; quia revera neutrum eorum¹ apud Kambros invenies; sed a barbarica potius nuncupatione nomen istud inolevit. Saxones enim,² occupato regno Britanico, quoniam lingua sua extraneum omne Wallicum vocant, et gentes has sibi extraneas Walenses vocabant. Et inde, usque in hodiernum,³ barbara nuncupatione et homines Walenses, et terra Wallia vocitatur.

Geoffrey,
xii. 19.

Origin of the barbarous name Wallia.

Sed quoniam de qualitate terræ et quantitate, de generatione principum, origine fluminum, et ratione nominum hactenus explicuimus, naturam gentis et proprietatem evolvere subsequenter aggrediemur.

[CAP. VIII.]

De gentis hujus natura, moribus, et cultu. Et primo, de audacia ejusdem,⁴ agilitate, et animositate.

Gens igitur hæc gens levis et agilis, gens aspera magis quam robusta, gens armis dedita tota. Non enim nobiles hic⁵ solum, sed totus populus ad arma paratus: bellica tuba sonante, non segnius ab aratro ruricola, quam aulicus ab aula prorumpit ad arma. Non etenim hic, ut alibi,

Characters
of the Welsh.
All given to arms.

“ Redit agricolis labor actus in orbem.”

Virg.
Georg. ii.

Solum quippe Martio et Aprili, solum semel aperiunt ad avenas: nec bis in æstate, tertioque⁶ in hieme, ad tritici trituram terras vertendo laborant. Totus propemodum populus armentis pascitur et avenis, lacte, 401.

Their agriculture.
Their food.

¹ eorum] D., Rd.; istorum, V. N. | of Chapters supra, 159; ejus, Rd.
² enim] N. D. Rd.; vero, V. Hc. | Camden.
³ hodiernum] V. D. Rd.; hodiernum diem, N. Hc. | ⁵ hic] D. Rd.; hii, V. N.
⁴ ejusdem] V. N. D.; and Table | ⁶ tertioque] V. N. Rd., Camden.; tertio, D.

caseo, et butyro. Carne plenius, pane parcius vesci solent.

No merchandise, &c.
Their patriotism, and love of liberty.

Non mercimoniis, non navigiis, non mechanicis artibus, nec ullo prorsus nisi martio labore vexantur. Patriæ tantum tutelæ student, et libertatis: pro patria pugnant, pro libertate laborant: pro quibus¹ non solum ferro dimicare, verum etiam vitam dare dulce videtur. Unde et in toro turpe, in bello mori decus reputant. Ac si² illud poetæ aperte dixerint:

120.

“Procul hinc avertite pacem:
“Nobilitas cum pace perit.”

Nec mirum, si non degenerant. Quorum etenim hi reliquiæ olim, Virg. Æn.

viii. 648.
Their unarmed valour.

“Encadæ in ferrum pro libertate ruebant.”

De his igitur hoc spectabile, quod nudi multoties cum ferro vestitis, inermes³ cum armatis, pedestres⁴ cum equitibus congredi non verentur. In quo plerumque conflictu sola fiunt agilitate et animositate victores; illis quorum poeta sic meminit, sicut situ, sic et natura non dissimiles;

Lucan,
Pharsal.
i. 458.

“Populi quos despicit Arctos, “Felices errore suo; quos ille timorum “Maximus haud urget leti metus. Inde ruendi
“In ferrum mens prona viris, animæque capaces “Mortis, et ignavum redituræ parcere vitæ.”

Their arms.

Armis tamen utuntur levibus, agilitatem non impedi-entibus; lorice minoribus, sagittarum⁵ manipulis, et

¹ quibus] V. N. Hc., Camden; civibus, D. Rd.

² Ac si perit] This in D. Rd., and corruptly in Camden. Not in V. N. I have failed to identify the quotation. Lucan has (Pharsal. ii. 101) “Nobilitas cum plebe perit.”

³ inermes] D. Rd.; inermi, V. N.

⁴ pedestres] V. N. D.; pedites, Rd., Camden.

⁵ In V. N., and in all the many later manuscripts of the first edition, without one exception, there is here a very large omission, viz., of the lanceis longis; galeis, et clipeis, ocreisque ferreis rarius. Equis autem cursoribus et generosis, quos patria gignit, nobiliores ad bella feruntur. Pars autem populi major, Generally fight on foot. propter terras palustres pariter et inæquales, ad prælia pedestres incedunt. Equites autem, pro locorum et temporum opportunitate, seu fugiendo seu fugando¹ facile pedites fiunt. Nudis autem pedibus ambulant; Go bare-footed. vel corio crudo consutis barbaris pro calciamento peronibus utentes. Pacis quoque et juventutis tempore, Training of the youth in time of peace. silvas et saltus transpenetrare, montium alta transcurrere, dies huic labori noctibus continuare, ex industria prædiscunt; et quasi sub pace prælia dum cogitant, nunc lanceando, nunc sagittando,² bella præludunt.

Illud autem in hoc loco notandum videtur, quod Henry II.'s testimony to their bravery. Anglorum rex Henricus secundus, diebus nostris, imperatori Constantinopolitano Manueli, super insulæ Britannicæ situ ac natura, magisque notabilibus, literis et nuntiis inquirenti, inter cetera hoc quasi præcipue notabile rescripsit. In quadam insulæ parte sunt gentes, quæ Walenses dicuntur, tantæ audaciæ et audacitatis,³ ut nudi cum armatis congredi non vereantur; adeo ut sanguinem pro patria fundere promptissimæ, “Vitamque velint pro laude pacisci.”

Virg. Æn.
v. 230.

Quod et mirandum, quia bestię per totam propemoremainder of this chapter, the eight following chapters, and part of the next one. After sagittarum follows directly, in all these manuscripts, without any break or other sign whatever of dislocation, “vesci solent. Agris igitur plurimum utuntur pascuis, &c.,” as in about the middle of Cap. 17 infra, 201, n. 2. For this portion of the treatise thus missing, so far as I have been able to see, in every now known existing manuscript of the first edition,—I have therefore only the manuscripts D. and Rd. of the 2nd edition, with what aid Camden may give me, upon which to form my text.

¹ seu fugiendo, seu fugando] D.; seu dimicando, seu fugiendo, Rd., Camden.

² sagittando] D.; fatigando, Rd., Camden.

³ audacitatis] D.; serenitatis, Rd.; ferocitatis, Camden.

dum insulæ faciem quasi mansuescunt, homines vero prædicti¹ bestiales mansuescere nesciunt.

120 b.
Deer of the Peak district, trampling dogs and men to death.

In tanta quoque multitudine ob pacem eis indultam hic feræ, præcipueque cervi et damæ abundant, ut in borealibus insulæ finibus versus Pech,² nostris diebus, canes eorumque duces in impetu numerositatis suæ ad interitum cervi suppeditaverint.

[CAP. IX.]

De sobria ejusdem cœna, et parcimonia.

Great temperance of the Welsh.

Their endurance of hunger and cold.

Præterea, nec crapulæ dediti nec temulentia;—quibus nec cœnæ nec vestium³ ulla sumptuositas, sed in equis solum et armis, eorumque apparatus, tota versatur intentio; quibus ad patriæ prædæque tuitio- nem mens semper erecta;—a mane in⁴ vesperam jejuni, totum rebus agendis animum, totum consiliis et providentiæ diem donant. Vespere vero cœna sobria. Et si forte nulla vel minima fuerit, vesperam alteram patienter expectant. Et tamen nec fame nec frigore tardati, ad hostiles irrogandum invasiones noctes tene- brosas diligunt et procellas.⁵

[CAP. X.]

De hospitalitate et dapsilitate.

No beggars amongst
the Welsh.

Nemo in hac gente mendicus. Omnium enim hos- pitia omnibus sunt communia. Largitatem quippe, et præcipue⁶ dapsilitatem, cunctis virtutibus anteponunt.

¹ prædicti] D.; projecti, Rd., Camden.

² Pech] D., Camden; Peake, Rd. The district of the Peak, Derbyshire.

³ vestium] Rd., Camden; ves- cium, D.

⁴ in] D., Camden; ad, Rd.

⁵ procellas] D. Rd.; procellosas, Camden.

⁶ præcipue] D., Camden. Not in Rd.

Adeo nempe¹ hospitalis hic gratia communione lætatur, quod itinerantibus ea nec offeratur nec petatur. Their bounty and hospitality. Tantum etenim, domum intrantes, protinus² arma custodiæ tradunt: deinde statim aquam offerentibus si pedes ablui permiserint, hospitio suscepti sunt: aquæ nimirum pedibus oblatio hospitalis apud hanc gentem³ est invitatio. Obsequium autem oblatum si forte recusant, matutinas recreationes et non hospitia volunt.

Per turbas igitur et familias, capite sibi præfecto, gentis hujus juvenus incedit; solum armis et otio data, patriæque defensionis⁴ promptissima. Unde et tecta cujuslibet veluti propria secure subintrant.

Qui matutinis autem horis adveniunt, puellarum The company of girls, and music, always ready for visitors. affatibus et cithararum modulis usque ad vesperam delectantur. Domus enim hic quælibet puellas habet, et citharas, ad hoc deputatas. Unde et duo notabilia hic reperies; quia zelotypiæ vitio sicut nulla magis No Irish jealousy. quam Hybernica, sic nulla minus quam Kambrica All skilled in the harp. gens laborat; omnes quoque de curia seu familia viri, citra doctrinam omnem, citharizandi per se peritiam 121. tenent. Vespere vero, cessantibus jam adventantium turbis, juxta numerum virorum et dignitatem, juxta domus quoque facultatem, exhibitio procuratur. Ubi The simple evening meal, and its arrangements. non ferculis multis, non saporibus et gularum irritamentis⁵ coquina gravatur; non mensis, non mappis, non⁶ manutergiis, domus ornatur. Naturæ magis student quam nitori. Unde cœnantibus, non binis ut alibi, sed ternis, scirpis et herbæ viridi,⁷ scutellis etiam latis et amplis, fercula cuncta simul apponunt. Pani

¹ nempe] D. Camden; enim, Rd.

² protinus] D., Camden; Not in Rd.

³ gentem] Rd., Camden. Not in D.

⁴ patriæque defensionis] D., Camden; ad patriæ defensionem, Rd.

⁵ irritamentis] D., Camden; incitamentis, Rd.

⁶ non] D.; vel, Rd., Camden.

⁷ viridi] D.; viridis, Rd.; nitidæ, Camden.

quoque tenui et lato, quotidiano labore decocto, [cujusmodi¹ in veteri instrumento Lagana dici solent], interdum pulmentaria supponunt. Talibus olim usus est mensis puer ille nobilis, de cujus et hi se genere jactant, et cujus adhuc ex parte mores observant; testante poeta, Virg. Æn.

vii. 116.

“ Heu mensas consumpsimus, inquit Iulus.”

The guests waited on by the host and hostess.

Cum autem certatim obsequiis familia tota deseruiat,² soli præ ceteris hospes et hospita semper astando solícite cuncta perlustrant; nec unquam, nisi post plenam omnium refectionem, cibos sumunt; ut si quis forte defectus accidere debeat, in ipsos cadat.

All sleep together in the common room.

Demum autem, hora soporis instante, publico strato per latera domus in longum, juncis solum tenuiter insertis, panno quoque duro et aspero, quem patria parit, qui et vulgari vocabulo Brachan³ dicitur, superposito, communiter accumbunt. Nec alius eis nocte cultus quam die: pallio namque tenui et interula solum omni tempore frigora pellunt: igne tamen sicut die, sic et nocte tota, ad pedes accenso,⁴ propinquoque⁵ pariter concubantium calore multum adjuti. Cum autem vel latus inferius tori duritia lassari, vel etiam nimio superius algore frigescere cœperit, illico ad ignem prosiliunt, de cujus beneficio promptissima utriusque incommodi remedia quærunt; et sic ad strata revertentes, seque⁶ urgente gravamine crebro vertentes, alternis vicibus latus unum frigori, alterum vero duritiæ donant.

In the same dress as in the day.

¹ cujusmodi . . . solent] Not in D. In Rd., Camden.

² deseruiat] Rd., Camden; deferuat, D.

³ Brachan] D.; Brichan, Rd.; Brychan, Camden.

⁴ accenso] D., Camden; accensa, Rd.

⁵ propinquoque] D.; propinquo, Rd., Camden.

⁶ seque . . . vertentes] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

[CAP. XI.]

De crinium tonsura, dentium cultu, et barbæ rasura.

Tam mulieribus autem in hac gente, quam etiam maribus, ad aures et oculos tonsura rotunda. Mulieres autem peplo candido et amplo, more Parthico, in coronam per gradus erecto¹ capita velant.

How the hair worn. Women's turbans.

Dentes vero in utroque sexu, præ omni quam vidimus natione, propensius curant: quos assidua² coryli viridis confricatione,³ laneique⁴ panni purgatione, tanquam eburneos reddunt. Eorundem etiam culturæ gratia, alimentis abstinent a⁵ calidis; frigidis autem, tepidis, et temperatis semper utuntur.

Care of their teeth. 121 b.

Barbam viri, præter gernoboda solum, radere solent. Et hanc non de novo, sed ab antiquo, longisque retro seculis, consuetudinem tenent: sicut ex libro de gestis Julii Cesaris, ab ipso conscripto, perpendi potest. Ubi et hæc verba reperies; Britonum gens "omni parte corporis abrasa, præter superius labrum."⁶ Solent enim, ut agiliores fierent, etiam comis capita nudare; casum Absolonis, quoniam silvas et nemora sæpe percurrunt, vitare volentes. Unde et usque in⁷ hodiernum gens hæc inferiorem quoque,⁸ præ gentibus aliis, pilositatem magis abradit.

No beard, but a mustache, as in Cæsar's time. De Bell. Gall. v. 14.

Refert etiam Julius, quod Britones temporibus illis, martio certamine congressuri, facies suas vitreo quodam unguento liniebant; unde et easdem tam luridas

Ibid.

¹ erecto] D., Camden; erectam, Rd.

² assidua] D., Camden; assidue, Rd.

³ confricatione] D., Camden; fricatione, Rd.

⁴ laneique] D.; lanci quoque, Rd., Camden.

⁵ a] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁶ superius labrum] D. Rd. Cæsar has "præter caput et labrum superius;" and so Camden.

⁷ in] D., Camden; ad, Rd.

⁸ quoque] D. Not in Rd. Camden has it, but no "inferiorem."

habebant¹ et perlucidas, ut vix² in eorum vultus, præsertim sole repurcusso, hostes aciem intendere prævaluissent.

[CAP. XII.]

De ingenii acumine et subtilitate.

Their cleverness and acuteness.

Item, ingenii gens subtilis et³ acuti. Cuicunque studio animum applicuerint, venæ divitis dote præcellunt. Totaque communiter hæc natio, præ gentibus aliis occiduo climate degentibus, arguta nimis est et astuta.

Their skill in music.

In musicis instrumentis, tanta sonoritatis⁴ dulcedine aures deliniunt et demulcent; tanta modulorum celeritate pariter et subtilitate feruntur; tantamque⁵ discrepantium⁶ sub tam præcipiti digitorum rapacitate consonantiam præstant; quantam, ut breviter trans-eam, in tribus nationibus, titulo De musicis instrumentis, Hibernica Topographia nostra declarat in hæc

Vol. v. 153. verba. “Mirum quod, in tanta tamque⁷ præcipiti digitorum “rapacitate, musica servatur proportio; et arte per omnia “indemni, inter crispatos modulos, organaque multipliciter “intricata, tam suavi velocitate, tam dispari paritate, tam “discordi concordia, consona redditur et completur melodia.
122. “Seu diatessaron seu diapente chordæ concrepent, semper “tamen a B molli incipiunt, et in idem redeunt, ut cuncta “sub jocundæ sonoritatis dulcedine compleantur. Tam sub-“tiliter modulos intrant et exeunt; sicque, sub obtuso gros-“sioris chordæ sonitu, gracilium tinnitus licentius ludunt,

¹ habebant] D., Camden; habent, Rd. The words of Cæsar are: “Omnes vero se Britanni vitro “inficiunt, quod cœruleum efficit “colorem, atque hoc horridiores
“sunt in pugna aspectu.”

² vix] D., Camden. Not in Rd., which has “non” instead afterwards, before “prævaluissent.”

³ et] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁴ tanta sonoritatis] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁵ tantumque] Rd., Camden; tanta, D.

⁶ discrepantium] D., Camden; discrepantiam, Rd.

⁷ tantumque] D.; tam, Rd., Camden, and Top. Hib.

“ latentius delectant, lasciviusque demulcent; ut pars artis “ maxima videatur artem velare, tanquam

“ ‘ Si lateat,¹ prosit; ferat ars deprensa pudorem.’

Ov. Ars.
 Am. ii. 313.

“ Hinc accidit ut ea, quæ subtilius intuentibus, et artis ar“ causa acute discernentibus, internas et ineffabiles comparant “ animi delicias, ea non attendentibus, sed tanquam² videndo “ non videntibus, et audiendo non intelligentibus, aures potius “ onerent quam delectent, et tanquam confuso inordinatoque “ strepitu invitis auditoribus fastidia pariant tædiosa.” Tribus

Musical instruments.

autem utuntur instrumentis; cithara, tibiis, et choro.
 In causis, actionibus, et foro civili, captando, insinuando, inveniando, disponendo, refutando, et confirmando, nullas penitus naturalis rhetoricæ partes omittunt.

Their powers of rhetoric.

In cantilenis rhythmicis, et dictamine, tam subtiles inveniuntur, ut miræ et exquisitæ inventionis lingua propria tam verborum quam sententiarum proferant exornationes. Unde et poetas, quos Bardos vocant, ad hoc deputatos in hac natione multos invenies;
 juxta illud,

Their
 rhythmical songs, &c.

The Bards.

“ Plurima³ concreti fuderunt carmina Bardi.”

Lucan,
 Phars. i.
 449.

Præ cunctis tamen⁴ rhetoricis exornationibus, annominatione magis utuntur; eaque præcipue specie, quæ primas dictionum literas vel syllabas convenientia jungit.

Their love of alliteration;

Adeo igitur hoc verborum ornatu duæ nationes,
 Angli scilicet et Kambri, in omni sermone exquisito utuntur, ut nihil ab his eleganter dictum, nullum egregium,⁵ nullum nisi rude et agreste censeatur elo-

in common with the English.

¹ The line of Ovid is:

“ Si latet ars, prodest; affert de“ presa pudorem.”

² tanquam] Instead of this, “qua“ si” in Top. Hib.

³ The line of Lucan is:

“ Plurima securi fudistis carmina, “ Bardi.”

⁴ tamen] D.; autem, Rd., Camden.

⁵ nullum egregium] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

quium, si non schematis hujus lima plene fuerit expolitum. Sicut Britannice in hunc modum ;

Instances of this in Welsh.

“ Dychaun Dyu da dy unie.”¹

“ Erbyn dibuilh puilh paraut.”²

Anglice vero sic ;

In English.

“ Godis to gedere gamen and wisdom.”³

“ Ne halt nocht alsor isaid, ne al sorghe atwite.”⁴

122 b.

“ Betere is red thene rap, and liste thene lither “ streingthe.”⁵

In Latin
also.

In Latino quoque haud dissimiliter eloquio, eandem exornationem frequens est invenire. In hunc modum Virgilius ;

Æn. iii.
183.

“ Tales casus Cassandra canebat.”

Et illud ejusdem ad Augustum ;⁶

“ Dum dubitet natura marem faceretve puellam, “ Natus es, O pulcher, pene⁷ puella, puer.”

¹ Over this line is interlined in D., in very minute letters, and by the same hand apparently as that of the text: “i.e. facere potest bene Deus unieo ; ac si diceret, hominem potest juvare Dens, etsi solus sit.” This line in Rd. is: “ Di gaun dub da y unie.”

² Over this line, in like manner, is in D.: “i.e. contra insensatum sensum præpares.” In Rd. it is, “ Vrth pob kirbuil puyl paraut.” Camden, very corrupt, is nearer to this than to the line of D.

³ Over this line again is, in D.: “ i. e. bona est una eum jocunditate sapientia.” In Rd. this line is, “ God is te gedere gamen an wisidome.” This is the only one of the three English lines that is given in Camden.

⁴ Over this line again is, in D.: “ i.e. non attinet omne malum suum alii revelare, nec omne alterius incommodum ei exprobrare.” The line in Rd. is, “ Ne halt nozt al sel isait, ne al sore atwite.”

⁵ Over this line again is, in D.: “ hoc est, plus valet deliberatio quam præpropera festinatio, et plus moderatio quam violentia.” In Rd. this line is, “ Better is red then yap, an list then lidere strength.”

⁶ In the Cataleeta Virgilio, &c. (ed. Scaliger, 1617, p. 177), these lines are given, addressed not to Augustus, but “ In puerum formosum.” Scaliger has “ dubitat” in the first line, instead of “ dubitet.”

⁷ pene] Rd., Camden, Scaliger ; pena, D.

In nullis tamen linguis, quas novimus, hæc exoratio adeo ut in prioribus duabus est usitata.

Mirum autem quod Gallica lingua, alias tam ornata, hunc verborum ornatum, ab aliis tam usitatum, prorsus ignorat. Nec ego tamen id¹ crediderim, quod priores populi duo, tam diversi ab invicem et adversi, in hoc verborum ornatu ex arte conveniant, sed potius ex usu longo: qui, quia placuit solum, et facili similitum ad similia transitu aures demulcet, per succedentia tempora inolevit. Sicut Tullius, in libro De Elocutione, de talibus qui usum habent et non artem loquitur, dicens; “Ceteri, cum legunt orationes bonas, aut poemata, probant oratores et² poetas; neque intelligunt quare commoti probent; quod eo³ scire non possunt, ubi sit, aut quid sit, quomodo factum sit id, quod eos maxime delectet.”

Not used by the French.

Cic., De Elocutione.

[CAP. XIII.]

De symphonicis eorum cantibus, et⁴ cantilenis organicis.

In musico modulamine, non uniformiter, ut alibi, sed multipliciter, multisque modis et modulis, cantilenas emittunt. Adeo ut in turba canentium, sicut huic genti mos est, quot videas capita, tot audias carmina discriminaque vocum varia, in unam denique sub B mollis dulcedine blanda consonantiam, et organicam convenientia melodiam.

Their singing in parts; not in unison, as elsewhere.

In borealibus quoque majoris Britanniae partibus, trans Humbriam scilicet, Eboraci finibus, Anglorum populi, qui partes illas inhabitant, simili canendo symphonica utuntur harmonia: binis tamen solum-

The like in Yorkshire.

¹ id] D., Camden; hoc, Rd.

² et] D., Camden; aut, Rd.

³ quod eo] D.; sed eo, Rd.; eo quod, Camden.

⁴ cantibus et] D., and Table of Chapters supra, 159. Not in Rd., Camden.

123. modo tonorum differentiis, et vocum modulando varietatibus; una inferius submurmurante, altera vero superne demulcente pariter et delectante. Nec arte tamen, sed usu longævo, et quasi in naturam mora diutina jam converso, hæc vel illa sibi gens hanc specialitatem comparavit. Qui adeo apud utramque invaluit, et altas jam radices posuit, ut nihil hic simpliciter, nihil nisi¹ multipliciter ut apud priores, vel saltem dupliciter ut apud sequentes, melice proferri consueverit: pueris etiam, quod magis admirandum, et fere infantibus, cum primum a fletibus in cantus erumpunt, eandem modulationem observantibus.

In this case derived probably from the Northmen.

Angli vero, quoniam non generaliter omnes, sed boreales solum, hujusmodi vocum utuntur modulationibus, credo quod a Dacis et Norwagiensibus, qui partes illas insulæ frequentius occupare, ac diutius obtinere solebant, sicut loquendi affinitatem, sic et canendi proprietatem contraxerunt.

[CAP. XIII.]

De verborum facetia et urbanitate.

Their ready witticisms.

De curia vero et familia viri, ut et² circumstantibus risum moveant, sibi que loquendo laudem comparent, facetiam in sermone plurimam observant; dum³ vel sales vel lædoria, nunc levi lingua, nunc mordaci, sub æquivocationis vel amphiboliæ nebula, relatione diversa, transpositione verborum et traiectione, subtiles et dicaces emittunt. Unde et exempla quædam, explanandi gratia, subsequenter annecti non superfluum reputavi. Tegengel nomen est provinciæ apud Venedotiam, cui dominabatur David Oenei filius; quam et quidam frater ejus quandoque possederat. Hoc idem etiam nomen fuit mulieris cujusdam, quam uterque habuisse dicebatur. Unde et a quodam¹ dictum est; “Injurium est David² Tegengel habere, cum frater ejusdem ante Tegengel habuerit.” Item, cum ecclesiam Menevensensem provinciæ princeps, Resus filius Griphini, cum suorum multitudine, peregrinandi causa aliquando devotius adisset, factis oblationibus, et missarum solemnitate completa, accessit ad eum juvenis quidam in ipsa ecclesia, seque filium ejus esse publice protestando, et ad pedem³ ipsius se prosternendo, quatinus eidem⁴ rei certitudinem candentis ferri examine probare liceret cum lacrimis humiliter imploravit. Quo verbo ad familiam et filios ejusdem duos, qui jam exierant, extra delato, subjecit juvenis quidam; “Nec mirum. Alii enim aurum obtulerunt, alii argentum. Hic autem, quoniam utroque caruit, quod habuit obtulit, scilicet ferrum;” paupertatis incommodum juveni dicaciter improperans.

Examples.

¹ nihil nisi] D.; nisi, Rd. ubi, | ² et] D. Not in Rd., Camden.
Camden. | ³ dum] D., Camden; unde, Rd.

123 b.

Cum de domo quadam forti, et quasi inexpugnabili, sermo a quibusdam factus fuisset, dixit unus eorum; “Vere domus hæc fortis est; quia si in ea esca fuerit, nunquam erit conquisita.” in dominum⁵ domus ambiguo verborum involuero avaritiæ notam intorquens: potuit enim conquisita ad utrumque referri, et ad escam et ad domum.

Similiter et dominam domus cujusdam quidam avaritiæ notans, dixit; “Hoc solum in hospita nostra reprehensibile invenio, quod parum butyri ex consuetudine sali imponit:” cum accessorium rei principali soleat apponi, subtili verborum traiectione, quoniam in quantitate abundare videbatur, accessorium principale constituens.

¹ a quodam] D.; aliquod, Rd.; aliquoddam, Camden.

² injurium est David] D.; injuriosum, Rd., Camden.

³ pedem] D., Camden; pedes, Rd.

⁴ eidem] D., Camden; ejusdem, Rd.

⁵ *in dominum . . . potuit enim *conquisita] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

- Similar witticisms given by Macrobius. Similia, in Macrobio De Saturnalibus, philosopho-rum et magnorum virorum dicta, scripto commendata Saturn. hæc et hujusmodi multa reperies. Cicero "cum Lentu-
ii. 3. lum generum suum, exiguæ staturæ hominem, longo
" gladio accinctum vidisset; ' Quis, ' inquit, ' generum
" ' meum ad gladium alligavit? ' " Accessorium, causa præscripta, in principale convertens.
- Ibid. Idem, cum Quinti Ciceronis fratris " imaginem clipea-
" tam cum ingentibus lineamentis usque ad pectus ex
" more pictam vidisset, ait; ' Frater meus dimidius
" ' major est quam totus. ' "
- Saturn. Cum soror Fausti mœchum haberet fullonem; " Mi-
ii. 2. rum, " inquit frater,¹ " sororem meam maculam habere,
" cum fullonem habeat. "
- Ibid., con- Cum Hanibali Antyochns copias bellatorum et armo-densed. rum ingentes in campis ostenderet, quas bellum facturus populo Romano comparaverat, " Putasne, " inquit,
" O Hanibal, hæc omnia satis esse Romanis? " Hanibal, imbelles militum ejusdem cohortes eludens,
" Plane, " inquit, " satis esse credo Romanis hæc, etsi
" avari sint. " Lepide satis et acerbe respondens: cum rex de æstimanda æquiparatione quæreret, ille vero de præda dixerit.²

[CAP. XV.]

De loquendi audacta et securitate.

124. Loquendi audaciam,³ et respondendi fiduciam, coram Their bold- principibus et magnatibus, cunctis communiter, etiam⁴ ness and minimis in plebe sicut majoribus, in omni negotio confidence of speech. natura dedit.

¹ frater] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

² dixerit] D.; dixit, Rd., Camden.

³ After audaciam, Rd. has " et " securitatem, " not in D. or Camden.

⁴ etiam] D.; et, Rd., Camden.

Romanos et Francos hanc eandem naturæ dotem habere videmus : non autem Anglos, sicut nec Saxones a quibus descenderant, nec Germanos. Sin autem servitutem causeris in Anglis, et hunc eis inde defectum assignas ; in Saxonibus et Germanis, qui et libertate gaudent, et eodem tamen vitio vexantur, ratio non provenit.

As with the Romans and Franks, but not with the English, &c.

Saxones igitur et Germani, a gelida poli regione cui subjacent, hanc contrahunt¹ et naturæ geliditatem. Angli quoque, quanquam olim a regione remoti, originali tamen natura tam exteriori in candore qualitate, quam etiam interiori illam geliditatis, eadem ex causa, liquida scilicet et gelida complexionis natura, proprietatem inseparabiliter tenent.

Causes of this difference.

Britones autem e diverso ex calida et adusta Dardaniæ plaga, quanquam in fines hos temperatos advecti, quia

“ Cœlum, non animum mutant, qui trans mare cur-“ runt,”

Hor. 1 Ep. ii. 27.

tam exterius fuscum illum cognatumque terræ colorem, quam etiam naturalem interius ex adusto humore calorem, unde securitas, originaliter trahunt.

Tres etenim populi, Romani Enea duce, Franci Antenore, Britones Bruto, post Trojanum excidium, Romans, Franks, and Britons, of Virg. Æn. iii. 87.

“ Reliquiæ Danaum atque immitis Achillis,” ab Asia in Europam varias ad partes profugerunt. Tribus igitur his² nationibus hinc animositas, hinc nobilitas, et tanta generositatis antiquitas ; hinc³ perspicacis ingenii subtilitas, et loquendi⁴ securitas.

Trojan origin.

Inter has autem gentes, quæ Trojani reliquiæ sunt

¹ contrahunt et] D. ; et trahunt, Rd. ; trahunt, Camden.

² his] Rd., Camden. Not in D.

³ hinc] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

⁴ loquendi] Rd., Camden. Not in D.

excidii, soli Britones, quia multis forte¹ post ever-sionem patriæ annorum curriculis in Grecia detenti, tardius in occiduos hos Europæ fines advecti sunt, et primæva gentis suæ vocabula, et originalis linguæ propriètatē abundantius retinuerunt. Invenies etenim in his hæc nomina; Ocneus, Resus, Eneas, Hector, Achilles, Eliodorus, Theodorus, Ajax, Evander, Ulixes, Elena, Elissa, Wendoloena, et alia multa in hunc modum antiquitatem redolentia.

Welsh
words from Greek or Latin.
124 b.

Notandum etiam, quod verba linguæ Britannicæ omnia fere vel Græco conveniunt vel Latino. Græci Ydor² aquam vocant, Britones Duur;² salem Hal,³ Britones Halein;³ Mis, Tis,⁴ pro ego et tu, Britones autem Mi, Ti; Onoma, Enou;⁵ Penta,⁶ Deca,⁷ Pimp,⁶ Dec.⁷ Item Latini frenum dicunt, et tripodem, gla-dium, et loricam; Britones froin, trebeth, cledhif, et lhuric:⁸ unico unig, cane can,⁹ belua beleu.¹⁰

[CAP. XVI.]

De divinatoribus in hac gente, et quasi arreptitiis.

Welsh
diviners.

Sunt et¹¹ in hoc Kambriæ populo, quod alibi non reperies, viri nonnulli, quos Awennithion¹² vocant, quasi mente ductos. Hi super aliquo consulti ambiguo, statim frementes spiritu quasi extra se rapiuntur, et tanquam arreptitii fiunt. Nec incontinenti tamen quod

¹ multis forte post everisionem] D.,
and Rd., but with no "forte."
Camden has, "ut videtur, multis
"post vastationem et everisionem."

² i.e. ὕδωρ, dufr in modern Welsh.

³ i.e. ἅλα, halen.

⁴ Mis, Tis, . . . Mi, Ti] D. Rd.
Not in Camden. As to where Gi-raldus found his Greek Mis and Tis, for I and You, is beyond my Greek scholarship.

⁵ i.e. ὄνομα, enw.

⁶ Penta, Pimp] i.e. πέντε, pump.

⁷ Deca, Dec] i.e. δέκα, deg.

⁸ These, in modern Welsh, are Ffrwyn, Tribedd, Cleddyf, and Llurig.

⁹ Ci is Welsh for a dog; in plural, Cwn.

¹⁰ Bela is Welsh for a wolf.

¹¹ et] D., Camden. Not in Rd.

¹² Awennithion] D.; Aweindion, Rd. Awenyddion, the plural of Awenydd, a poet.

desideratur edisserunt: sed per ambages multas, inter varios quibus effluunt sermones, nugatorios magis et vanos quam sibi cohærentes, sed omnes tamen ornatos, in aliquo demum verbi diverticulo qui responsum solerter observat quod petit accipiet enucleatum. Et sic denique de hac extasi tanquam a somno gravi ab aliis excitantur, et quasi per violentiam quandam ad se reverti compelluntur.

Ubi et duo notanda reperies; quia post responsum, nisi violenter excitati et revocati, ab hujuscemodi quasi furore reverti non solent; et quod in se reversi, nihil horum omnium, quæ ab his interim prolata sunt, ad memoriam revocabunt.

[Unde¹ et, si forte super hoc iterum vel alio consulti dicere debeant, aliis omnino verbis et alienis enuntiabunt:] forsitan sicut per phanaticos et energumenos spiritus interdum loquuntur, quanquam ignaros.

Solent autem eis hæc dona plerumque in somnis per visiones infundi. Quibusdam enim videtur, quod eis vel lac dulce, vel mel in ore² infundatur: aliis autem, quod eis schedula inscripta ori imponatur. Et statim a somno erecti, et canori effecti,³ se gratiam hanc suscepisse publice profitentur.

Tale est illud Esdræ, de se scribentis; “Dixit⁴ Esd. xiv. “ Dominus mihi, Aperi os tuum. Et aperui os meum; ³⁸ “ et ecce, calix plenus aqua, cujus color similis igni. “ Et cum bibissem, eructavit cor meum intellectum, et “ in pectus meum introivit sapientia.”

Faciunt autem inter ipsa initia⁴ invocationes⁵ ad Deum vivum⁶ et verum, et ad sanctam Trinitatem,

¹ Unde . . enuntiabunt] Not in D. In Rd., Camden.

² in ore] D.; ori, Rd., Camden.

³ et canori effecti] D. Not in Rd., Camden. Rd. also has “ex-perrecti” instead of erecti of D. and Camden.

⁴ ipsa initia] D.; initia, Rd.; vaticinia, Camden.

⁵ invocationes] D., Camden; vocationes, Rd.

⁶ vivum] D., Camden; unum, Rd.

125.
Such prophets amongst the Trojans.

ut peccatorum meritis a veri inventione non impedi-antur. In aliis autem nationibus quam hac Britannica, sicut et olim Trojana de qua descendunt, prophetas hujusmodi raro reperies. Calcas etenim et Cassandra apud Ylion, nobilis illius obsidionis tempore, vaticinii spiritum habentes, urbis excidium aperte prædixerunt.
Unde et Helenus Priami filius, qui archiflamen eorum erat, propter vaticiniorum libros quos habebat, tam Calcantis quam et aliorum longe ante, super patriæ destructione, primo statim ad Grecos una cum Calcante se transtulit anno: a quibus et egregie postmodum in Grecia remuneratus est. Cassandra vero puella, Priami regis filia, quotidie urbis eversionem canebat; nec ei tamen, ob superbiam Trojanorum nimiam et præsumptionem, fides habebatur. Nocte quoque qua urbs prodita fuit, prodicionem ipsam et modum prodendi manifeste præcinuit. Unde Virgilius;

Æn. iii.
183.

“ Tales casus Cassandra canebat.”

Prophecies of the two Merlins.

Sicut et olim, extante adhuc Britonum regno, gentis excidium, et tam Saxonum primo, quam etiam Nor-mannorum post adventum, Merlinus uterque, tam Celidonius quam Ambrosius, vaticinando declaravit.¹

Noct. Att.
xv. 18.
Not quoted exactly.

Illud quoque, quod de talibus Agellius refert, hic interserere dignum duxi. “ Quo Gaius Cesar et Pom-peius die per civile bellum collatis signis in Thes-salia conflixerunt, in Transpadana Italia memoratu digna res accidit. Sacerdos namque Cornelius, et loco nobilis, et sacerdotii religionibus² venerandus, et vitæ castitate sanctus, repente, mota mente, Cesarem vicisse” proclamavit: “ pugnæque dies, et exitus, omnesque³ pugnandi reciprocationes, et ipsa

¹ vaticinando declaravit] D.; fertur vaticinando declarasse, Rd.,
Camden.

² religionibus] D.; religione, Rd.,
Camden.

³ omnesque] D.; omnes, Rd.;
omnis (belonging to exitus), Camden.

“ duorum exercituum conflictatio, ejus vaticinantis
 “ motu atque verbis repræsentata est.”

Sin autem quo¹ spiritu proferantur hujusmodi, Objections to such prophecies answered.
 scrupulosus lector inquiras, non dico quod pithonico, non dæmoniaco; verum, quia sicut solius est proprium scire futura Dei, sic et futurorum scientiam dare, potius spiritu scientiæ desuper et ex² gratia dato.³

“ Divisiones quippe gratiarum sunt,” ut ait Apostolus, 1 Cor. xii.

“ unus autem atque idem spiritus.” Unde Petrus, in⁴ epistola secunda; “ Non voluntate humana allata 2 Pet. i. 21.

“ est aliquando prophetia; sed Spiritu Sancto inspi-“ rati, locuti sunt homines.”

Ad idem facit illud in Daniele, quod Chaldei regi 125 b.
 Nabugodonosor super somnii sui⁴ interpretatione, quam ab ipsis extorquere volebat, responderunt. “ Non est,” Dan. ii. 10.

inquiunt, “ homo super terram, qui sermonem tuum, “ rex, possit implere: sed neque regum quisquam “ magnus et potens verbum hujusmodi sciscitatur ab “ omni ariolo, et mago, et Caldeo. Sermo enim quem “ tu, rex, quæris, gravis est; nec reperietur quisquam, “ qui indicet illum in conspectu regis, exceptis diis, “ quorum non est cum hominibus conversatio.”

Super eundem locum Ieronymus; “ Confitentur⁵ On Dan. ii.
 “ arioli, et omnis scientia secularis, præscientiam futu- 9, 10.
 “ rorum solius Dei esse, non hominum. Unde pro- Not quoted exactly.
 “ batur propheta spiritu Dei locutos, qui dixerunt “ futura.”

Ad hoc autem, quod objiciunt quidam, quia⁶ si
 spiritu Dei ducerentur, quandoque præmitterent, “ Hæc “ dicit Dominus Deus,” vel aliquid in hunc modum, more prophetico; et quia talis prophetandi modus in Merlino non reperitur, eum potius pithonico spiritu

¹ Sin autem quo] D.; Sin autem, Rd.; Si, Camden.

² ex] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

³ dato] D., Camden: datur, Rd.

⁴ sui] D., Camden. Not in Rd.

⁵ Confitentur] Rd., Camden, with Jerome; Confiteantur, D.

⁶ quia] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

- locutum esse plerique coniectant; et quia etiam de sanctitate ipsius vel devotione, quanquam fidelis fuerit,¹ minime legitur: ad quæ respondeo, quod non solum sanctis, sed etiam² infidelibus interdum et gentilibus, sicut Balæ et Sybillæ, et etiam malis, ut Cayphæ, sicut et Balæ, prophetiæ spiritus datus est. Unde
- Hom. xiv. Origenes super Numeri;³ “ Ne mireris si eum, quem in Num. “ diximus scribas et pharisæos et doctores populi sig-Not quoted exactly. “ nificare,⁴ videas de Christo prophetare. Cayphas Joh. xi. 50. “ enim ait; ‘ Expediit nobis, ut unus moriatur homo “ ‘ pro populo.’ Sed, inquit, ‘ Quia erat pontifex anni “ ‘ illius, prophetavit.’ Nemo ergo extollatur si pro-“ phetet, si præscientiam mereatur: quia prophetiæ “ destruentur, cessabunt linguæ, scientia destruetur:
“ permanent autem fides, spes, caritas: major autem “ est caritas, quæ sola nunquam cadit.” Et non solum prophetabant,⁵ sed virtutes etiam⁶ et signa mali quandoque faciebant, quod boni plerique non poterant. Sicut Johannes Baptista, qui tantus erat, signa non fecit; sicut Johannes Evangelista testatur, Joh. x. 41. dicens, “ Et multi venerunt ad Jhesum, et dicebant “ quia Johannes quidem signum fecit nullum,” et cetera. De matre quoque Domini non legitur quod signum⁷ aliquod fecerit. De filiis autem Scævæ legimus in Actibus Apostolorum, quod in nomine Jhesu, Act. xix. quem Paulus prædicabat, dæmonia ejecerunt.⁸ Unde
14. in Mathæo et Luca reperies; “ Multi dicent in illa
Matt. vii. die mihi, Domine, Domine, nonne in nomine tuo
22. “ prophetavimus, et in nomine tuo dæmonia eiecimus,
126. “ et in nomine tuo virtutes multas fecimus? Et tunc

¹ fuerit] D., Camden; fuit, Rd.
² etiam] D. Not in Rd., Camden.
³ Numeri] D.; Numerum, Rd.;
Numer., Camden.
⁴ significare] Rd., Camden; sig-nare, D.

⁵ prophetabant] D.; prophetizabant, Rd., Camden.
⁶ etiam] D. Not in Rd., Camden.
⁷ signum] D. Not in Rd., Camden.
⁸ ejecerunt] D., Camden; ejecerint, Rd.

“ confitebor illis, quia nunquam novi vos.” Et alibi ;
 “ Respondens autem Joannes dixit ; Magister, vidimus Marc. ix.
 “ quendam in nomine tuo dæmonia ejicientem ; et 37.
 “ prohibuimus eum, quia non sequitur nobiscum. Luc. ix. 49.
 “ Jhesus autem ait ; Nolite prohibere cum : nemo est
 “ qui faciat virtutem in nomine meo, et possit cito “ male loqui de me. Qui enim non est adversus nos, “ pro nobis est.” Item Alexander Macedo, gentilis, montes Caspios transtulit ; et decem tribus intra eorundem promontoria, ubi usque in hodiernum residebunt, et usque in adventum Heliae et Enoch residebunt, miraculose conclusit. Merlini itaque fidem legimus, prophetiam legimus ; sanctitatem ejus vel miracula non legimus.

Objiciunt etiam quia prophetæ non extra se fiebant, quando prophetabant : sicut de Merlino Silvestri legitur, quod amens factus prophetabat ; et de his similiter quasi arreptitiis, de quibus hic locuti sumus. Sed alii per somnia, visiones, et ænigmata, ut Ezechiel et Daniel ; alii per facta et dicta, ut Noe in arcæ fabri-catione ecclesiam, Abraham in filii immolatione Christi passionem, Moyses dicens, “ Suscitabit vobis Deus pro- Deut. xviii.
 “ phetam de fratribus vestris ; hunc audite,” et cetera, 15.
 Christum significavit ;¹ alii excellentiore quodam modo, per internam scilicet² Sancti Spiritus inspirationem ac revelationem, ut David. Quibus id solum, quod in libro Regum primo de Saule legitur David persequente, respondeo : quia cum accepisset Saul David in Abaioth,³ 1 Reg. xix.
 qui est collis in Ramatha, ubi erat cuneus propheta- 18-24.
 rum, transfugisse, misit lictores in Abaioth³ ut raperent David ; qui cum vidissent prophetas, et Samuelem stantem super eos, factus est in⁴ illis spiritus Domini,

¹ significavit] Rd., Camden ; signavit, D.

² scilicet] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

³ Abaioth] D. Rd. ; Naioth, Camden, with Vulgate. And so in two cases directly afterwards.

⁴ in] D., with Vulgate. Not in Rd., Camden.

et prophetabant. Misitque Saul secundos et tertios nuntios, qui et ipsi prophetaverunt: et iratus Saul abiit post eos, et antequam veniret in Abaioth¹ ingrediens prophetabat, et quasi amens factus, et exutus veste regia, tota die et nocte canebat cum ceteris, David et Samuele clam videntibus. Nec mirum si illi, qui spiritum Domini, datamque desuper gratiam tantam subito suscipiunt, a terrenæ mentis interim statu alienari videantur.

[CAP. XVII.]

De generositatis amore, et genealogia longe retenta.

126 b. Generositatem vero, et generis nobilitatem, præ re-
 Their espe- bus omnibus magis appetunt. Unde et generosa con-cial regard jugia plus longe cupiunt, quam sumptuosa vel opima.
 for high birth. Genealogiam quoque generis sui etiam de populo qui-Care about libet observat; et non solum avos, atavos, et tritavos,² their gene- sed usque ad sextam vel septimam, et ultra procul alogies. generationem, memoriter et prompte genus enarrat in hunc modum; Resus filius Griphini, Griphinus filius Supra,¹⁶⁷. Resi, Resus filius Theodori; et sic deinceps, ut supra de generatione principum.
 Love of Genus itaque super omnia diligunt; et damna san-their race; guinis atque dedecus acriter ulciscuntur. Vindicis enim and venge- animi sunt, et iræ cruentæ; nec solum novas et refulness. centes injurias, verum etiam veteres et antiquas velut instantes vindicare parati.
 Have no Non urbe, non vico, non castris cohabitant; sed towns, or quasi solitarii silvis inhærent. In quarum eisdem³ castles; but margine non palatia magna, non⁴ sumptuosas et super-cling to the woods.

¹ See note 3, p. 199.² et tritavos] D. Not in Rd.,
Camden.³ eisdem] D.; ejusdem, Camden.
Not in Rd.⁴ non] D.; nec, Rd., Camden.

fluas lapidum cæmentique structuras in altum erigere,¹ Their verum tecta viminea, usibus annuis sufficientia, modico watted tam labore quam sumptu connectere mos est. huts.

Non pomeriis utuntur, non hortis. Utrorumque No ortamen fructibus, eis aliunde porrectis, libenter vesci² chards or solent. gardens.

Agris igitur plurimum utuntur pascuis, parum cultis, Little but floridis parce, consitis parcissime. land.

Boves autem ad aratra vel plaustra binos³ quidem Their jungunt rarius, sed quaternos frequentius; stimulatore mode of præambulo, sed retrogrado. Quem et pericula plerum- ploughing.
que, dum tauri juga detrectant,⁴ retro cadendo contingit experiri.

Falcibus quoque minus⁵ utuntur ad metendum: plus Of reaping.
autem et expeditius ferro quodam modico, in cultelli modum formato, baculis binis ad capita laxè et flexi-biliter catenato. Sed quoniam

“ Segnius irritant animos demissa per aures,

Hor. A. P.
180.

“ Quam quæ sunt oculis subjecta fidelibus,” melius videndo quam audiendo modum attendes.

Sunt⁶ et his naviculæ ad piscandum, seu flumina Their transnavigandum, vimineæ; non oblongæ, non rostratæ, coracles.
sed quasi rotundæ, vel potius in triangulum formatæ;
undique coriis animalium crudis non intus sed extra⁷ contactæ. Cum autem naviculam salmo injectus forte⁸ 127.
cauda fortiter percusserit, non absque periculo plerum-que vecturam pariter et vectorem evertit. Naviculas istas piscatores, barbaro ritu, ad aquas eundo et rede-

¹ in altum erigere] D., Camden.
Not in Rd.

² vesci] With this word manuscripts V. N., &c., begin again, after their long loss, supra, 180, n. 5.

³ binos . . frequentius] D. Rd.;
non binos jungunt sed quaternos, V.
-N.

⁴ detrectant] D.; detractant, V.
N. Rd.

⁵ minus] V. D. Rd.; minus minutis, N.

⁶ Sunt, &c.] The rest of this chapter in D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁷ non intus sed extra] D.; intus et extra, Rd., Camden.

⁸ forte] D. Not in Rd., Camden.

The famous tale-teller Bledri.

undo humeris portant. Unde famosus ille fabulator Bledhericus, qui tempora nostra paulo prævenit, super hoc casu sic ænigmatice proloqui consueverat: "Sunt
" apud nos gentes, quæ cum ad prædandum deprope-
" rent,¹ equos humeris impositos usque ad prædam
" ipsam portant. Ad prædam vero capiendam equis
" insiliunt. Eaque² capta, statim equos humeris iterum
" injectos domum redeundo reportant."

[CAP. XVIII.]

De antiqua fidei fundatione; Christianitatis³ amore, et devotione.

Introduction of Christianity into Britain.
Geoffrey,
iv. 19;
Bed. i. 4.
Mission of Germanus and Lupus.
Geoffrey,
vi. 13;
Bed. i. 17.
Still existing customs, from their teaching.

Præterea olim, longæque ante excidium Britannicum, quia⁴ per annos circiter ducentos, per Faganum et Duvianum, ad petitionem Lucii regis ab Eleutherio papa in insulam transmissos, in fide fundati sunt⁵ et solidati. Unde⁶ a tempore quo Germanus Altisiodorensis et Lupus Trecentis, propter corruptionem quæ paganorum irruptionibus, Saxonum scilicet,⁷ jam irrepserat, et præcipue ad explantandam⁸ hæresim Pelagianam in insulam missi sunt, nihil hæreticum, nihil rectæ fidei articulis contrarium sensere. Ab eorundem quoque doctrina, hæc, ut fertur, usque in hodiernum diem⁹ documenta tenuerunt. De quolibet pane apposito primum fractionis angulum pauperibus donant.

¹ deproperent] D., Camden; deproperant, Rd.

² Eaque] D.; atque, Rd., Camden.

³ D. has "et" before Christianitatis. It is in no other MS., and not in D. in Table of chapters, supra, 160.

⁴ quia] V. N., D. originally, Rd., Camden. Altered in D., by a later hand, to "quasi."

⁵ sunt] D. In Rd. it comes after solidati. Not in V. N.

⁶ Unde] D.; Unde et, Rd. Not in V. N.

⁷ Saxonum scilicet] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁸ explantandam] D.; explanandam, V. N.; expellendam, Rd., Camden.

⁹ diem] D. Not in V. N. Rd.

Terni quoque, in Trinitatis memoriam, ad prandium sedent. Viro cuilibet religioso, monacho vel clerico, vel cuicunque religionis habitum præferenti, cum obviam veniunt,¹ statim projectis armis cernuo capite benedictionem petunt. Episcopalem vero confirmationem, et chrismatis qua gratia Spiritus datur inunctionem, præ alia gente totus populus magnopere petit. Omnium quoque rerum quas possident, animalium, pecorum, et pecudum, interdum decimas donant: quando videlicet vel uxores sibi maritali copula jungunt, vel peregrinationis iter arripiunt, aut quamlibet vitæ suæ, ecclesiæ consilio, correctionem assumunt.

The great tithes.

Hanc autem rerum suarum partitionem Decimam magnam vocant. Cujus duas partes ecclesiæ suæ² baptismali, tertiam vero episcopo diocesano dare solent.

127 b.

Præ omni autem peregrino labore, Romam peregre libentius eundo, devotis mentibus Apostolorum limina propensius adorant.

Pilgrimages to Rome.

Ecclesiis autem et ecclesiasticis viris, sanctorum quoque³ reliquiis, baculis, et campanis bajulis, libris textis, et cruci, devotam reverentiam exhibere, longeque magis quam aliam gentem his omnibus honorem⁴ deferre videmus. Unde et ecclesiæ istorum longe majorem quam alibi pacem habent. Non etenim in cemiteriis solum, verum etiam extra procul, per metas et fossas ultiores, ab episcopis causa pacis impositas et constitutas, animalibus ad pascua⁵ pax servatur.

Reverence of churches, relics, &c.

Ecclesiæ vero majores, quibus majorem antiquitas reverentiam exhibuit, quantum armenta mane ad pascua exire et vespere redire possunt, pacem præbent. Unde et si cum principe capitales quis inimicitias incurrerit, si ecclesiæ refugium quæsierit, eadem sibi et suis pace gaudebit: adeo ut hac immunitatis indemni-

Right of sanctuary in the more antient
churches.

¹ veniunt] V. D. Rd. ; venerunt, N.

² suæ] D. Not in V. N. Rd.

³ quoque] D. Rd. ; que, V. N.

⁴ honorem] D. Rd. Not in V. N.

⁵ pascua] D. Rd. ; pabula, V. N.

tate, longe canonum indulgentiam excedente, qui corpori solum et membris tali in casu salutem præstant, multi abutentes, et audacius ob hanc impunitatem hostiliter excedunt, et ab his etiam refugii locis, tam patriam undique totam quam principem ipsum graviter infestando molestant.

Hermits and anchorites.

Heremitas¹ et anachoritas abstinentiæ majoris, magisque spirituales, alibi non videas. Gens etenim hæc in omni vehemens est intentione. Unde et sicut malis nusquam pejores, sic bonis meliores non reperies.

Felix itaque gens, et fortunata; gens vere utraque sorte beata; si prælatos haberent bonos et pastores, unoque gauderent principe, et illo bono.

EXPLICIT LIBER PRIMUS; LAUDABILIMUM.

¹ Heremitas] D. Rd. ; Heremitas | peated by Giraldus in the treatise autem, V. N. This passage is re- | De Jure, &c., vol. iii. 115.

INCIPIT LIBER¹ SECUNDUS; ILLAUDABILIIUM.Præfatio² secundi libri.

Quoniam, in priore libro, gentis Britannicæ naturam, Giraldu mores, et modos satis³ evidenter explicuimus; eaque now pro-præcipue quæ virtuti consona, et in unum collecta ad ceeds to laudem ejus et honorem vere poterant explanari; de describe cetero competens ordo deposcit, ut in sequenti operis the bad partitione, more historico, ad ea quoque quæ virtutis points of et laudis lineam egredi videntur calamum vertamus: the Welsh.

128.
 “ impetrata⁴ tamen veritatis explicandæ venia, citra quam “ omnis historia non solum auctoritatem sed et merito⁵ nomen “ historiæ demeretur. Naturam enimvero imitari arte pro“ fessus auctoritatem pictor amittit, si diligentius apta dum “ protrahit, minus idonea verecunde prætermittit.
 “ Unde et, quoniam

“ ‘ Vitiis sine nemo nascitur; optimus ille est “ ‘ Qui minimis urgetur,’

Hor. 1 S.
 iii. 68.

“ nihil humanum a se alienum sapiens putet. Semper enim Ter.Heaut.
 “ mundanis in rebus, quia nulla sub cœlo perfecta felicitas, I. 1, 25.
 “ et mala sunt vicina bonis, et vitia virtutibus distinguuntur.
 “ Sicut ergo sive naturæ sive industriæ bona mentem bene “ compositam audita delectant, sic recitata bonis contraria non

¹ liber] V. N. Not in D. Rd.; this “Incipit” forming one rubric with the “Explicit” of Lib. i.

² Præfatio secundi libri] D. Rd. Not in V. N. The heading in T., the Symbolum Electorum, is, “In Kambriæ descriptionem præfatio “tertia,” vol. i. 394.

³ satis] T. D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁴ impetrata . . . non offendant] This repeated from lib. i, cap. xlvi of the Expug. Hibern., vol. v. 301.

⁵ merito] This not in the Expug. Hibern.

“offendant.” Corrumpi nimirum ex longo exilio et paupertate, pejoresque ad usus gentis hujus natura perverti potuit. Sicut enim multa paupertas extinguere vitia solet, sic nonnulla interdum ex eadem contraria virtutibus adolescunt.

[CAP. I.]

De inconstantia gentis hujus et instabilitate; fidei quoque sacramentique reverentia nulla.

Their inconstancy.

Gens igitur hæc gens fidei tenerrimæ;¹ nec minus animo levis quam corpore. Gens ad facinus quodlibet sicut facillime impellitur, sic a proposito seu jam incepto eadem facilitate revocatur. Gens in omni quidem mobilis actione, semper tamen in malo pertinacior: nullius nempe rei præter inconstantiae solius constantiam habens.

Constant in evil, if in anything.

Their disregard of oaths, and of all truthfulness.

Nullum eis jusjurandum; nulla fidei, nulla veritatis reverentia. Adeo namque fidei fœdus, aliis inviolabile gentibus, parvipendere solent, ut non in seriis solum et necessariis, verum in ludicris, omnique fere verbo firmando, dextræ manus ut mos est porrectione, signo usuali dato, fidem gratis effundere consueverint.

Always ready for perjury.

Præterea quicquid commodi, quicquid temporalis emolumenti, sacramenti transgressione provenire potest, passim perjurio parant. Adeo quidem ut in causis tam ecclesiasticis² quam forensibus, nunc excipiendo, nunc

¹ tenerrimæ] So all the MSS. Wharton has “tenuissimæ” in his text, with “tenerrimæ, Cod. Cotton.” (i.e. D.) in the margin. Perhaps, therefore, “tenuissimæ” was the reading of the lost Westminster MS. used by Wharton. Compare the beginning of cap. 39, lib. ii. of Expug. Hibern. (vol. v. 398), where we have, “Gens itaque fidei tenerrimæ, nec levis minus animo quam corpore.”

² tam ecclesiasticis . . replicando] D. Rd.; foroque civili tam excipi-endo quam explicando, V. N. Wharton has this latter reading in his text, no doubt from the Westminster MS., and gives the other reading, from Cod. Cotton. (D.), in the margin.

replicando, puta quicquid ad præsens expedire videtur jurare parati, pars utraque semper agere, semper probare nitatur. Quanquam tamen venerandæ leges, ubi sacramenta sacra putantur, ubi reverentia veris et honor exhibetur honestis, in rei favorem, et odium actoris, probationem actori tanquam onus imponant, porro populo versuto et versipelli jugum hoc suave et onus leve videtur. 128 b.

[CAP. II.]

Quod rapto vivunt; et¹ pacis amicitiaque² fœdera non custodiunt.

Ad hæc etiam rapinis insistere, raptoque vivere, furto, et latrocinio, non solum ad exteros et hostiles populos, verum etiam inter se proprium habent. Their rapine and thieveries.

Pacis quoque et amicitiaæ fœdera, visa nocendi oportunitate, non respiciunt: fidei sacramentique religionem turpi postponentes lucro. Quod³ et Gildas olim in libro De excidio Britonum, more historico suæ gentis vitia veritatis amore non suppressens, his verbis declaravit; "Nec in bello fortes, nec in pace fideles." No regard for solemn treaties. Gildas, § 6.

Sed quando Julius Cesar, qui tantus erat quantus et orbis, sub Cassibelliano duce Proofs of British valour.

"Territa quæsitis ostendit terga Britannis," numquid non fortes fuere? Quid etiam, quando Belinus et Brennius Romanum imperium suis addidere victoriis? Quid Helenæ nostræ filii imperatoris tempore Constantini? Quid Aurelii Ambrosii regno, quem Lucan, Phars. ii. 572.

¹ et] V. D. Rd., Wharton. Not in N.

² amicitiaque] D. Rd., Wharton; et amicitiaæ, N.; amicitiaæ, V. The heading as in the text agrees with that in Table of chapters supra, 160.

³ Quod] D. Rd., Wharton; idem, V. N.

etiam laudibus Eutropius¹ effert? Et Arturi nostri famosi, ne dicam fabulosi, tempore quanti fuere?

Proofs to the contrary.

Gildas,
§ 20.

Sed, e diverso, qui a Scotis et Pictis, populisque tam vilibus, fere debellati, auxiliatrices Romanas toties vexarunt legiones,² dicentes, sicut³ ex Gilda colligimus, “Barbari nos ad mare, mare autem ad barbaros impellit: ⁴ hinc submergimur, hinc trucidamur,” numquid tunc fortes, numquid laudabiles fuere? A Saxonibus quoque in auxilium vocatis, et stipendiario munere locatis,⁵ quando expugnati et subacti, numquid fortes? Et quod⁶ omnium istorum validius ignaviae eorum argumentum est, quod Gildas, qui vir sanctus erat et de gente eadem, in cunctis quas de gestis eorum⁷ scripsit historiis, nihil unquam⁸ egregium de ipsis posteritati reliquit.

Gildas has no good word for the Bri-tons.

129.

Britain's strength exhausted by Maxi-mus.

Supra, 166.

Hujus autem contrarii solutionem, Deo duce, vitæ comite, in Britannica promittimus Topographia.

Id tamen⁹ hic tantillum ad majorem evidentiam addere sufficiat, quod ex quo Maximus¹⁰ ille Britonum princeps, cujus in capite libelli mentionem fecimus, totum armatæ juventutis Britannia in transmarina ducendo robur exhauserat, multis postmodum annis vacua viris et viribus¹¹ insula piratis et prædonibus mansit exposita. Quæ quidem antea incomparabili

¹ I can find nothing of the sort in Eutropius.

² legiones] D. Rd., Wharton; legationes, V. N.

³ sicut ex Gilda colligimus] D., Wharton. Not in V. N. Rd.

⁴ impellit] D. Rd., Wharton; nos impellit, V. N.

⁵ locatis] V. N. Rd., Wharton; conductis, D.

⁶ Et quod, &c.] Against this, in the margin, Wharton has “Deest in Cod. Cotton.,” but erroneously. There is nothing whatever omitted in D.

⁷ gestis eorum] V. N. D. Rd.; gente ipsorum, Wharton.

⁸ unquam] D. Rd.; usquam, V. N., Wharton.

⁹ Id tamen, &c.] Hence, to end of chapter, in D. Rd. Not in V. N.; and, according to Wharton, not in the lost Westminster MS.

¹⁰ Maximus ille Brit. princeps] D., Wharton; Britonum princeps ille tam re Maximus quam nomine, Rd., and Sloane 1691, and 4785.

¹¹ et viribus] D., Wharton. Not in Rd., and Sloane 1691, and 4785.

strenuitatis gloria floruerat ; adeo quidem ut per ejus alumnos, prædictus ille tyrannus totam fere Cisalpinam Galliam subjugaverit, ipsumque Romanum imperium armis attemptare præsumperit. Processu quoque temporis, longa demum propagatione multiplicata, et armis instructa, in pristinae probitatis audaciam Britannica juvenus exerevit. Distinguantur igitur in hunc modum tempora, et concordabit scriptura.¹

His successes owing to the Britons.

De Gilda vero, qui adeo in gentem suam acriter invehitur, dicunt Britones, quod propter fratrem suum Albaniae principem, quem rex Arthurus occiderat, offensus hæc scripsit. Unde et libros egregios, quos de gestis Arthuri, et gentis suæ laudibus, multos scripserat, audita fratris sui nece, omnes, ut asserunt, in mare projecit. Cujus rei causa, nihil de tanto principe in scriptis authenticis expressum invenies.

Gildas destroyed his history of Arthur, &c.

[CAP. III.]

De martio conflictu invalido ; turpique fuga et illaudabili.

In bellico conflictu, primo impetu, acrimonia, voce, vultu terribiles effecti, tam clamore horrendo cœlum replente, tubarumque prælongarum clangore altisono, quam pernici pariter ac præcipiti cursu, crebris quoque² jaculorum ictibus, gens asperrima. Porro si suscepta viriliter passa fuerit primo repulsam, confusio*n*i facillime data. Statim ut terga dederint, solum fugæ præsidio, nullique penitus confidunt rebellioni. Quod tamen in martiis conflictibus reprehensibile poeta non ignoravit, dicens ;

In battle, the fierce first attack of the Welsh :

but, if repulsed, their cowardly flight.

“ Ignavum scelus est tantum fuga ; ”

Lucan. Phars. ix. 283.

¹ concordabit scriptura] So all the MSS. Wharton has “concordabunt scripta ;” no doubt an improvement of his own, or of his scribe, upon Giraldus.

² quoque] D. Rd., Wharton ; que, V. N.

et alibi,

Hor. A. P. 31. "In vitium culpæ ducit fuga, si caret arte."

129 b. Sicut ergo de Theutonicis legitur,¹ sic et istis idem adaptari² potest; "In primo impetu majores sunt viris, in secundo vero minores mulieribus." In fuga nimirum et confectione crebro revertens, et tanquam Parthicus a tergo sagittis fugiendo repugnans, animosa virilitas magis apparet. Et tamen, sicut in bellicis successibus ac victoriis, etiam ignavi de virtute gloriantur, sic et in pejori fortuna vix etiam viris sua virtus conceditur.

But this a consequence of their way of warfare;

Totum itaque vel fugando vel fugiendo certamen eorum. De plano namque configere, deque victoria cominus contendere, diuque viriliter dimicare; cujusmodi conflictum poeta describit, dicens,

Stat. Theb. viii. 398. "Jam clipeo clipeus,³ umbone repellitur umbo, Ense minax ensis, pede pes, et cuspide cuspis;"

and of their light-armed troops.

Ever ready to fight again.

gens exiliter⁴ armata, et agilitate potius quam robustis viribus confisa, sustinere non potest. Verumtamen hodie confecta, et cruentam in fugam turpiter conversa, cras nihilominus expeditionem parat, nec damno nec dedecore retardata. Et si apertis congressibus, belloque indicto forte non prævalet, insidiis saltem et nocturnis irruptionibus hostem gravat. Unde et, quoniam nec fame nec frigore gravata, nec martio labore fatigata, nec casibus adversis in desperationem data, sed post lapsum protinus⁵ resurgere prompta, bellicque discrimina denuo subire parata, sicut prælio facile, sic bello difficile vinci solet.

¹ legitur] Before this Wharton has, "in Romana Historia." It is in no MS.

² adaptari] D. Rd.; assignari, V. N., Wharton.

³ Statius has, "Jam clipeus clipeus."

⁴ exiliter] D. Rd.; leviter, V. N., Wharton.

⁵ protinus] D.; statim, V. N. Rd., Wharton.

Unde et Claudianus de gentis ejusdem, vel similis,¹ natura loqui videtur, dicens;

“ Dum pereunt, meminere mali; si corda parumper In Eutrop.
ii. 116.

“ Respirare sinas, nullo tot funera sensu

“ Prætereunt; tantique levis jactura cruoris.”

[CAP. IIII.]

De ambitiosa terrarum occupatione; et inter fratres divisione.

Finales autem fossas effodere, terminos transponere, Their unjust occupations of lands.
et metas transcurrere, terrasque modis omnibus vel occupare vel dilatare, gens præ gentibus aliis ambitiosa.

Adeo quidem hoc ambitionis vitio communi labe laborant, quod terras quascunque seu precario, seu commodato, locationis, conductionis, emphyteoseos, vel alio quocunque titulo semel ipsos² possidere contigerit, sacramentis etiam vero domino ac proprietario super indemnitate ac securitate palam interpositis, nihilo- 130.
minus tamen easdem tanquam proprias et hereditarias sibi jure perpetuo vindicabunt.

Hinc itaque lites in curia, et contentiones; hinc cædes et incendia; hinc crebra fratricidia.

Ad hæc³ etiam, quod fratres inter se pro herili Equal rights of inheritance amongst brothers.
The custom of fosterfathering.
The ill-consequences.
terras portione dividunt et distinguunt, antiquus in hac gente mos obtinuit. Accessit et aliud incommodum grave, quod principes filios suos generosis de terra sua viris diversis diversos alendos tradunt: quorum quilibet alumnum suum post patris obitum ex-tollere, aliisque præferre, toto conamine nititur et machinatur. Per quod graves terris eorum toties, nec sine cædibus multis et fratricidiis, seu fratrum exocu-

¹ vel similis] D. Rd. Not in V.
N., Wharton.

² ipsos] D. Rd. Not in V. N.,
Wharton.

³ hæc] V. D. Rd., Wharton; hoc, lationibus crebris, virium quoque omnium et successuum experientia difficile¹ sedabiles, emergere solent turbationes.
N.

Unde et inter fratres collactaneos quam naturales longe veriores invenies amicitias.

Hoc etiam in his notabile, quod fratres plus mortuos diligunt quam vivos. Vivos enim ad mortem persequuntur; mortuos autem, et ab aliis interemptos, totis viribus ulciscuntur.

Quibus² et illa Malachiae verba vere adaptari posse videntur; “ Periit sanctus de terra, et rectus in hominibus non est. Omnes in sanguine insidiantur: vir fratrem suum venatur ad mortem: malum manuum suarum dicunt bonum.”

Mich. vii.
2.

[CAP. V.]

De gravi eorum exactione, et immoderantia.

Their exactions of victuals and drink.

Phil. iv. 12.
1 Cor. ix. 20-22.

Their abstinence, in need; and wolfish gluttony, in plenty.

Ubi autem copiam inveniunt, et potestatem exercere possunt, exactores improbissimi.³ Cibo namque, potuque praesertim inebriante, extra briam omnem poni cupientes, modum et modestiam minus observant: quasi⁴ cum apostolo dicentes, “ Scimus et abundare, scimus et penuriam pati;” sed non cum eodem, “ Omnibus omnia facti,” ut omnia lucrifaciant Deo. Sicut enim, ingruente necessitate, nimiae abstinentiae sunt et parsimoniae; sic, post longam esuriam, lupis in hoc et aquilae similes, quia sicut et illi rapto vivunt et raro reficiuntur, ad alienam praecipue positi mensam, immoderatam appetunt refectionem.⁵

¹ difficile] D. Rd.; facile, V. N. Wharton has “ facile foedabiles.”

² Quibus . . bonum] This in D. Rd. Not in V. N., Wharton. Malachiae is a mistake for Michee.

³ improbissimi] D. Rd., Wharton; improbissimi sunt, V. N.

⁴ quasi . . dicentes] D. Rd.; dicentes cum apostolo, V. N., Wharton.

⁵ refectionem] D. Rd.; saturitatem, V. N., Wharton.

Sunt igitur in penuria parci, in copia superflui. 130 b.
 Suam tamen nemo substantiam, sicut in Anglorum But not so gente videmus, ob gulæ propriæ crapulæque vitium, as to waste in damnum fenebre¹ donat. their own substance.

In sumptibus autem exhibitionis² et honore,³ volunt
 omnes omnibus, quoniam

“Facinus quos inquinat æquat,” prava consuetudine parificari.

Lucan.
 Phars. v.
 290.

[CAP. VI.]

De incestus crimine; ecclesiarum quoque per successiones et participes abusione.

Crimen autem incestus adeo apud omnes, tam mi- Their innores in populo quam etiam majores, enormiter in- cestuous valuit, quod in quarto gradu et quinto passim, in marriages; tertio quoque plerumque, quia non est timor Dei ante even with oculos eorum, consanguineas ducere nec verecundantur cousins.
 nec verentur. Ad sedandas quippe inimicitias, quas inter se toties, quia veloces pedes eorum ad effunden-dum sanguinem, hostiliter incurrunt, hujuscemodi per se dispensationibus passim abutuntur. Ob generositatis etiam amorem, quam tantopere cupiunt et affectant, suæ genti se jungentes, alienis omnibus, tanquam sanguine et origine, juxta⁴ innatæ præsumptionis arro-gantiam, longe disparibus, modis omnibus copulari recusant.

Matrimoniorum autem onera, nisi expertis antea Cohabitacohabitatione, commixtione, morum qualitate, et præ- tion usual cipue fecunditate, subire non solent. Proinde et before marriage.

¹ in damnum fenebre] D.; in
 dam. funebre, Rd.; fenori, V. N., Wharton.

² exhibitionis] D. Rd. Not in V.
 N., Wharton.

³ honore] D. Rd., Wharton; honoribus, V. N.

⁴ juxta . . arrogantium] D. Rd.,
 Wharton. Not in V. N.

- Girls purchased, on trial. puellas, sub certo parentibus pecuniæ pretio,¹ et resipiscendi pœna statuta, non ducere quidem in primis sed quasi conducere, antiquus in hac gente mos obtinuit.
- Church abuses. Ecclesiæ vero² istorum omnes fere tot personas et participes habent, quot capitalium virorum in parochia genera fuerint.
- Hereditary succession to benefices. Successive quoque, et post patres, filii ecclesias obtinent, non elective; hereditate possidentes, et pollutentes sanctuarium Dei. Quia si prælatus alium eligere et instituere forte præsumperit, in instituentem procul dubio, vel institutum, genus injuriam vindicaret.
- Like excesses in Bretagne. 131. Hild. Epp. ii. 30 (65 of old Edd.). Therefore common to the whole British race. Ps. xiii. 1-3. De duobus³ autem his excessibus, incestus videlicet et successionis, radicatis olim in Armorica Britannia, necdum eradicatis, scribit in quadam epistola sua Ildebertus Cenomanensis episcopus, dicens⁴ se concilio interfuisse cum clero Britannia, ob has enormitates gentis illius extirpandas convocato. Ex quibus constare potest utrumque vitium toti huic genti, tam cismarinæ quam transmarinæ, ab antiquo commune fuisse. Unde et illud psalmistæ David non incompetenti huic populo adaptari posse videtur; "Corrupti sunt, et abominabiles facti sunt in studiis suis. " Non est qui faciat bonum; non est, usque ad unum. " Omnes declinaverunt: simul inutiles facti sunt;⁵ " non est qui faciat bonum, non est usque ad unum. " Sepulchrum patens est guttur eorum; linguis suis dolose agebant; venenum aspidum sub labiis eorum. " Quorum os maledictione et amaritudine plenum est: " veloces pedes eorum ad effundendum sanguinem. " Contritio et infelicitas in viis eorum; et viam pacis

¹ pretio] D. Rd., Wharton; numero, V. N.

² vero] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

³ De duobus . . commune fuisse] This is repeated, in nearly the same words, in the De Jure, &c. (vol. iii. 130).

⁴ dicens] D. Rd. and De Jure, &c.; dicens etiam, V. N., Wharton.

⁵ Rest of the chapter omitted in Wharton.

“ non cognoverunt. Non est timor Dei ante oculos “ eorum.”

Similiter¹ et illud Salomonis; “ Fili mi, ne ambu-les cum eis; prohibe pedem tuum² a semitis eorum.
“ Pedes enim illorum ad malum currunt; et festinant
“ ut effundant sanguinem.”

Prov. i.
15, 16.

[CAP. VII.]

De peccatis eorum; et tam Britannicæ quam Trojæ, meritis urgentibus, amissione.

Præterea, peccatis urgentibus, et præcipue detesta-bili illo et nefando Sodomitico, divina ultione tam olim Trojam quam postea Britanniam amiserunt. Le-gitur enim,³ quia Constantinus imperator, occidentali imperio beato Silvestro et successoribus suis cum urbe relicto, Trojam reædificare proponens, ibique orientalis imperii caput erigere volens, audivit hanc vocem, “ Vadis reædificare Sodomam;” et statim mutato consilio versus Bizantium vela pariter et vexilla convertit; ibique imperii sui caput constituens, urbem eandem felici suo nomine decoravit.

Their sins, especially the sin of Sodom, the cause of the loss of Troy, and of Britain.

De Mailgone quoque Britonum rege, aliisque plu-rimis, in historia Britonum legitur, eodem vitio labo-rantibus.

Geoffrey,
xi. 7.

Verumtamen multo jam tempore adeo a Britonibus enormitas illa prorsus evanuit, ut ejus etiam memoria jam apud eos vix habeatur. Proinde, quasi pœnitentia jam fere peracta, et quoniam numero præter solitum et multitudine, viribus et armis,⁴ bellorum quoque

This sin long unknown amongst
the Welsh.
Their penitence, &c.;

¹ This last section in D. Rd.
Not in V. N.

² pedem tuum] D., with Vulgate;
pedes tuos, Rd,

³ Wharton adds, “ in Romana

“ historia.” It is in no manuscript that I have seen.

⁴ Here, in V. N., &c., without sign of anything wrong, comes continuously their missing portion of the second Preface (supra, 163, n. 1).

and confident boasts of recovering the dominion of Britain.

successibus, et terrarum incrementis, nostris plurimum diebus adaucti sunt, gloriantur ad invicem, prædicant, et confidentissime jactant, toto quod¹ mirum est in hac spe populo manente, quoniam in brevi cives in insulam revertentur; et juxta Merlini sui vaticinia, exterorum tam natione pereunte quam nuncupatione, antiquo in insula tam nomine quam omine Britones exultabunt.

Sed mihi quidem² longe aliter visum est. Quoniam enimvero

Ov. Ar.
Am. ii.
437.

“Luxuriant animi rebus plerumque secundis,
“Nec facile est æqua commoda mente pati;”

et quia

Ov. Rem.
Am. 749
and 746.

“Non habet unde suum paupertas pascat amorem;”
“Divitiis alitur luxuriosus amor;”

ut paupertati potius in hoc exilio,³ quo extorres fere facti sunt a regno, attribuenda sit vitii⁴ illius, quo in divitiis carere nescierant, illa carentia, quam virtuti.

Their impitence proved by their other gross sins.

Qualiter etiam pœnitentiam egisse,⁵ nedum peregisse dicentur, quos tot peccatis vitiorumque voragini datos, perjuriis puta, furtis, latrociniis, rapinis,⁶ homicidiis et fratricidiis, adulteriis et incestibus, obstinata de die in diem amplius malitia implicitos videmus et irretitos? Adeo⁷ quidem ut verbis Osee prophetæ in ipsos uti

Os. iv. 1-3.

vere quis possit; “Non est veritas, et non est misericordia,⁸ et non est scientia Domini in eis. Male-

¹ toto quod] V. D., &c.; totoque, N.

² quidem] D. Rd. Not in V. N., Wharton.

³ hoc exilio] V. N. Rd., Wharton; exilio hoc, D.

⁴ vitii] D., &c.; vitium, V. N.

⁵ egisse] D. Rd. Not in Wharton. Instead of egisse nedum, V. and N. have “gule nec dum.”

⁶ rapinis] D., &c. Not in V. N.

⁷ The rest of this section, Adeo . . . vapulabit, in D. Rd. Not in V. N. Wharton has the marginal note, “Deest ista periodus in Cod. West.,” but, no doubt by mistake, opposite to the beginning of the clause before, “Qualiter,” &c.

⁸ Wharton gives no more of this quotation, stopping with “miseri-cordia,” &c.

“ dictum, et mendacium, et homicidium, et furtum, et “ adulterium inundaverunt; et sanguis sanguinem “ tetigit. Propter quod¹ lugebit terra eorum, et in-“ firmabitur omnis qui habitat in ea.” “ Et populus Os. iv. 14.
 “ non intelligens vapulabit.”

Alia quoque, de quibus jactant, operosis regum Nor- Others of mannorum curis, quibus Francorum superbiam in trans- their boasts marinis tantopere² indulgent, longe verius quam vel worthless.
 eorum viribus magnis vel potentiis sunt assignanda.

Hujus autem rei si certitudinem quæris, respice Victories reges Anglicos Normannis priores. Qui, quoniam hac of the solum insula Britannica contenti fuerant, et tantum English his debellandis operam dabant, eosdem pene penitus before the sæpe deleverant. Sicut rex Offa suo in tempore; qui Norman et fossa finali, in longum extensa, Britones ab Anglis conquest.
 exclusit; Ethelfridus quoque, qui nobilem Legionum Of Offa; urbem destruxit, et egregii illius Bangornensis monasterii Ethelfrid;
 monachos, in auxilium orando vocatos, gladiis interemit. 132.
 Et sicut longe plenius Haroldus ultimus: qui, pedes and Harold ipse, cumque³ pedestri turba,⁴ et levibus armis, victuque especially.
 patriæ conformi, tam valide totam Kambriam et circuivit, et transpenetravit, ut in eadem fere mingentem ad parietem non reliquerit.

In cujus victoriae signum, perpetuamque memoriam, Memorial lapides in Wallia more antiquo in titulum erectos, stones of locis plerisque⁵ in quibus victor extiterat, literas Harold's hujusmodi insculptas⁶ habentes plurimos invenies, HIC victories.
 FUIT VICTOR HAROLDUS.

Ob has igitur tam cruentas tamque recentes Anglo- Wales in rum de hac gente victorias, primi tres Normannorum peaceful reges in tanta subjectione tamque pacificam suis diebus subjection to the first

¹ quod] D.; hoc, Rd., with Vulgate.

² Wharton has, “ tanto præindulgent.”

³ cumque] V. N. Rd., Wharton; cum, D.

⁴ turba] So the MSS. Wharton has “ turma.”

⁵ plerisque] D. Rd. Not in V. N., Wharton.

⁶ insculptas] V. N. Rd., Wharton; sculptas, D.

three Norman kings.

Walliam tenere. Quorum temporibus gens hæc in numero plurimum adaucta, armis etiam et equis a Normannis et Anglis, quos et curiam sequendo et obsides dando jam frequentaverant, edocta paulatim et assueta, trium sequentium tempore, propter majores, ut diximus, quibus transmarinas ad partes tenebantur curas, cervicem¹ erigentes, et terras occupantes, pristinum ferre jugum omnino respuerunt.

[CAP. VIII.]

Qualiter gens ista sit expugnanda.

How the Welsh are to be subdued. A year's continual care and toil necessary.

Porro qui gentem hanc subjugare, pacificamque tenere voluerit, hac arte utatur. In primis operam ad minus annuam, operosamque curam et assiduam, huic adhibere negotio princeps² in animo fixum habeat. Gens etenim, quæ nec in campo contra exercitum armatum consertis viribus aperte concreditur, nec in castellis obsidionem exspectat, non impetu primo, sed per moram diligentem et vacationem est expugnanda.

Their divisions to be fostered by gifts and promises.

Deinde vires eorum dividat, et quosdam ex ipsis ad alios confundendos, quia se invicem odio et invidia persequi solent, donariis alliciat tam præmissis quam promissis. Et sic, autumnali in tempore, non solum Castles to be built.

marchia, sed etiam terra interior locis idoneis, castellis, alimentis copiose refertis³ et familiis bonis, bene

132 b.

muniatur.

Trade with England to be stopped. And the coast blockaded.

Interim autem cuncta mercimonia ferri,⁴ panni, salis, et bladi, quibus ab Anglicana copia sustentari solent, arctius eis inhibeantur. Naves quoque, validis plenæ viris, ne per Hybernicum vel Sabrinum mare eis præ-

¹ cervicem] D. Rd., Wharton; cervices, V. N.

² princeps] So V. N. Rd. and Wharton. In D. it comes at the end of the sentence, after "habeat."

³ copiose refertis] So the MSS. Not in Wharton.

⁴ ferri] So the MSS.; frumenti, Wharton.

dicta navigio deferri possint, aliquot ad tutelam adhibeantur: quibus et ab hostibus arceantur, et suis victualia deferantur.

Subsequenter autem, hieme ingruente majore, vel potius¹ ejusdem fine, Martio videlicet et Februario, cum et foliis silvæ, et pascuis montana caruerint, prædis abductis, ipsisque jam per familias et crebros undique castrensiumpetus plurimum affictis, cum exercitu pedestri valido, mediocriter et non ad onus armato, usque ad eorum latibula, silvarumque condensa, et arborum confraga, viriliter transpenetretur. Semper autem pedestribus turmis e vestigio sequentes, ad fortitudinem et refugium, milites aliquot adjiciantur. Et sic, per crebras confligentium mutationes, ut fatigatis semper turmis novæ succedant, per cædes quoque et strages multas, si casus obtulerit, expugnentur. Non enim his sine, nec absque periculo multorum et damno, gens poterit inimica debellari.

Sed licet hodie de Anglorum exercitu stipendiarii multi ceciderint, cras nihilominus ad eadem discrimina totidem vel plures moneta dabit. De Kambrensibus autem, quoniam nec alienigenas nec stipendiarios habent, quicumque ceciderint, damnum eis in præsentiarum irreparabile fiet.

In hoc² itaque negotio, sicut artifici credendum est in sua facultate, sic horum præcipue standum est consilio, qui, circa similia patriæ negotia conversati diutius et usitati, mores gentis et modos agnoscunt; quorumque magnopere refert, ut gens inimica, quacum ex crebris belli diutini conflictibus hostilitatem plurimam et odium implacabile contraxerunt, eorundem opera vel debilitari possit vel deleri.

¹ vel potius . . . Februario] So the MSS. Not in Wharton.

² Almost the whole of the next five sections, down to "congressibus adhibendi," is repeated from

Cap. 38 of the 2nd Book of the Exp. Hib. (vol. v. 395), in nearly the same words, but not in the same order; and in two or three instances with additional matter.

133.

Felices dixerim Kambriæ fines, quos Anglorum gens inhabitat, si reges eorundem, in partibus illis gubernandis, et propulsandis inimicæ gentis injuriis, plus marchionum et baronum patriæ quam Andegavorum et Normannorum consiliis et dispositionibus olim usi fuissent.

For such war the troops of the marches the best.

In hac autem expeditione, sicut et¹ in alia qualibet sive Hybernica sive Kambrica, gens in Kambriæ marchia nutrita, gens hostilibus partium illarum conflictibus exercitata, competentissima; puta, formatis a convictu moribus, audax et expedita; cum alea Martis exegerit, nunc equis habilis, nunc pedibus agilis inventa; cibo potuque non delicata, tam Cerere quam Baccho, causis urgentibus, abstinere parata. Talibus tam Hybernia quam Kambria viris initium habuit expugnationis: talibus quoque, vel nullis, consummabilis finem habitura conquisitionis. Flandrenses quippe, Normanni, Coterelli, et Bragmanni, quanquam suis in terris milites egregii sint, et armis instructissimi, Gallica tamen militia multum² a Kambrica, sicut ab Hybernica, distare dignoscitur. Ibi namque plana petuntur, hic aspera; ibi campestria, hic silvestria; ibi arma honori, hic oneri; ibi stabilitate vincitur, hic agilitate; ibi capiuntur milites, hic decapitantur; ibi redimuntur, hic perimuntur.

And light-armed troops much the best.

Sicut igitur, ubi militares acies de plano conveniunt, gravis illa et multiplex armatura, tam linea scilicet quam ferrea, milites egregie munit et ornat, sic, ubi solum in arcto confligitur, seu loco silvestri seu palustri, ubi pedites potius quam equites locum habent, longe levis armatura præstantior. Contra inermes namque viros, quibus semper in primo fere impetu vel parta est statim vel perdita victoria, expeditiora satis arma sufficiunt; ubi fugitivam et agilem per arcta vel aspera gentem sola necesse est gravi¹ quadam et armata mediocriter agilitate confundi. Cum illa nimirum armatura multiplici, sellisque recurvis et altis, difficile descenditur, difficilius ascenditur, difficillime, cum opus est, pedibus itur.

¹ et] D. Rd. Not in V. N., Wharton.

² multum] So the MSS. Not in Wharton.

Ut igitur

“ Singula quæque locum teneant sortita decenter,” Hor. A. P. 92.

contra graves et armatos, solumque virium robore et armorum ope confisos, de plano dimicare victoriamque vi obtinere contententes, armatis quoque viris et viribus opus ibi esse proculdubio protestamur: contra leves autem et agiles, et aspera petentes, levis armaturæ viri, taliumque præsertim exercitati congressibus, adhibendi. 133 b.

Urbes autem et castra quæ Sabrina perlabitur, totaque terra ab occidua ejusdem parte versus Walliam ab Anglis occupata, necnon et Slopesburiae provincia, et Cestria tota, communiæ² viribus et armis, vel alio quovis speciali libertatis honore, provida principis largitione lætentur. The towns, &c., on the Severn to have special corporate rights.

Ubi et annis singulis, per viros probos et discretos ad hoc deputatos, qui patriæ tutelæ et defensionis, non rapinis intendunt et destructioni, bellici apparatus, armorum scilicet et equorum, visio fiat. Barones³ quoque partium illarum super unanimi gentis hostilis expugnatione sacramentis arctissime constringantur: quatinus ibidem tam militibus et civibus, quam ser-vientibus populoque toto, armis instructis et assuetis, et libertati in hunc modum libertas opponatur, et per superbiam superbia retundatur. Their arms and horses to be inspected annually.
The whole population to be trained to arms.

Kambri nimirum, quia nec laboriosis oneribus oppri- Liberty

¹ gravi seems wrong. But the sentence is as in the text in all MSS., both of the Exp. Hib. and of the present treatise.

² communiæ] D.; communi se, V.

N.; communiter, Rd.; communitæ, Wharton.

³ Barones . . constringantur] So the MSS. Not in Wharton.

enjoyed by
the Welsh.

muntur,¹ nec servilibus operibus atteruntur, nec dominorum exactionibus ullis molestantur, hinc eis ad propulsandas injurias cervix erecta, hinc ad patriæ tutelam audacia tanta, hinc armis semper et rebellionibus gens parata.² Nihil est etenim quod adeo corda virorum ad probitatem excitet, erigat, et invitet, ut libertatis hilaritas; nihil adeo deprimit et deterret, ut servitutis oppressio.

Poterit etiam hæc regni particula, armis et animositate munita, non solum in finibus istis, verum et alibi, in necessitatis articulis, tam remotis partibus quam propinquis, egregie principi militare.

Et si forte a provinciis istis, annuis vectigalibus fiscali minus ærario proveniat, regni pace et regis honore plene et abunde defectus iste³ compensetur. Præsertim etiam cum expeditionis unius ad Walliarum⁴ partes gravis admodum et periculosa sumptuositas multorum soleat annorum⁵ fiscales finium illorum redditus æquiparare.

[CAP. IX.]

Qualiter, expugnata, sit gubernanda.

134.
How the Welsh,
when subdued, to be governed.
To be treated

Gens⁶ igitur hæc, sicut per industriam prædicto tenore est expugnanda, sic, expugnata, moderato in hunc modum regimine est gubernanda. Constantis et vindicis animi viris cura regiminis committatur: qui et pacis tempore, dum legibus obtemperat, et servire

¹ opprimuntur . . . operibus] So the MSS. Not in Wharton.

² parata] D. Rd.; promptissima, V. N., Wharton.

³ defectus iste] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁴ Walliarum partes gravis] So the MSS.; Walliam gravis partes, Wharton.

⁵ annorum] D. Rd.; armorum, V. N., Wharton.

⁶ Much of the first four sections of this chapter, down to "lapsus anterior," infra, 224, is repeated from Cap. 39 of the 2nd Book of the Exp. Hib. (vol. v. 398), but with alterations and additions.

non recusat, ipsam interim stabili conventionē delinīat, with kindness, if peaceful. et honore praeveniat. Gens¹ etenim hęc, sicut et gens barbara quęvis, quanquam honorem nesciant, honorari tamen super omnia quęrunt; et veritatem, quam in se non habent, in aliis approbant et venerantur.

Cum autem innatę² levitatis indicio a pace resilire pręsumperint, dissimulata prorsus mansuetudine, continuo vitium vindicta sequatur. Cum iterum ad pacem reversi fuerint, condigna delicti satisfactione secuta, quoniam With strict severity, if rebellious.

“ Post inimicitias irę meminisse malorum est,” quamdiu fideliter steterint dissimulata prorsus injuria pristina, [statim] tam³ securitate gaudeant quam honore: quatinus tam ad obsequendum, quam ad pacis bona sequendum, et pręmium invitet, et a temerariis ausibus secutura semper pœna deterreat.

Porro, qui ista confundunt, in delictis deferendo, in obsequiis deprimendo, in guerra blandiendo, in pace deprędando, imbelles spoliando, rebelles venerando, sicut plerosque vidimus, et finium⁴ illorum cura commissa abusos novimus, hi, confusa sub se cuncta red-dentes, demum et ipsi confunduntur. Have been very differently treated by some rulers.

Pręterea, quia minus ea lædere solent quę pręvidentur, et quia felix est illa civitas quę in pace bellum cogitat, pacis tempore contra imminentiā Martis⁵ incommoda, tam castrorum constructione, quam silvestrium viarum ampliatiōe, necnon et familię In time of peace, castles to be built, roads made, &c.

¹ Gens venerantur] This clause is from Cap. 36 of Exp. Hib. II. (vol. v. 390), but in different words.

² innatę] So the MSS., and so in Exp. Hib. (398). Wharton has “usitatę” in his text, and “innatę” Cod. Cotton.” in the margin; as if “usitatę” was the reading of the lost Westminster MS.

³ statim tam] V. N., Wharton, and Exp. Hib.; tamen tam, Rd.; tam, D.

⁴ et finium . . . novimus] D. Rd. Not in V. N. or Wharton, and not in the corresponding passage of the Exp. Hib. (398).

⁵ Martis] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

bonæ retentione, vir bonus et¹ prudens præmuniatur² et præparetur. Qui enim in pace servantur³ et sustentantur, hi longe promptius, securius, atque fidelius, urgentibus incommodis, ad bella vocantur. Et quoniam semper insidias sub amicitiae fuce gens vi subacta⁴ molitur, princeps aut⁵ præfectus nunquam eorum⁶ caput suum aut castrum fidei⁷ donet. Quoniam enimvero, insignium virorum exemplis, quorum quosdam crudeliter extinctos, alios autem castris et honore privatos, per talem⁸ incuriam vidimus et negligentiam; nationis enim subdolæ⁹ longe¹⁰ fortius timenda est ars quam Mars, pax quam fax, mel quam fel, malitia quam militia, proditio quam expeditio, amicitia præfucata quam inimicitia despicata; expedit itaque viro prudenti ac provido alienis in malis fugienda contemplari. Indemnis etenim est¹¹ castigatio, quam prædocent exemplaria: quoniam, ut ait Enodius, "Ruina præcedentium posteros docet, et cautio est semper in reliquum lapsus anterior." Citra¹² conflictum autem et sanguinis effusionem

No ruler ever to trust in their good faith.

134 b.

How they

¹ bonus et] D. Not in V. N. Rd., Wharton, or Exp. Hib.

² præmuniatur] D. Rd., Wharton, and Exp. Hib.; prævideatur, V. N.

³ servantur] D. Rd.; fiventur, V. N., Wharton.

⁴ vi subacta] So the MSS.; in-subacta, Wharton.

⁵ aut] D.; vel, V. N. Rd., Wharton.

⁶ nunquam eorum] V. N. Rd., Wharton; eorum nunquam D.

⁷ fidei] So the MSS. Wharton has "fidelitati" in his text, and "fidei Cod. Cotton." in the margin; as if "fidelitati" was the reading of the Westminster MS.

⁸ talem] D. Not in V. N. Rd., Wharton.

⁹ enim subdolæ] D.; subdolæ, Rd.;

subdolæ et subactæ, V. N., Wharton.

¹⁰ longe . . . despicata] This was evidently, in Giraldus's estimation, one of the primest specimens of his exquisite scholastic pen. It has occurred in the Top. Hib. (vol. v. 166), as well as in the Exp. Hib. (399).

¹¹ est] D. Rd. Not in V. N. But V. has "et" before etenim. Wharton has "est enim."

¹² Citra, &c.] Opposite to this, in margin of Wharton, is, "Desunt reliqua hujusce capituli in Cod. Westm." But this section, "Citra . . . compellantur," is in V. N. as well as D. Rd. Wharton's marginal note is probably misplaced.

tanta expedire negotia pius princeps si prælegerit, may be compelled to submission, without loss to the English.
 marchia ut diximus per omnia latera bene munita, commerciis quoque per mare per terras districte prohibitis, quidam Kambrensium in alios, stipendiis datis, terrisque aliorum in alios collatis, letalibus exitiis excitentur; ut¹ sic demum² tam fame et inedia, cunctorumque fere ingruente penuria necessariorum, quam cædibus inter se creberrimis, et inimicitiiis implacabilibus demum afflicti, infra non longum tempus³ ad deditionem proculdubio compellantur.⁴

Tria sunt enim quæ gentem hanc destruunt, et Three things their ruin.
 fructuosæ propaginis gaudia percipere non permittunt. 1st, The Gavelkind inheritance.
 Quod paternam hereditatem filii inter se, tam naturales quam legitimi, herili portione dividere contendunt: propter quod et fratricidia, ut diximus, crebra contingunt. 2nd, The foster-fathering.
 Et quod fortibus et generosis provinciæ viris filii traduntur alendi: quorum quilibet, defunctis patribus, suum modis omnibus, unde cædes et incendia tot, patriæque destructio tota, antepone- re conatur alumnum. 3rd, and especially, their refusal to be governed by one prince.
 Et hoc præcipue, quod, aliarum⁵ gentium more quæ⁵ feliciter vivunt, unius regis consilio, uniusque subjici dominio, obstinata pariter et elata mente recusant.

¹ ut] D. Rd., Wharton; et, V. N.

² demum] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

³ non longum tempus] D. Rd., Wharton; triennium vel quadriennium, V. N.

⁴ After this follows, in V. and N., "Unde et expulso prorsus veteri colono, aliaque ad regna translato, de Cambria coloniam princeps efficere prævalebit."

"Porro terram tam hispidam et tam inviam, tamque colonos domabiles habere nesciam, quæ desertum penitus bestiis relinquere, atque forestam inde facere, provido principi longe tutius et consultius fore, nonnulli sunt qui arbitrentur."

With this the chapter ends in V. N. They have not the last section of D. Rd., "Tria . . . recusant."

⁵ Rd. has "aliorum" and "qui."

[CAP. X.]

*Qualiter eadem*¹ resistere valeat, et rebellare.

How the Welsh may effectually rebel.

Sed quoniam pro Anglis hactenus diligenter admodum et exquisite disseruimus, sicut autem ex utraque gente originem duximus, sic æque pro utraque disputandum ratio dicat, ad Kambros denuo, in calce libelli, stilum vertamus, eosque de arte rebellandi breviter sed tamen efficaciter instruamus.

135.
They must practise
French warfare:
have unanimous princes;
or rather,
one good prince.
If inseparable, they would be insuperable.
Their strong country,
&c.
While the English fight for plunder and pay;
they for liberty and their country.

Si ergo armatura Gallica Kambri plenius et communius uti consueverint,² stabilique magis pugnae quam agilitati dimicando confisi fuerint;³ item si principes eorum unanimes in defensione et inseparabiles esse voluerint; vel potius, si uno gauderent principe, et illo bono; in terra tam hispida, tam munitissima, gens prævalida vinci ad plenum vix valeret.

Si igitur inseparabiles fieri⁴ vellent, et insuperabiles valde⁵ fieri possent; præcipue tribus adjuti, terra scilicet⁶ in se munita, parvoque vivere gente tam consueta quam contenta, et plebe tota sicut et nobilibus armis instructa.

Præsertim etiam cum Angli pro cupiditate certent, Kambri pro libertate; illi de lucro captando, isti de damno vitando; stipendiarii eorum⁷ pro pecunia, isti pro patria; illi, inquam, ut hos ab insula prorsus expellant, totamque terræ faciem simul obtineant, isti vero ut qui⁸ universo tamdiu regno soli præsidebant, in hoc saltem ejusdem angulo pessimo, silvis,⁹ mon-

¹ eadem] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

² consueverint] D. Rd.; assueverint, V. N., Wharton.

³ confisi fuerint] D. Rd.; confiderint, V. N., Wharton.

⁴ Instead of this first fieri, Wharton has "esse."

⁵ valde] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁶ scilicet] D. Not in V. N. Rd., Wharton.

⁷ eorum] D. Rd.; illorum, V. N., Wharton.

⁸ qui] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁹ silvis] V. N. D., Wharton. Not in Rd.

tibus, et paludibus conserto¹ delitescant, et quasi pro delictis huc relegati, præscriptisque divitiarum excessibus, usque ad præfinitum tempus in paupertate et inedia pœnitentiam agant.

Plurimam quippe animositatis scintillam exprimere, plurimam rebellionis audaciam imprimere potest continua pristina nobilitatis memoria; et non solum Trojanæ generositatis, verum etiam regni Britannici tantæ et tam diuturnæ regiae majestatis recordatio.

Unde et Anglorum rege Henrico secundo in australem Walliam apud Pencadeyr,² quod Caput cathedrae sonat, nostris diebus in hanc gentem³ expeditionem agente, consultus ab eo senior quidam populi ejusdem,⁴ qui contra alios tamen vitio gentis eidem adhæserat, super exercitu regio, populoque rebelli si resistere posset, quid ei videretur, bellicique eventus suam ut ei declararet opinionem, respondit; "Gravari quidem, plurimaque ex parte destrui et debilitari vestris, rex, aliorumque viribus, nunc ut⁵ olim et pluries, meritorum exigentia, gens ista valebit. Ad plenum autem, propter hominis iram, nisi et ira Dei concurrerit, non delebitur. Nec alia, ut arbitror, gens quam hæc Kambrica, aliave lingua, in die districti examinis coram Judice supremo, quicquid de ampliori contingat, pro hoc terrarum angulo respondebit."

Their ancient nobility; Trojan and British.

Answer of a Welsh adherent to Henry II. as to the subjugation of Wales.

They will never be destroyed; 135 b. and their language never cease.

*Explicit.*⁶

¹ montibus et paludibus conserto] D. Rd.; et paludibus, V. N., Wharton:

² Pencadeyr] D.; Pencader, V. N., Wharton. This expedition of Henry II. into South Wales was in 1163: supra, 138.

³ in hanc gentem] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁴ populi ejusdem] D. Rd.; de gente Cambrorum, V. N., Wharton.

⁵ ut] D. Rd., Wharton. Not in V. N.

⁶ Explicit] D.; Explicit Giraldus Cambrensis, V. N.; Explicit libellus de Cambria descriptione, Rd.

GLOSSARIES.

GLOSSARY I.

OF UNUSUAL WORDS.

[When Welsh words occur only once, and are explained in the notes, as for instance at p. 194, I have not thought it necessary always to repeat them in this Glossary.]

A.

- ABAIOTH, 199, n. 3 ; used by Giraldus instead of Naioth of the Vulgate, 1 Reg. xix., 18-23. I can suggest no explanation.
- ABER, 20, l. 14 ; 171, l. 32 ; a Welsh word, signifying the junction of one river with another, or of a river with the sea ; a common component of the Welsh names of places.
- ARPENTUM, 114, l. 26 ; Fr. Arpent, an acre, or other measure of land. See Du Cange. Giraldus seems to use it in the sense of a small plot of land, without reference to any exact amount.
- AUREOLUS, 125, l. 16 ; a bird, described as "aureo croceoque colore conspicua," and a sweet songster. Perhaps the goldfinch is meant. It sounds more like the golden oriole. This is now a very rare visitant to England ; but it does not at all follow that it was an equally rare bird, in the very different state of the country, in Giraldus's days. It is a bird of a closely-wooded country.
- AWENNITHION, 194, l. 21 ; Awenyddion, the plural form of the Welsh word Awenydd, a poet, an inspired person.

B.

- BACO, 90, l. 12 ; the whole salted carcase of a pig ; or rather, perhaps, a fitch of bacon. See Du Cange.
- BANGU, 18. The Welsh name for a handbell, Giraldus says ; but I find no such word in Welsh dictionaries.
- BEVERES, 118, l. 11 ; beavers. See Du Cange, under Bever. In other instances Giraldus calls them "Castores."

- BRACHAN, or BRICHAN, 184, l. 16; a coarse cloth manufactured by the Welsh; "Pannus durus et asper, quem patria parit."
 BRAGMANNI, 220, l. 18; the name given by Giraldus,—and by no one else, so far as I have been able to see,—to the mercenary troops, generally called Brabancenes, or Routiers, by other writers of his time. See Glossary, Vol. v., 417.
 BRIA, 212, l. 19; a measure. The word seems to be applied especially, as by Giraldus, to the quantity of drink meted out to each one of a party. See Du Cange.

C.

- CANTAREDUS, 127, l. 10, and elsewhere; a cantrev. A Welsh and Irish term, Giraldus explains, for the district of land containing a hundred vills; from cant, a hundred, and tref, a township, 169, l. 16. So also in Vol. v., 145, 348. Giraldus several times uses the Welsh word, when naming some special cantrev. See Cantrev Bychan, and Cantrev Mawr, in Index, infra.
 CAYMITICUS, 69, l. 15; Cain-like, fratricidal.
 CHORUS, 187, l. 10; the Welsh Crwth, or Crowd; a musical instrument of the Welsh and Scotch. See Glossary, Vol. v., 418.
 CÆLIBES, or COLIDEI, 124, l. 9; the monks called Culdees. See Du Cange, under Colidei.
 COLLUM PEDIS, 64, l. 19; the neck-like part of the leg, at the ankle. See Du Cange.
 COMMUNIA, 221, l. 18; where it seems to mean a community; a corporate body, with especial privileges. See Du Cange, under Commune (2), &c.
 CONFRAGA, 219, l. 11; breakings down of trees, for purposes of defence against an enemy. See Du Cange, under Confragmentum.
 CONJECTURARE, 60, n. 1., 98, l. 22; to conjecture, to divine. In the first instance, the majority of manuscripts have instead the more classical word "conjectare."
 CORNHIRIEZ, 62, last line; trumpeters: from the Welsh corn, a horn, and hir, long.
 COTERELLI, 220, l. 18; means much the same as Bragmanni, supra; one of the names given to the Routiers. See Du Cange.

D.

DA, id est, bonus, 167, l. 13; Dda, Welsh for good.

DIETA, 165, ll. 9, 12; a day's journey. Giraldus makes it equivalent to 25 miles; "octo dietæ" of l. 9 representing the same distance as "ducenta milia passuum" of l. 6; and "quatuor dietæ" of l. 12, the same as "centum milia" of l. 7. In the Top. Hib. (Vol. v., 24), Giraldus measures Irish distances by great and Irish day's journeys of 40 miles,—“dierum magni et Hibernici, quadraginta scilicet “miliarium, excursus.”

DISSIPARE, 98, l. 15; where it is used as a neuter verb, in the sense of To scatter themselves, To disappear.

DUUR, 77, l. 15; 194, l. 12. Dwfr of modern Welsh, water.

E.

ENERGUMENI, 195, l. 16; Gr. Ἐνεργούμενοι; persons possessed by evil spirits.

ENSIS, 89, l. 2; where used for the blade-bone of a shoulder of mutton. I find no other instance of such use of the word.

EPILOGIUM, 70, l. 22; an epilogue. See Du Cange.

EXHIBITIO, 183, l. 24; 213, l. 5; the entertainment of guests.

EXHIBITUS, in the sense of entertained as guests, occurs repeatedly.

G.

GERNOBODA, 185, l. 12; the hair of the upper lip, the moustache. See Du Cange, under Grani.

H.

HAL, 77, l. 17; 171, l. 19; 194, l. 12; Gr. ἅλας, salt.

HALEYN or HALEIN, 77, ll. 17, 25; 194, l. 13; Halen of modern Welsh, salt.

HEMI, 77, l. 29; 171, l. 19; Gr. ἡμι, half.

HEPTA, 77, l. 29; 171, l. 19; Gr. ἑπτὰ, seven.

HERILIS PORTIO, 69, l. 12; 134, l. 15; 211, l. 22; 225, l. 14.

The equal share of the deceased father's estate, which, by the custom of Gavelkind, which prevailed in Wales, came to each son.

HUCHEILWER, or SUPERIORES VIRI, 166, l. 27; Uchelwr, of modern Welsh; from uchel, high, and gwr, a man.

K.

KAM, 178, l. 23; Cam, in modern Welsh, crooked.

KEMBRAEC, 178, l. 22; Cymraeg, the Welsh language.

KEMMOTUS, 34, l. 3; Cymwd in Welsh, a comot, the fourth part of a cantrev.

L.

LECATOR, 109, l. 1; a scurrilous person. See Du Cange.

LECHLAVAR, 107; Llech Llafar, i.e., the speaking stone.

LEPORARIUS, 69, l. 24; 138, l. 22. Fr. Lévrier. Not a harrier, as the word would seem to indicate, but a greyhound; a dog that runs hares, not by scent, but sight. See Du Cange, under Canis Leporarius. A harrier was Brachetus, a Brachet.

M.

MAM KEMBRE or MAMKEMBRE, 127, l. 27; 177, l. 5; Mam Cymru, i.e., the mother of Wales; proverbially applied, Giraldus says, to the island of Mon, or Anglesey, because of its great fruitfulness in corn.

MELOTUS, 115, l. 21; a badger. Used by Giraldus in the third edition only of the Itinerarium, and the second of the Descriptio Cambriae. In the earlier editions of these treatises, he had used the ordinary form "Melota;" as also in all the editions of the Topographia Hibernica. I find no instance of "Melotus" elsewhere.

MULVELLUS, 136, l. 11; a sea fish; the mullet (?). See Du Cange.

O.

ODOPORION, 3, l. 3; Gr. Ὀδοπόριον. Giraldus, in the third edition only of the Itinerary, thus calls his history of archbishop Baldwin's progress through Wales. According to Leland, a metrical history of Richard I.'s expedition to the Holy Land was entitled "Hodœporicon Ricardi Regis." See Professor Stubbs' Preface (xxxvi) to the Itin. Regis Ricardi.

P.

PARI LAPIDES, 45, l. 4; where they are said to be vulgarly called "Liberi," free-stone, because of their being easily worked. Giraldus uses the word in other instances. In the Vita S. Remigii, &c., cap. xxvi (Anglia Sacra, ii. 419, l. 21), he describes St. Hugh as building a new east end of Lincoln cathedral with "Parii lapides:" and so again when describing Hugh's church-building at Lincoln, in the as yet unpublished Vita S. Hugonis (MS. No. 425, C. C. C. Cambridge, p. 106). And in the life of archbishop Geoffrey (I. 3), in a passage omitted by Wharton, Giraldus describes, when writing about events of the year 1174, the "Pariæ structuræ" of a new hall lately built by archbishop Roger at York. See also De Instr. Princ., 143, l. 9.

PASCHA FLORIDUM, 124, l. 5; Palm Sunday.

PENITIMUS, 56, l. 31; 137, l. 18; superlative of the adjective "Penitus;" innermost. The comparative "Penitior" occurs at p. 15, l. 26. "Penitimus" occurs several times in the Exp. Hib. of Vol. v.; 234, l. 20; 336, l. 25; 391, l. 23; 402, l. 22. I ought to have noticed it in the glossary to that volume, but it never struck me as being other than a good classical word, until a good classical friend accused me of having misread the word "Finitimus," which would have made equally good sense in the passage where he happened to hit upon the strange to him "Penitimus." But he is well versed in medieval as well as classical Latinity. The word, therefore, is perhaps peculiar to Giraldus. I certainly can give no instance of its use in any other writer, though it seems perfectly familiar to me. It is not mentioned by Du Cange.

PHANATICI, 195, l. 16; frenzied persons, I suppose. Giraldus describes spirits as speaking by the mouths of "Phanatici et Energumeni."

PRÆCLUIS, 8, l. 23; famous, illustrious. See Du Cange. It is not a very rare word, but it seems to have puzzled medieval copyists. See note 2, p. 8. Giraldus had used it before, in the Exp. Hib. (Vol. v., 235, l. 7.).

S.

SPEC, 125, l. 14; where said to be the French word for "Picus," a woodpecker; "Pic" of modern French.

STADIA, 16, n. 1; 126, n. 3. In these places it is used for miles, in the first edition of the Itin., as given us in manuscripts R, B; after editions having "milia," or "miliaria," or "passuum milia." In another instance, however, manuscripts R. and B. have "miliaria" (92, l. 8); agreeing, in this diversity, with their copy of the Exp. Hib.; where also they have the correct word, as well as the strange "Stadia;" See Vol. v., preface, xxxii. In one case (17, n. 2), the third edition of the Itinerary has "stadia," with the first; though the second edition, as given us in manuscript He., has "milia." This must have been owing to a mere bit of inadvertence.

T.

TEXTI LIBRI, 203, l. 20. Textus-i is an unusual form; but, no doubt, Giraldus's "Libri Texti," if I am right in joining them, mean simply the same as "Textus-uum," treasured and holy copies of the Gospels. See Du Cange. Perhaps the words ought to be written separately, "Libris, Textis;" but this would not at all remove the difficulty about Textus-i.

THYMALLUS, or UMBRA, 33, l. 22; the grayling. See Vol. v., 434.

TRAIT, 124, l. 1; tracth, in modern Welsh; a tract of sand; a sandy estuary; or rather, perhaps, an inlet of the sea. See Traitmaur in Glossary II.

TREF, i.e. villa, 169, l. 17; Welsh for a township; still so spelt.
 TRICATURA, 123, l. 10. This word, of which I can find no other instance, must mean a twisting or interlacing, or something of the sort. At any rate, it is clear that Giraldus's "Ferrea loricae tricatura" is the coat of mail of the ring armour of his time.

TURTRA, 33, l. 18; 136, l. 4. So Giraldus continues to call the trout, as in the Topog. Hibern. of Vol. v. See the Glossary to that volume. In the metrical abstract of Higden (Polychronicon, I., 422), it is "Turtrus;" the gender being changed to suit the rhyme.

U.

UMBRA. See Thymallus.

V.

VIRGEUS, 69, l. 25; where applied to the markings of a greyhound. Striped, or streaked, it would seem to mean; a medieval form of Virgatus. See Du Cange under Virga (1) and Virgatus; where is, "Glossæ Gr. et Lat., 'Ραβδωτῶς, "Virgeus."

Y.

YDOR, 77, l. 13; 194, l. 12; Gr. ὕδωρ, water. And YDRI l. 14; Gr. ὕδρῖα, a water-vessel.

GLOSSARY II.

OF NAMES OF PERSONS AND PLACES.

A.

ABERCORRAN, 172 ; another name, it would seem, for Talacharn, or Laugharne, Caermarthenshire. But Giraldus speaks of "Abercorran et Talachar," as if they were two distinct places. By the former, perhaps, he means the town, at the mouth of the river Corran ; and by the latter the adjoining castle of Talacharn. The Brut y Tywys., in one instance (A° 1189), calls the castle Abercorran ; but in others, Talacharn.

ABERESCUD, 175 ; Aberystwyth, Cardiganshire.

ABERFRAU, 81, 169 ; Aberffraw, Anglesey ; where the royal court of the princes of North Wales.

ABERGEVENNI, 47, &c., 171 ; Abergavenni, Monmouthshire.

ABERHOTHENI, 20, 32, 171 ; Aber-Honddu, or Aberhodni, the Welsh name of the town Brecknock or Brecon ; where the principal castle of the province of Brecheiniog, 32, l. 4 ; 171, l. 30. Giraldus's Brecheniauc is always the province, not the town.

ABERTAWE, 73, 172 ; Abertawe, or Abertawy, the Welsh name of Swansea, Glamorganshire.

ABERTEIVI, 112, 122 ; the Welsh name of Cardigan, the town. Giraldus's Keirdigan, Keredigan, &c., is always the province, Ceredigion.

ACON, 151 ; Acre, Palestine.

ÆLIVEDHA ; St. Eleventh, or Aled, or Elined. See 32, n. 2.

ALBA DOMUS, or ALBA LANDA, 9, 59, 82 ; Whitland, Cistercian Abbey, Caermarthenshire. Called in Welsh, Ty Gwyn, or Ty Gwyn ar Dav, i.e., the White House on the river Tav.

- ALBANIA, 60 ; Scotland. Originally all Britain north of the Humber : 178, l. 17.
- ALBUM MONASTERIUM, 142 ; Whitchurch, Shropshire.
- ALUNUS, 107, &c. ; the river Alan, at St. David's.
- ANARAUT, 166, 167 ; Anarawd, son of Rhodri Mawr ; prince of North Wales, end of 9th century. Giraldus, by mistake, makes him prince of Powys.
- ANAUDRECH, 167 ; where Giraldus makes him a prince of North Wales, and son of Mervyn son of Rhodri Mawr. Some Welsh authorities speak of Avandreg, a daughter of Mervyn, but none, so far as I have seen, of a son of any such name. See Williams' Eminent Welshmen, under Mervyn.
- ANGHARAT, 142. A woman's name ; Angharad of Welsh writers.
- ARDUDOE, 122 ; Ardudwy, a comot of cantrev Dunodig in province of Caer Yn Arvon, in Llywelyn's Survey. The name is still retained in a deanery of the archdeaconry of Merioneth. The cantrev Dunodig comprised parts of the present Merionethshire and Carnarvonshire.
- ARTHRO, 124, 176 ; the river Artro, Merionethshire. Giraldus is wrong about it at 124, l. 4.
- ARVON ; i. e., the country over against Mon or Anglesey, 124, l. 23. In Llywelyn's Survey, Arvon is a cantrev of Caer yn Arvon. See Kaerarvon.
- AURELIUS AMBROSIUS, 207 ; Ambrosius Aurelianus of Gildas (§ 25), and Bede (H. E. I., 16) ; Emrys Wledig of Welsh traditions. Giraldus follows Geoffrey in the name.
- AVANUS, 16 ; Afan, or Avan, a saint of the 6th century ; founder of Llanafan Fawr in Buellt (Brecknockshire). See Rees's Welsh Saints, 208.
- AVENNA or AVENINA, 9, 72, 172 ; the river Afan, or Avon, Glamorganshire.

B.

- BANGOR, 10, 124, 125. "Bangorensis ecclesia" occurs at p. 55, and "Sedes Bangorensis" at p. 170.
- BARRI, 66 ; Barry Island, off Glamorganshire, whence Giraldus's family name.

- BARROCUS, 66 ; Baruck, or Baroc, the saint from whom Barri island received its name, and who is said to have flourished in the latter half of the 7th century. He is not found in Welsh hagiology. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 304.
- BASINGWORE, 137, 176 ; Basingwerk, Flintshire. It is called Dinas Basin in Brut.
- BELINUS, and BRENNIUS, 207 ; Beli and Bran, of Welsh traditions ; kings of Britain, sons of Dyvnwal Moelmud.
- BERDESEIE, 124 ; Bardsey island. See Enthli.
- BERNACUS, 111 ; Brynach, a saint of the 5th century. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 156.
- BLEDHERICUS, 202 ; Bledri, a man's name.
- BRECHANUS, 31 ; Brychan, circa A.D. 400-450, prince of Garthmadryn, afterwards called from him Brecheiniog, which is still the Welsh name for Brecknockshire. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 110, &c.
- BRECHENIAUC, 9, 18, 20, and repeatedly afterwards ; Brecheiniog, the province, nearly represented by the present Brecknockshire ; never the town of Brecknock, which Giraldus always calls by its Welsh name Aberhodni. The great lake of Brecheiniog, 33 (bottom of page), is Llyn Savaddan, or Llangorse mere, or Brecknock mere, a few miles east of the town of Brecknock.
- BRENNIUS. See Belinus.
- BREVI, or BREVI, or LANDEWI BREVI, 10, 102, 119 ; Llanddewi Brefi, Cardiganshire.
- BROMFELD, or BRUMFELD, 11, 146 ; Bromfield, Shropshire.
- BROYNLES, 31 ; Brynllys, or Brwynllys, Brecknockshire. See n. 1, p. 31.
- BRUGENSE CASTRUM, 171 ; Bridgnorth, Herefordshire.
- BULLD, 16 ; Buellt, or Builth : in Llywelyn's Survey, Buallt, a cantrev of the province of Rhwng Gwy a Havren, in principality of Powys ; now a hundred of Brecknockshire.

C.

- CADELI, or CADELUS, 166, 167 ; Cadell, son of Rhodri Mawr ; prince of South Wales, end of 9th century.
- CADWALLANUS, 16, 69 ; a man's name, Cadwallon.

- CALDEI INSULA, in Welsh ENISPIR, 92; Yuys Pyr, or Caldey island, off Pembrokeshire.
- CANANUS. See Chananus.
- CANTREBOCHAN, or CANTREFBOCHAN, 36, 61, 81, 171, 172; Cantrev Bychan, a hundred of Caermarthen.
- CANTREFMAUR, or KANTREFMAUR, 34, 80, 81, 172; Cantrev Mawr, one of the three cantreys of Brecheiniog; the name also of a cantrev of Caermarthen.
- CARADOCUS, 69; Caradawg, or Caradog, son of Iestin.
- CASSIBELLIANUS, 207; Cassivellaunus of Cæsar; Cassibellaunus of Bede (H.E. i. 2); the British prince who opposed Cæsar's invasion. Caswallawn of the Welsh Triads, &c.
- CASTELLUM RADULPHI, 84; Châteauroux, in Berry.
- CESTRIA, or URBS CESTRENSIS, 10, 139, 141; Chester; called "Legionum urbs," 217, l. 16. At 221, l. 18, Cestria is used for the county.
- CHANANUS, or CANANUS, 10, 122, 167; a man's name, Cynan.
- CHANANI TERRA, or TERRA FILIORUM CHANANI, 122, 134, 177; Meirionydd so called.
- CLAUDIOCESTRIA, 63, 69; Gloucester; Caer Loyw of Brut. See Glovernia.
- CLAUDIUS, 14; a man's name, Clud, or Clut.
- CLEDEU, 82, 172; Cleddau, or Cleddy; the name of two rivers in present Pembrokeshire.
- CLOID, 137, 176; the river Clwyd, Denbighshire and Flintshire.
- COIDWRONEU, or COIT WRONEU, 9, 47. The name which Giraldus gives to a difficult defile, through which archbishop Baldwin passed on his way from Brecknock to Abergavenni. Coid is Coet, a wood. Wroneu is the river Grwyney, or Gronwy.
- COLESHULLE, 130, 137, 176; Consyllt, a district of the present Flintshire, by the English called Coleshill. See Tegengel.
- CRUGMAUR, i. e., COLLIS MAGNUS, 118; Crug Mawr, in north of Pembrokeshire.
- CRUKERI CASTRUM, 16; Pen-y-Crug, Old Radnor.
- CUNANUS; Cynan, the name of an abbot of Margam, 67.
- CUNEWI, 133, 136, 176; the river Conwy, or Conway, Carnarvonshire.

D.

- DANUBLE SILVA, 55, 171 ; the forest of Dean, Gloucestershire.
- DAVID, 101, &c. ; Dewi, saint, first archbishop of St. David's.
- DEGANNOE, 10. See Dugannu.
- DEHEUBARTH, 34, 166 ; still so spelt. It means the right-hand part, or south part, and is the Welsh name of South Wales. Giraldus explains it, 34, l. 6, by "Dextralis Walliæ pars." See Sudwallia.
- DELA, or DEYA, 10, 139, 176 ; the river Dec. See Deverdoen.
- DEMETIA, or DEMETICA PROVINCIA, 89, 93, 130, 166, 173, 176 ; Dyfet, or Dyved, a province of South Wales, including the present Pembrokeshire, with part of Caermarthenshire. It is "Demetia," or "Dewet," "Dyvet," &c., of the Annal. Camb. ; "Dyfet," &c., of Brut. In Llywelyn's Survey, where it is "Dyved," a province of the principality of "Dinevwr," it has eight cantrevs assigned to it, instead of seven, as given it by Giraldus (93, l. 4 ; 166, l. 17).
- DEUGLEDEU, or DUGLEDEU, 82, 172 ; Daugleddau, or Deugleddyv, the district between the two rivers Cleddy, in Pembrokeshire. In Llywelyn's Survey it is "Daugleddyv," a cantrev of Dyved.
- DEUTRAIT, 123 ; a castle described by Giraldus as lately built near to the Traeths Mawr and Bychan, towards the northern mountains. So far as I can learn it has not been identified. Deutrait would mean the Two Traeths, or inlets of the sea. The castle, therefore, was probably somewhere between them, or rather perhaps between the rivers running into them. See Traitmaur.
- DEVERDOEU, or DEVERDOE, 139, 176 ; Dwfr Dwy, the Welsh name of the river Dec. Caer Leon ar Dwfr Dwy, was the Welsh name of Chester.
- DEVI, 10, 122, 176 ; the river Dyvi, or Dovey, which separates North from South Wales.
- DEXTRALIS KAMBRIA, 85 ; South Wales. See Deheubarth, and Sudwallia.
- DINEVOR. See Dynewt.
- DOGMAELIS SANCTI MONASTERIUM, or CENOBIIUM, 110, 112 ; St. Dogmael's abbey, now St. Dogmael's, Pembrokeshire, DOGMAELIS—cont.

- near Cardigan. The Welsh name of the place is Llandudoch.
- DYBRICIUS, or DEBRITUS, 56, 101, 120; St. Dyfrig, archbishop of Caerleon, 5th and 6th centuries.
- DUGANNE, 135, 136, 176; DEGANNOE in Table of Chapters, p. 10; Dyganwy Castle, Carnarvonshire.
- DUVIANUS, 202; one of the missionaries sent by pope Eleutherius to Lucius: Dyfan, of Welsh traditions. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 82, &c.
- DYNAS EMEREIS, 133; Dinas Emrys, Carnarvonshire.
- DYNEWUR, or DINEVUR, &c., 80, 81, 169, 172; Dinevwr, or Dinefwr, now generally called Dinevor Castle, Caermarthenshire, the court of the princes of South Wales.
- DYSSENYTH, 124, 176; the river Dysynwy, or Dysinni, Merionethshire, which enters the sea a little north of Towyn. Giraldus is wrong about it at 124, l. 3.

E.

- ELENNITH, or ELENNYTH, 119, 138, 170. This, Giraldus says, was the Welsh name for the Pinnimmon range of mountains, and was called Morige by the English. I have found these names in no other early authority, and, so far as I have been able to see, neither of them now survives. From these mountains of Elennyth spring the rivers Severn and Wye, 171; the Teivi, 173; and the Ystwyth, 175.
- ELISSET, a prince of Powys, 142; Elise; son of Madog ab Maredudd.
- ELTUTUS, 28; Iltyd, a saint of the 5th or 6th century. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 178, &c. The general Latin form is Itutus.
- ELVAIL, ELVEMIA, or ELEVEMIA, 14, 18, 19, 146; Elvael, in Llywelyn's Survey Elvel, a cantrev of the province Rhwng Gwy a Havren, in principality of Powys, now part of Radnorshire.
- EMELYN, 10, 114, in heading only; no mention of it in chapter itself. Emlyn, now Newcastle Emlyn, Caermarthenshire.
- ENEAS, 14, 17; a man's name, the Welsh Einaun, or Einou.

- ENISLANNACH, 131 ; Ynys Glanach, or Ynys Seiriol ; Priestholme, or Puffin island, Anglesey.
- ENISPIR, or INSULA PIRRI, 92 ; Ynys Pyr, or Caldey island, off Pembrokeshire. See Caldei.
- ENTILI, or BERDESEIE, 124 ; Ynys Enlli, or Bardsey island, off the west point of Carnarvonshire.
- ERERI, or ERERY, 10, 133, 135, 170, 176 ; Eryri, the Welsh name of the Snowdon range of mountains.
- ERGENGEL, Anglice URCHENEFELD, 169 ; where it is said to have been once a cantrev of the dioceses of St. David's and Llandaf. Ergyng, or Erchenfield ; Erging in Llywelyn's Survey, a comot of Isoed Gwent ; now part of Herefordshire, west of the river Wye.
- ESCU, 175 ; the river Ystwyth, Cardiganshire.
- ESKEIRHIR, i. e., TIBIA LONGA, 111 ; a man's name ; Longshanks, as we should call him. Eskeir, now Esgair, is the Welsh for a shank, and Hir is long.
- ESKEWIN, 165 ; a port in Gwent, now Porthysgwydd, or Portskewet, Monmouthshire (?).
- ESTRATFLUR, 10. See Stratflur.
- ESTRATMACHEL, 59 ; Ystrad Marchell, or Strata Marcella, Cistercian abbey, Montgomeryshire.
- EUDAS, or EWEDAS of 1st edition ; a man's name, 50.
- EVIONYTH, 123 ; Eivionydd, a comot of cantrev Dunodig in Caer yn Arvon, in Llywelyn's Survey. Efionedd is still the name of a hundred of Carnarvonshire.
- EWENNITH, 67 ; Ewenny, Glamorganshire, a cell of St. Peter's, Gloucester.
- EWIAS, or EWYAS, 34, 37. In Llywelyn's Survey it is Euas, a comot of Isoed Gwent ; now included in Monmouthshire and Herefordshire.

F.

- FAGANUS, 202 ; one of the missionaries sent by pope Eleutherius to Lucius : Ffagan of Welsh traditions. See Rees's Welsh Saints, p. 82, &c. Giraldus, following Geoffrey (IV., 19), names only two missionaries, Faganus and Duvianus. According to Welsh traditions there were four.

G.

- GALFRIDUS ARTHURUS, 58, 179 ; Geoffrey of Monmouth.
- GERMANUS AUTISIODORENSIS, or ALTISIODORENSIS, 120, 202 ; Germanus of Auxerre, called Garmon by the Welsh. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 119, &c.
- GLASBIRIA, 21 ; Glasbury, Brecknockshire.
- GLASCUM, 18 ; Glasewni, Radnorshire.
- GLOVERNIA, 40, 55, 171 ; Gloucester. Called also Claudiocestria, 63, 69.
- GOER, or GOHER, 9, 72, 73, 138 ; Gwlyr, or Gower, a district comprising the western portion of the present Glamorganshire. In Llywelyn's Survey it is Gwyr, a comot of one of the cantreys of Caermyrddin.
- GRIFFINUS, or GRIPHINUS, a man's name ; Gruffudd, or Griffith.
Occurs continually.
- GUENELOC. See Gweneloc.
- GUENLIANA. See Gwendoloena.
- GULANUS, bishop of Bangor ; Gwiawn in Brut, A° 1191. See
125, n. 3.
- GUINTA, or WINTA, 52, 54, 165, 177 ; Gwent, a district between the Usk and Wye, formerly one of the six provinces of the principality of South Wales, now included in Mon-mouthshire and Herefordshire. It contained the two cantreys of Gwent Uchcoed and Gwent Iscoed, the latter of which Giraldus calls "Winta inferior" at p. 60.
- GULADMORGAN, or WLATMORGAN, or MORGANNOC, 63, n. 2 ;
138, 145, 172 ; Gwlad-Morgan; or Morganwg, Anglice, Glamorganshire. The antient Morganwg, however, did not at all exactly agree with the present Glamorganshire.
- GWENDOLOENA, or GUENLIANA, 15, n. 1 ; 79, n. 1 ; Gwenllian, a woman's name.
- GWENELOC, or GUENELOC, 11, 146 ; Wenlock, Shropshire.

H.

- HAIA, or HAYA, 8, 20, 171 ; Hay, Brecknockshire. The Welsh name of the town is Tregelli.

HAVEREN, 171 ; Hafren, the Welsh name of the river Severn.
HAVERFORDIA, 82, 99, 172 ; Haverford West, Pembrokeshire.

The Welsh name is Hwlford ; Hawlford of Brut.

HOELUS, or HOWELUS, 21, 60, &c. ; Howel, a man's name.

HOTHENI, 20 ; the river Honddu, or Hodni, Brecknockshire.

And at p. 37, river of the same name, Monmouthshire.

HOVEDENE, 24 ; Howden, Yorkshire.

HYSMAEL, S. ; in province of Rhos, where was St. Caradog's place of seclusion, 86. According to Robt. Williams (Eminent Welshmen), this was St. Ismael's in Pembrokeshire, where St. Caradog remained until his death. Other authorities say that St. Caradog's last place of seclusion was at Haroldston East, the church of which is dedicated to St. Ismael ; and that he died there in 1124.

I.

IAGO, 167 ; a man's name. It is still the right Welsh spelling.

IEREVERDUS, 48, 60 ; Iorwerth, a man's name.

IERVERDUS TROYNDUN, 134 ; Iorwerth Drwyndwn, or the Broken-nosed, son of Owain Gwynedd.

IESTINUS, 21, 69 ; Iestin ab Gwrgant, prince of Morganwg, who was dispossessed by Fitzhamon, circa 1090.

K.

KAERARTHUR, 36 ; Cadair Arthur, a summit of the Brecknockshire hills ; now generally called the Van, or Bannau Brecheiniog.

KAERARVON, or KAIRARVON, i. e., CASTRUM DE ARVON, 10, 124 ; Carnarvon Castle. The province, now nearly represented by Carnarvonshire, is Caer yn Arvon in Llywelyn's Survey. See Arvon.

KAERDIF, KAIRDIF, or KERDIF, 9, 61, &c. ; Cardiff, Glamorganshire. It is Caer Dyf, or Kaer Dyf, in Brut ; and is now called in Welsh, Caerdydd.

- KAERLEFN, 55; Caerleon, Monmouthshire. Generally called by Giraldus, Legionum urbs.
- KAERMERDYN, or KAIRMERDIN, &c., 62, 80, &c.; Caermarthen, the town; Caer Vyrddin in Brut; Caerfyrddyn of modern Welsh. The province is called "Caervyrddin" in Llywelyn's Survey.
- KAMROS, 10, 99; Camros, Pembrokeshire.
- KANANUS, 59; Cynan, a man's name. Elsewhere it is Cananus, or Chananus.
- KANAUCUS, 25, 112; St. Cynawg, or Cynog; the eldest of the many sons of Brychan; 5th century. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 138.
- KANTREFMAUR, 80, 81. See Cantrefmaur.
- KAOC, 34, 81. In the latter instance, it is clearly described as a comot of Cantref Mawr in Caermarthen. There is no such name to a comot of Cantref Mawr; but Caoe, which I suppose to be Giraldus's Kaoc, is a comot of Cantref Brychan, Caermarthen, in Llywelyn's Survey.
- KARADOCUS, or KARODOCUS, 85, 86; St. Caradawg, or Caradog, who spent his last years as a hermit in Pembrokeshire, and died in 1124. Giraldus wrote a life of him, which is not now known to be in being. The preface to it, however, is in the copy of Giraldus's Symbolum Electorum, in the library of Trin. Coll. Cambridge.
- KARNMADRUN, 123; Carn Madryn Castle, Carnarvonshire.
- KEDWELL, or KEDWELY, 9, 78, 172; Cydweli, or Kidwelly, Caermarthenshire.
- KEIRDIGAN. See Keredigiaun.
- KEMMEIS, 10, 110; called "Kemais" in Brut; "Kenmeis" in Annal. Camb. In Llywelyn's Survey it is "Cemaes," a cantref of Dyved. Now Kemmes, a hundred of Pembrokeshire.
- KENARTHMAUR, 114; Cenarth, Caermarthenshire.
- KENEWRIGUS, 119; Cynvrig, a man's name.
- KEREDIGIAUN, KEREDIGAN, KERDIGAN, KEIRDIGAN, or KERTICA REGIO, 10, 114, 122, 173, 175, 176; Ceredigion, one of the six provinces of the principality of South Wales, which comprised the present Cardiganshire, and part of Caermarthenshire. The town Cardigan Giraldus calls by the Welsh name, Aberteivi.

- KEVEILIAUC, 143, 144; Cyveiliog, a comot of cantrev Cynan in province of Powys Gwenwynwyn, in Llywelyn's Survey; now included in Montgomeryshire.
- KILGARRAN, 114; Cilgerran, Pembrokeshire.

L.

- LANAMDEVERI, 172; Llanymddyvri, or Llandovery, Caermarthenshire.
- LANAVAN, 16; Llanafan Fawr, Brecknockshire.
- LANDAPH, or SEDES LANDAVENSIS, 9, 67, 170; Llandaf.
- LANDESTEPHAN, 80, 172; "Llan Ystyffan," in Brut; Llanystyffan, or Llanstephan, Caermarthenshire.
- LANDEWI BREVI, 119. See Brevy.
- LANDEWI NANTHOTHENI, 37; Llanddewi Nant Hodni, i.e., the church of St. David on the river Hodni; the Welsh name, Giraldus says, for Llanton abbey, Monmouthshire.
- LANDINEGATH, 52; Llaningad, or Dingatstow, near Monmouth.
- LANDU, 20; Llandew, or Llanduw rather, near Brecknock. Giraldus says it means "Ecclesia Dei," 20, l. 15. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 325, note.
- LANELVENSIS SEDES, 10, 136, 170; Llanelwy, so called from its site on the river Elwy; a cathedral church said to have been founded circa 550 by the famous Scotch saint Kentigern or Mungo; now St. Asaph, so called from Asaf, whom St. Mungo left as bishop, on his own return into Scotland. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 261.
- LANHAMELACH, 28; Llanhamlech, or Llanamwlch, Brecknockshire.
- LANMAYS, 23; Llanfaes, Brecknockshire.
- LANMEIR, 122; Llanfair, Merionethshire.
- LANPADERN MAUR, i. e., ECCLESIA PATERNI MAGNI, 120; Llanbadarn Fawr, Cardiganshire, near Aberystwyth; originally a cathedral see, afterwards a cell of St. Peter's, Gloucester. The church, to the architectural antiquary, is one of the most valuable and interesting in all Wales.
- LANTODHENI, or LANTHOTHENI, or LANTHONEI, 9, 37; Llanton abbey, Monmouthshire. See Landewi.

- LANWADEIN, 82, 172 ; Llanaeddau, or Llawhaden, Pembroke-shire.
- LEGIONUM URBS ; so Giraldus generally calls Caerleon, Monmouthshire, 9, 55, 57, &c. ; though "Kaerleun" also, at 55. And so he also calls Chester, at p. 217 ; though in other places "Cesiria." The Welsh called the former place Caerleon ar Wyse (Usk) ; and the latter, Caerleon ar Dwfyrdwy (Dee).
- LEONIS MONASTERIUM, 146 ; Leominster, Herefordshire.
- LEUDOCUS, 114 ; St. Llawddog, or Lleuddad. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 274.
- LEVENI, 21 ; the river Llyvni, or Llynvi, Brecknockshire.
- LEWELINUS, or LUELINUS, 28, 134, &c. ; Llywelyn, a man's name.
- LHEIN, 123, 124 ; Llein, a cantrev of Caer yn Arvon (Carnarvonshire) ; comprising the large promontory between the bays of Cardigan and Carnarvon.
- LOCHER, or LOCHUR, 9, 78, 172 ; the river Llychwr, or Loughor ; in part of its course the boundary between the present Glamorganshire and Caermarthenshire.
- LOEGRIA, 178 ; the part of Britain between the Humber and Severn.
- LOHOLT, 172. So Giraldus calls the castle of Llychwr, or Loughor, Glamorganshire, on the river of the same name. In Brut it is called "Castell Llychwr ;" and in Annal. Camb., "Castellum Lychur."
- LUCIUS, king of Britain, 202 ; Lleurwg ab Coel, of the Welsh Triads, &c. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 82, &c.
- LUDLAWE, or LODELAWE, 11, 146 ; Ludlow, Shropshire.
- LUEL, 18 ; Llywel, Brecknockshire.
- LUPUS TRECENSIS, 202 ; Lupus of Troyes. In Welsh he is called Bleiddian, a name of like meaning with Lupus. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 126.

M.

- MADOCUS, or MAIDOCUS, 15, 142 ; Madog, a man's name.
- MAHEL, son of Bernard de Newmarch by a Welsh mother ; 29. Mael occurs as a Welsh name.
- MAILENIA, MAILENITH, or MAILENNYTH, 16, 19, 138, 146 ; Maelienydd ; a cantrev of Rhwng Gwy a Havren, one of the three provinces of the principality of Powys; now represented by a part of north Radnorshire, with some part of Montgomeryshire.

MAILENIA, &c.—cont.

MAILGO, 16, 79, 119; Maelgwm, a man's name.

MALA PLATEA, Shropshire, 146 (?).

MALUS PASSUS, 146; Malpas, Cheshire.

MANIA, 127; the isle of Man.

MARGAN, 9, 67, 172; Margam, Cistercian abbey, Glamorganshire.

MARSILIA, 151; Marseilles.

MAVIA, or MAU, 122, 176; the river Maw, or Mawddach, Merionethshire.

MAXIMUS, 166, 208; king of Britain, &c.; Maxen Wledig of Welsh traditions.

MAYNAURPIR, 92; Maenor Pyr, or Manorbear, castle, Pembrokeshire.

MEDIOLANUM, 33; Milan.

MEILERIUS, 57; Meilyr, a man's name.

MENEVIA, or MENEVENSIS ECCLESIA, or MENEVENSIS SEDES, 10, 101, 105, &c.; Mynyw, or St. David's; generally called "Menevia" in Annal. Camb., but "Miniu" in two instances, A^o 810 and 906. Menevensis portus, 108, l. 3, is "Porthmaur Menevia, i.e. Portus magnus," of p. 165.

MEREDUCIUS. See Moreducus.

MERIONYTH, or MEIRIONITH, or TERRA FILIORUM CHANANI, or TERRA CANANI, 122, 134, 176, 177; Meirionydd, a province of the principality of North Wales. It did not agree at all exactly with the present Merionethshire. It contained the greater part of this county, but had much besides not included in it.

MERLINUS; called Vyrddin in Brut; Merddin, or Myrddin, of modern Welsh. There are two prophets of this name of Welsh traditions; viz.:

MERLINUS AMBROSIUS, 56, 80, 133, 196, &c.; Merddin Emrys; so called because the bard of Emrys Wledig, or Ambrosius. He is said to have prophesied about the middle of the 5th century. And MERLINUS CELIDONIUS, or SILVESTER, 62, 124, 133, 196, 199; Merddin Wyltt, or the Wild; a bard who is said to have flourished in the 6th century. See Williams's Eminent Welshmen, under Merddin.

- MERVINUS, 166, 167 ; Mervyn, son of Rhodri Mawr ; prince of Powys, end of 9th century. Giraldus, however, calls him prince of North Wales. See Anaraut.
- MEURIC, 167 ; Meurig, or Meirig, prince of North Wales, according to Giraldus.
- MILVERDICUS PORTUS, 89 ; Millford Haven.
- MONEMUTA, or MUNEMUTA, 51, 55 ; Monmouth.
- MONIA, 10, 81, 126, &c. ; Ynys Mon, or simply Mon, Anglesey ; Mon, or Von in Brut ; Mon, or Monia in Annal. Camb.
- MOREDUCUS, or MEREDUCIUS, 21, 69, &c. ; a man's name ; Maredudd, Anglice, Meredith.
- MORGANNOC, 145. See Guladmorgan.
- MORGANUS, 48, 69, &c. ; Morgan, a man's name.
- MORUGE, 119, 170 ; so called, "quasi paludum cacumina," 170, l. 22 ; the English name of the Plinlimmon range of mountains. See Elenith.

N.

- NANHEVER, or LANEVER, 111 ; Nefern, or Nevern, Pembrokeshire. See note 4, p. 111.
- NANT PENCARN, 62 ; probably the river Ebwy, near Newport. See note 1, p. 62.
- NESTA, 28, 91, 130 ; Nest, a woman's name. Anglicised into Anneis, Giraldus says, 29, l. 2.
- NETH, 9, 72, 73, 172 ; Nedd, or Neath, Glamorganshire ; river, and monastery.
- NEUGOL, 10, 86, 100 ; the river Newgall, and sands, Pembrokeshire. This river, in part of its course, is the division of the cantrevs Rhos and Pebidiog.
- NEVIN, or NEWEIN, 10, 124 ; Nefyn, or Nevin, Carnarvonshire.
- NIWEBURIA, 24 ; Newbury, Berkshire.
- NORWALLIA, 122, and repeatedly afterwards ; North Wales. Often called also Venedotia.
- NOVUS BURGUS, 9, 55, 61, &c. ; Newport, Monmouthshire. Called "Castell Newyd ar Wyse," i.e., New Castle on Usk, in Brut.

O.

- OENEUS, occurs repeatedly ; a man's name. Owain, or Owen.
- OSCHA, or OSCA, 9, 20, 33, 55, &c. Wyse, or Usk ; river, town, and castle.
- OSWALDESTREO, or OSWALDESTROE, i. e., OSWALDI ARBOR, 11, 138, 142, l. 16 ; Oswestry, Shropshire. It is called "Croes Hyswallt" in Brut ; "Croes Oswald," and "Cruix Oswalt" in Annal. Camb.
- OXIMENSE CASTRUM, 19. Where described as five miles from Seez, Normandy.

P.

- PATERNUS MAGNUS, 10, 120 ; St. Padarn, founder, and first bishop of Llanbadarn Fawr, Cardiganshire. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 215.
- PEBIDIAUC, 127 ; Pebidiog, a cantrev of Dyved ; one of the comots of which was Mynyw, or Menevia, the district of St. David's.
- PECH, 182 ; the Derbyshire Peak district, I suppose, which was generally called "Pech," or "Pee ;" for instance, Ben. Abb. II., 78, and Hoveden, 373b, 34. But Giraldus's words are "In borealibus insulæ finibus versus Pech," as if Pech was towards the extreme north.
- PEMBROCHIA, or PENBROCHIA, or PEMBROCH, or PROVINCIA PEMBROCHIENSIS, 89, 91, 93, &c. ; not the present town of the name, or county, but Penvro, one of the eight cantrevs of Dyved ; now nearly represented by the hundred of Castle Martin, Pembrokeshire.
- PEMMELESMERE, 139, Pimble Mere, or Baia lake, Merionethshire. By the Welsh called Llyn Tegid.
- PENCADEIR, or PENCADEYR, 81, 138, 227 ; Pencader, Caermarthenshire.
- PENGWERN, or PENGUERN, 81, 169 ; according to Giraldus, the ancient Welsh name of Shrewsbury. But the Brut calls Shrewsbury "Amwythie."
- PENWETHIG, 175 ; Penwedig, a cantrev of Ceredigion (Cardiganshire).

- PISTILDEWI, i. e., FISTULA DAVID, 109. Pistyll is Welsh for a pipe, or spout. There was a chapel called Capel y Pistyll in connection with the cathedral of St. David's. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 350.
- PONS STEPHANI, 10, 119; Llanbedr Pont Stephan, or Lampeter, Cardiganshire.
- PORTHMAUR, 165; Porth Mawr, i. e., the great port, St. David's; called "Menevensis Portus" at p. 108, l. 3.
- POWISIA, 138, 142, 143, 166; Powys, one of the three principalities into which Wales was antiently divided.
- PRESSELEU, 111, 172; the Percelly mountains, in north of Pembrokeshire.

R.

- RADENOURA, or RADENORA, 13, 138; Radnor, the town.
- RAIDERGOE, 18; Rhaiadr Gwy, Radnorshire.
- RENNI, or REMNI, 62, 65, 172; the river Rhymni, or Rumney; in part of its course the boundary between the present Monmouthshire and Glamorganshire.
- RESUS, a man's name, Rhys: occurs continually.
- RIDIHELIC, i. e., VADUM SALICIS, or WILIFORD, 165; Sir R. C. Hoare supposed it to be Walford, Herefordshire.
- ROS, or PROVINCIA DE ROS, or ROSENSIS PROVINCIA, or ROSENSE TERRITORIUM, 10, 80, 86, 89; Rhos, one of the cantreys of Dyved; still the name of a hundred of Pembrokeshire.
- ROTHERICUS, or RODERICUS, 126, 166; Rhodri, Anglice Roderic. "Rothericus Magnus," or, in the British tongue, "Rotheri Mawr," of p. 166, was Rhodri Mawr, sovereign of Wales A.D. 844-877.
- RUDLAN, RUDIHELAN, or RUTHELAN, 10, 137, 176; Rhuddlan castle, Flintshire.

S.

- SABRINA, 55, 171; the river Severn. See Haveren.
- SAGIUM, 19; Seez, Normandy.
- SANCTI CLARI CASTELLUM, 82, 172; St. Clare's, or St. Clear's, Caermarthenshire.

- SEIGHENITH, 170; where called the fourth part of a cantrev, in diocese of Llandaf. Seinghenydd, one of the four comots of Cantrev Breiniol in Morganwg.
- SEISILLUS, 50, 111, 126; Seisyll, a man's name.
- SLOPESBURIA, 81, 142, 144; Shrewsbury; but in another instance it certainly means Shropshire, "Terra quæ Slopesburia dicitur," p. 169. "Slopesburia provincia" occurs at p. 221.
- STAKEPOLE, ELIODORUS DE, 96. There are two places called Stackpool in Pembrokeshire, one of which is Stackpool Elidyr, so called perhaps from this very Eliodorus.
- STRATFLUR, or ESTRATFLUR, 10, 119, 126, 173; the Cistercian abbey of Ystrad Fflur, or Strata Florida, Cardiganshire.
- STRIGULENSE CASTRUM, 139, 171; Striguil Castle, Chepstow, Monmouthshire.
- SUDWALLIA, 34, 81, &c.; South Wales, called also "Deheubarth;" and, at 85, l. 31, "Dextralis Kambria." See Deheubarth.
- SWEINESIE, or SWEYNESIA, 73, 172; Swansea, Glamorganshire. See Abertawe.

T.

- TALACHARN, or TALACHAR, 80, 172; Talacharn, or Laugharne, Caermarthenshire. See Abercorran.
- TALGARTH, 36; mountains so called, Brecknockshire. See note 5, p. 36.
- TAPH, 82, 172; Tav, or Taf, river of Caermarthenshire. For the Glamorganshire Taf, see Thaph.
- TAWE, 172; the river Tawe, or Tawy, Glamorganshire. It enters the sea in Swansea bay, whence Abertawe, the Welsh name of Swansea.
- TEGENGEL, 137, 190; Tegeingl, Tegeingyl in Llywelyn's Survey, called Englefield by the English, was a cantrev of Perveddwlad, one of the provinces of North Wales. It contained the three comots, Consyllt (Coleshill), Prestatyn, and Rhuddlan, which now rank as three hundreds of the modern Flintshire.
- TEIVI. See Teyvi.
- TELEAUCUS, 67; St. Teilo, second bishop of Llandaf.

- TEYREDAUCUS, 129 ; St. Tyfrydog, founder of Llandyfrydog, Anglesey. See Rees's Welsh Saints, 276.
- TEWEIN, 122 ; Tywyn, or Towyn, Merionethshire.
- TEWI, or FLUVIUS TEWIENSIS, 9, 80, 81, 172, the river Tywi, or Towy, Caermarthenshire.
- TEYVI, or TEIVI, 10, 114, 173 ; the river Teivi, or Teivy, Cardiganshire.
- THAPH, or TAPH, 62, 67, 172 ; Tav, or Taf river, Glamorganshire.
- THEODORUS, 34, 89 ; Tewdwr, a man's name ; Tudor, Anglice.
- TRAITMAUR, and TRAITBOCHAN, 123, 176 ; Traeth Mawr, and Traeth Bychan, two tracts of sand, or rather inlets of the sea, at the N.W. corner of Merionethshire. At p. 176 Giraldus gives these names to the rivers which run into the inlets.

U.

- URCHENEFELD, 169. See Ergengel.

V.

- VECTA, 127 ; the Isle of Wight.
- VENEDOTIA, 122, 123, &c., frequently ; Gwynedd, or North Wales.

W.

- WALA, or FLUMEN WAIENSE, 19, 20, 21, 33, and elsewhere ; called "Vaga," and "Flumen Vagense," in some MSS. The river Gwy, or Wye.
- WARTHRENNIAUN, 17, &c. ; Gwrthryniun, a comot of cantrev Arwystli in Meirionydd, North Wales, in Llywelyn's Survey. Now part of Radnorshire, and represented by the present hundred of Rhayader.
- WENDRAETH, or WENDRAITH, or WENDRAYTH, 9, 78, 172 ; the rivers Gwendraeth Fawr, and Gwendraeth Bach, Caermarthenshire.
- WENLOCH, 62 ; Gwenllwg ; formerly a cantrev of Morganwg (Glamorganshire) ; now part of Monmouthshire, co-extensive with the present deanery of Newport.

WILIFORD. See Ridhelic.

WINCHELECUMBE, 25 ; Wincheombe, Gloucestershire.

WINTA ; Gwent. See Quinta.

WLATMORGAN. See Guladmorgan.

Y.

YOIGER, 165 ; where described as a port on the north coast of Anglesey ; the month, I suppose, of the river Gwygir.

YTHEWAL, 167 ; Idwal, a prince of North Wales.

YVOR MODICUS, 63 ; Ivor Bach. See n. 3, p. 63.

I N D E X.

I N D E X.

[After proper names in this Index, whenever at all necessary, Giraldus's Latin rendering is added within brackets.]

A.

- Aaron, St., of Caerleon; his church there; one of the first British martyrs, 56.
- Abbots, lay, of Llanbadarn; as frequently the case in Wales and Ireland, 120.
- Abelard, Peter; his retort on a Jew as to churches being struck by lightning, 95.
- Aberfraw, Anglesey, the royal court of North Wales, 81, 169.
- Abergavenni, Monmouthshire, archbishop Baldwin's progress to, 47.
sermon at, 48.
chieftains of Gwent treacherously slaughtered in castle of, 49, n. 2.
castle taken by the Welsh, 51.
a former like slaughter, by Walter son of Earl Milo, 51, n. 3.
- Aberhodni (Aberhotheni), Brecknockshire, archbishop Baldwin's progress to, 20.
the principal castle of Brecheiniog, 32, l. 4; 171, l. 30.
chapel of St. Nicholas in castle, 21.
- Abertawe, or Swansea, Glamorganshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 73.
castle of, 73, 172.
- Aberteivi, Cardiganshire, archbishop Baldwin entertained at, by prince Rhys, 112.
chapel to be built near, on the Kemnes side of the river, on the spot where archbishop Baldwin preached, 113.
- Aberystwyth (Aberescud), Cardiganshire, castle of, 175.
- Abraham, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Acre (Acon), Palestine, archbishop Baldwin's death at, 151.
- Afan, or Avon (Avenna, or Avenina), river, Glamorganshire, 9, 72, 172.
- Afan, St. (Avanus), how irreverence to his church punished, 16.
- Alan, river at St. David's, 107. flows with wine, 109.
- Alban, St., proto-martyr of Britain, 56.
- Albanactus, son of Brutus, king of all Britain north of the Humber, from whom the name Albania, 178.
- Alexander, archdeacon of Bangor, interpreter to the Welsh during archbishop Baldwin's progress, 55, 126.
- Alexander the Great, the Caspian mountains, and the ten tribes, 199.
- Alfred, his English books written in the idiom of the South of England, 178.
- Alliteration, use of, in Welsh and English poetry, 187.
instances of it, 188.
not used by the French, 189.
- Aman, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Ambrose, St., quoted, 33, 44, 70.
- Amphibalus, St., preceptor of St. Alban, a native of Caerleon, 56.
- Anarawd, son of Rhodri Mawr, prince of Powys, 166, 167.
- Anchorites of Wales, 204.

Angharad, daughter of Owain Gwynedd, and wife of her cousin Gruffudd ab Madog of Powys, abjured by him before archbishop Baldwin, 142.

Anglesey. See Mon.

Antenor, leader of the Franks from Troy, 193.

Antioch, duel there, of a dog with a man who had murdered his master, 70.

Archuail, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

Ardudwy (Ardudoe), a province in the present Merionethshire, 122.

Arthen, a nobleman of Gwent, takes the cross, 48.

Arthur, king, "famosus, ne dicam fabulosus," 208.
his famous court at Caerleon, 56.
history of, written by Gildas, but purposely destroyed by him, 209.

Arvon, province of, 124. See Glossary II.

Arwistel, bishop of St. David's, 104.

Asser, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

Augustine, St., quoted, 21, 78.

Augustine, St., of Canterbury, and the British bishops, 105.

Aulus Gellius (Agellius), quoted, 4, 196.

Aureolus, a bird, a sweet whistler, 125.

Anstin Canons. See Monastic orders.

Avon, river. See Afan.

B.

Badgers, how they remove the earth from their burrows, 115.

Baldwin, archbishop, starts from Hereford on his progress through Wales early in March 1188, 13. (His name, of course, occurs continually afterwards; I only give the instances at all worthy of notice.)
preaches the crusade at Radnor, 14; at Usk, 55; at Haverford, 82; near Cardigan, 113; at Lampeter, 119; at Nefyn, 124; in Anglesey, 126; at Shrewsbury, 144.

Baldwin, archbishop—cont.
His favourable acceptance of the Topographia Hibernica of Giraldus, 20.
celebrates mass in the several cathedral churches of Wales, 105; at the high altar of Llandaf cathedral, 67; of St. David's, 110; of Bangor, 125; and St. Asaph, 137.
the only archbishop of Canterbury that ever entered Wales, 104.
chapel to be built near Cardigan on the spot where he had preached, miracles there, 113.
his pleasant joking, and powers of whistling, 125.
directs Owain Gwynedd's body to be removed from Bangor cathedral, 133.
keeps Easter at Chester, 142. spends some days at Shrewsbury for rest and recreation, 144.
returns to Hereford, 146.
number of those who took the cross during his progress, 147.
description of his person, manners, &c., 148.
his kindness of heart and scandalous lenity; pope Urban's rebuke to him, 149.
helped to lose what St. Thomas had gained, 150.
one of the first to take the cross, his zealous preachings of it; sails from Marseilles, lands at Tyre, proceeds to Acre, his death there, 151.

Bangor, the cathedral see of North Wales, archbishop Baldwin at, 125.
Guianus, bishop of, 125.
tombs at, of Owain Gwynedd, and his brother Cadwalader, 133.
number of cantreys in diocese, 170.

Bards, or poets, many of them in Wales, 187.
their ancient books, preserving the genealogies of the princes of Wales, 167.

Bardsey island. See Ynys Enlli.

- Barr island, and family, of which Giraldus one, 66.
- Baruch, or Baroc, St. (Barrocius), of Barri island, 66.
- Basingwerk, Flintshire; archbishop Baldwin at, 137.
- Beavers, in the river Teivi, 114, 173.
and in one river in Scotland, 115.
their habits, &c., 115-118, 173-175.
why called Castores, 117, 175.
how their tails, as fish-like meat, eaten in times of fasting, 118, 175.
their affinities with toads and seals, with moles and badgers, 116, 174.
- Bede, quoted, 105.
his English works written in the idiom of the South of England, 178.
- Bela, king of Hungary, 13.
- Beli and Bran (Belinus et Brennius), their conquest of Rome, 207.
- Benedictines. See Monastic orders.
- Bernard, quoted, 117.
- Bernard, bishop of St. David's, temp. Henry I., 104.
his labours to recover the metropolitan rights of his see, 105-106.
his pomposity and ambition and waste of estates of his see, 106.
- Bernard, a priest, his punishment for blowing St. Patrick's horn, 26.
- Bledri (Bledhericus), a famous Welsh "fabulator," shortly before Giraldus's time, 202.
- Bleidhud, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Bran. See Beli.
- Braose (Breusa), William de, nephew of Walter son of earl Milo, 51, n. 3.
his detention of church property, 21.
his pious language, 22.
his devotion, 23.
his admirable wife, Maud de St. Valery, 23.
castellan of Abergavenni, and lord of the province; treacherous slaughter of chieftains of Gwent, invited by him under solemn security to a peaceful conference, 49, n. 2.
- Braose (Breusa), William de—cont.
in disgrace in consequence with Henry II., and other misfortunes, 51, n. 3.
his narrow escape at Dingatstow, 53.
Philip de Braose, his uncle, 51, n. 3.
- Brecheiniog (Breeheniaue), province of South Wales, 18, 20, 32.
derives its name from its ancient lord Brychan, 31.
the three cantreys of, 28.
fertility of; its rivers, and their fishes, 33.
well sheltered by mountains, 36.
- Bernard de Newmarch the first Norman occupier of, 28; then Milo, his son-in-law, earl of Hereford, and his four sons in succession, 29.
death of Rhys ab Tewdwr in, 90.
laid waste by the sons of Iestin, 21.
the great lake of (Llyn Savaddan), 33.
testimony of the wild fowl of this lake to Gruffudd ab Rhys's right to the principality of South Wales, 34;
other marvels of this lake, 35;
changes of colour in its waters, 21, 35.
- Brecknock. For town, see Aberhodni; for province, Brecheiniog.
- Bretagne (Armorica Britannia), Britons of, a colony from Britain, by Maximus, 166.
language of, very like Welsh, 177.
hereditary succession to benefices in, 214.
- Bristol, the monks of Margan send a ship to, for corn, 68.
- Britain, so called from Brutus, 178.
introduction of Christianity into, 202.
exhausted of its strength by the levies of all its youth by Maximus, 166, 208.
- Britons, from Troy under Brutus, 193. instances of their valour, 207.
of their cowardice, beaten by vile Scots and Picts, 208.
Maximus's successes owing to them, 209.

Britons—cont.

- lost Britain, as Troy before, through their excessive sinfulness, 215.
of Wales, Cornwall, and Bretagne, 165, 166.
- Bromfield, Shropshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 146.
Gruffudd Maclor, called Gruffudd de Bromfield, 145.
- Bronllys (Broynles), Brecknockshire, where a castle of Walter de Clifford; fire there, and death of Mabel, lord of Brecheiniog, 31.
- Brutus, great-grandson of Æneas, leader of the Trojans into Britain, 178, 193.
his three sons, and division of Britain amongst them, 178.
- Brychan (Brechanus), the ancient lord of Brecheiniog, from whom its name; his 24 daughters all saints, 31;
many churches of Wales dedicated in their names, 32.
- Brynach (Bernacus), St., his well in province of Kemmes, 111.
- Buellt, a province of the lord of Radnor, 16.
- Bury St. Edmund's, miracles at, 24.

C.

- Cadair Arthur (Kaerarthur), or the Van, Brecknockshire, 36.
- Cadell, son of Rhodri Mawr, prince of South Wales, 166.
of all Wales, 167.
- Cador, his gift of tithes to archbishop Baldwin, 73.
his release from penance, 74.
- Cadwalader, son of Gruffudd ab Cynan, and brother of Owain Gwynedd;
his tomb in Bangor cathedral, 133.
his great generosity, 145.
- Cadwallon, son of Caradog ab Iestin; kills his brother Owain; the divine judgment upon him, 69.
- Caeo (Kaoc?), a comot of cantrev Mawr Caermarthenshire, according to Giraldus (34, n. 1); the sole possession of prince Gruffudd ab Rhys, temp. Henry I., 34.
vengeance on men of, 81.
- Caerleon (Kaerleon, or Legionum urbs), Monmouthshire, built by the Romans; has many remains of Roman magnificence, baths, temples, theatres, aqueducts, &c., 55.
Julius and Aaron martyred at; its three ancient churches; Arthur's famous court at, 56.
metropolitan see translated from, to St. David's, 56, 101, 120.
anciently the royal court of South Wales, 169.
- Caernarthen (Kaermerdin, &c.), the city of Merlin, 80, 133, 172.
its Roman remains, 80.
Henry II. at, 62, 138.
- Cæsar, quoted, 185.
- Calchas, the Trojan prophet, 196.
- Caldey island, or Ynys P'yr, off Pembrokeshire, 92.
- Camros (Kanros), Pembrokeshire, archbishop Baldwin passes through, 99.
bloody vengeance at, on men of Rhos, temp. Stephen, 100.
- Canterbury, archbishops of. See Thomas, Richard, Baldwin, Hubert, Stephen Langton.
- Cantrev, the word explained, 127, 169.
- Cantrev Bychan (Cantrebochan, or Cantrefbochan), a hundred of Caernarthen; its mountains, 36.
where source of the river Usk, 61, 171.
ebbing well in, 81.
- Cantrev Mawr (Kantrefmaur), a hundred of Caernarthen; its woods a safe refuge to the Welsh, 80.
the dean of, 81.
divided from cantrev Bychan by the river Tywi, 172.
from Ceredigion by the river Teivi, 173.

- Caradog ab Iestin, sons of, 69.
- Caradog, St. (Karadocus), hermit at St. Ismael's, Pembrokeshire; marvels at his funeral, 86.
buried at St. David's, 87.
- Cardiff (Kaerdif, Kerdif), Glamorgan-shire; its noble castle, 62.
William, earl of Gloucester, lord of Morganwg, taken prisoner in, 63.
Henry II.'s strange visitor and warning at, in 1172, after paying his devotions in chapel of St. Pyran, 64.
- Cardigan. For town see Aberteivi; for province, Ceredigion.
- Carnarvon castle (Kairarvon, or Castrum de Arvon), 124.
- Carn Madryn (Karnmadrun), castle, in Lleyn, Carnarvonshire, 123.
- Cassandra, of Troy, her prophecies, 196.
- Castor, the, of Eastern lands, how it castrates itself, 117. See Beaver.
- Catulus, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Celidonia silva, a wood in Scotland, from which Merlin Silvester received his other name of Celidonius, 133.
- Cenarth (Kenarthmaur), Caermarthenshire; fishery, church, well, &c., of St. Llawddog at, 114.
- Ceredigion (Keredigiaun, Kerdigan, &c., or Keretica regio), province of South Wales; Richard de Clare, lord of, 47.
archbishop Baldwin escorted through, by prince Rhys, 122.
its pleasant plains and sea coast, 176.
- Châteauroux, Berry (Castellum Radulfi), revenge of a prisoner confined at, 84.
the monastery called De Doloribus at, 85.
- Cheese from deer's milk, 141.
- Chester (Cestria, or Legionum urbs), archbishop Baldwin keeps Easter at, 139, 142.
the emperor Henry V. died at, 139.
and king Harold, 140.
the half-deer cow at, and half-ape dogs, and handless sempstress, 141.
- Chester, countess of, makes cheese from deer's milk, 141.
- Christiana, cousin and wife of Owain Gwynedd; the marriage incestuous, and the sons illegitimate, 133, 134.
- Christianity, introduction of, into Britain, 202.
- Churches, crosses, &c., often struck by lightning; Abelard's retort on a Jew, who objected this against the Christian faith, 95.
- Churches of Wales, rights of sanctuary of, especially in the more ancient and venerated ones, 203.
- Church benefices in Wales, divided amongst the chief men of the several parishes; hereditary succession to; the latter abuse prevalent in Bretagne also, 214.
- Cicero, quoted, 30, 117, 149, 164 (under name of Seneca), 189.
instances of his witticisms from Macrobius, 192.
- Cilgerran (Kilgarran), Pembrokeshire, fishery on the river Teivi near, 114.
- Cistercians. See Monastic orders. Retort of a Cistercian abbot on a French knight, 96.
- Clare, Richard de, lord of Ceredigion, killed, in 1136, in the vale of the Gronwy, 47, 118.
- Claudian, quoted, 211.
- Cledauc, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Cleddy, or Cleddau (Cleden), rivers of Pembrokeshire, 82.
their sources and courses, 172.
- Clement, prior of Llantoni, 39.
- Clifford, Walter de, his castle at Bronllys, Brecknockshire, 31.
- Clugniaes. See Monastic orders.
- Clwyd (Clويد, or Cloit), river, Denbighshire and Flintshire, 137, 176.
- Coleshill (Coleshulle), Flintshire, the wood of, 137, 176.
Henry II. defeated at, in 1157, 130, 137.

Constantine, emperor, leaves the western empire, with Rome, to pope Silvester and his successors; purposes to refound Troy as the seat of the eastern empire, but is warned to fix on Byzantium instead, 215.

Conway (Cunewe), river, Carnarvonshire, 133, 136, 176.

Coracles of the Welsh described, 201.

Corineus, from whom the name of Cornwall, 165.

Cornwall, so called from Corineus, Britons of, 165.
language of, very like Welsh, 177.

Court, followers of the, their vain labours, compared to losing gamblers, 6.

Cow, the half-deer, at Chester, 141.

Crug Mawr, a hill in Pembrokeshire, near Cardigan, its wonderful tomb, 118.

Curig (Cyricius), St., his crosier and its virtues, 17.
works its cures only on payment of a penny, 18.

Cydweli (Kedwely), Caermarthenshire, archbishop Baldwin at castle of, 78.
Gwenllian, wife of Gruffudd ab Rhys, killed near, in battle in 1136, 79.

Cymraeg (Kembraec), the Welsh language; the word derived by some from "Kam Græcum," i.e. "distortum Græcum," 178.

Cynan (Cananus, or Chananus), the sons of, lords of Meirionydd, 122. See Meirionydd.

Cynan (Cunanus), abbot of Margan, 67.

Cynan (Kanaus), abbot of Whitland, 59.

Cynawg (Kanaucus), St., torque of, 25, 112.

Cynvrig (Kenewricus), son of Rhys ab Gruffudd, meets archbishop Baldwin; description of him, his dress, &c., 119.

D.

Daniel, St., bishop and patron saint of Bangor, 124, 170.
buried in Bardsey island, 124.

David, St., first archbishop and patron saint of St. David's, 102, 169.
translated the metropolitan see from Caerleon to St. David's, 56, 101.
his sanctity and miracles; his successors, archbishops, 102.
rising of hill under his feet at Llanddewi Brefi, 102, 120.
his hand-bell at Glasewn, 18.

David II., bishop of St. David's (Giral-dus's uncle on his mother's side), 24, 104.
persecuted by Mahel, lord of Brech-ciniog, 31.
how tricked by a priest, 73.

David, son of Owain Gwynedd by his cousin Christiana, married to a sister of Henry II., expelled from North Wales by his nephew Llywelyn, 134.
in possession of Rhuddlan castle in 1188, where he entertains archbishop Baldwin, 137.
an ally of the English, 145.
his descent from Rhodri Mawr, 167.
lord of Tegeingl, 190.

Dean (Danubia), forest, supplies Gloucester with venison and iron, 55.

Dee (Deia), river, called Dwfyr Dwy by the Welsh, its source, &c., separates North Wales from England, 139, 176.

Deer, their great abundance in England, so as to trample men and dogs under foot, 182.
cheese from milk of, 141.
cross between cow and deer, 141.

Deheubarth, the Welsh name for South Wales, 34, 166.

- Descriptio Kambrie*, the first edition of this treatise dedicated to archbishop Hubert; a dedication also, but probably no new edition, to bishop Hugh of Lincoln; the second edition dedicated to archbishop Stephen Langton, 155 and notes.
the dedication to Stephen Langton some time after the dedication to him of the Itinerary, 156, l. 1.
- Dengleddy, or Daugleddau, a cantrev of Dyved; meaning of the name, 82, 172.
- Deutraeth (Deutrait), a newly built castle in Carnarvonshire, 123.
- Devonshire, its language the purest English, 177.
- Diabolus; Daiville, or De Eyville probably; the name of a dean of Salop, 146, n. 4.
- Dinas Emrys, Carnarvonshire, where Merlin prophesied before Vortigern, 133.
- Dinefwr, or Dinevor (Dynewr, &c.), castle, Caermarthenshire, the royal court of South Wales, 80, 81, 169, 172.
- Divination from shoulder bone of a ram, 87, &c.
- Diviners, called Awenyddion, 194.
- Doe, with buck's horns, 17.
- Dogs, their attachment to man, 70.
their tracing their master by scent, 71.
duel between a dog and a man, 70.
a sporting king rescued from captivity by dogs, 71.
tailless dogs of Anglesey, 131.
half-ape dogs at Chester, 141.
See Greyhound.
- Doithwal, archbishop of St. Davids, 102.
- Dol, in Bretagne; Sampson, archbishop of St. David's, becomes bishop of, hence the archbishops of, 103.
- Dreams, value of, 111.
death-bed dream of archbishop Richard of Canterbury, 150.
- Dubritius, archbishop of Caerleon, resigns in favour of St. David, who translates the metropolitan see to St. David's, 56, 101, 120.
- Dyfan, St. (Duvianus), missionary into Britain from pope Eleutherius, 202.
- Dyganwy (Dugannu) castle, Carnarvonshire, 136, 176.
- Dysynwy (Dyssenyth), river, Merionethshire, 124, 176.
- Dyved (Demetia, or Demetia provincia), a province of South Wales; its seven cantrevs, 93, 166.
its pleasant plains and sea coast, 176.
- Dyvi, or Dovey (Devi), river, separating North and South Wales, 122, 176.

E.

- Ebwy (Nant Pencarn), river, Monmouthshire, 62, n. 1. See Pencarn.
- Einion (Eneas), son of Einion Clud (Claudius), prince of Elvael, takes the cross, 14.
- Einion ab Rhys (Eneas filius Resi), lord of Gwerthrynion, 17.
- Eivionydd (Evionyth), a district of Carnarvonshire, 123.
- Elave, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Elduven, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Elennith, the Welsh name, according to Giraldus, of the Plinlimmon range of mountains, 119, 138; the great mountain range of South Wales, 170; where rise the rivers Severn and Wye, 171, and the Teivi, 173.
- Eleutherius, pope; sends missionaries into Britain, to king Lucius, 202.
- Elijah and Enoch, forerunners of the second coming of Christ, 199.
- Elined (Aelivedha), St., daughter of Brychan; her church near Brecknock; strange frenzies of the worshippers on her feast-day, 32.
- Eliodorus, his abode with fairies when a boy, 75.
afterwards a priest, relates his fairy experiences to the bishop of St. David's, 77.

- Elise (Elisset), prince of part of Powys ;
meets archbishop Baldwin at Oswestry, 142.
- Eliud, or Theliau, archbishop of St.
David's, 102.
- Eludged, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Eluin, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Elvael (Elevemia, Elvail), province of, 14, 18, 19, 146.
bursting of two lakes in, 19.
- Elwaid, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Eneuris, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- English, cold in nature from their cold northern Saxon origin, 193.
language, of, purest in the south, especially in Devonshire ; that of the north being corrupted by the Danish, &c., invaders, 177.
the English books of Bede, Rabanus, and Alfred written in this southern idiom, 178.
- Enocus, abbot of Strata Marcella ; his fall, and repentance, 59.
- Enodius, quoted, 224.
- Erchembald, a knight of Devon ; inherits a bodily defect from his father, 131.
his son the same, 132.
- Erchenfield, or Ergyng (Ergengel), a district now of Herefordshire ; once in diocese of St. David's, 169.
- Ernisius, a priest, one of the two original founders of Llantoni abbey, 40.
- Eruin, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Ethenoweyn, son of Withfoit, lay abbot of Llanbadarn, 121.
- Eweny (Ewennith), Glamorganshire ; cell of St. Peter's, Gloucester, 67.
- Ewyas, Payn Fitz-John, lord of, 34. mountains of, 36.
valley of, in which Llantoni abbey, 37.
- Eapugnatio Hibernica*, in two distinctions ;
two years labour over it, 155.
quoted, or repeated from, 99, 100, 107, 162, 219, 222.
- F.
- Fabius, Quintilian (?), quoted, 4.
- Fairies, description of, by a priest, who had lived with them when a boy, 75.
their language very like Greek, 77.
- Ffagan (Faganus), missionary from pope Eleutherius into Britain, 202.
- Fish, of the Wye and Usk, 33.
one-eyed, in a Snowdon lake, 136.
cast on shore in a storm on the Pembrokehire coast, 100.
battle of, in pond near Seez, 19.
- Fitz-Alan, William, entertains archbishop Baldwin sumptuously at Oswestry, 142.
- Fitz-John, Payn, lord of Ewyas, 34.
- Fitz-Martin, William, son-in-law of prince Rhys ab Gruffudd, 111.
deprived of Nevern castle, 112.
- Fitz-Stephen, Robert, son of the princess Nest ; first invader of Ireland, 130.
his narrow escape in Anglesey in 1157, when his brother Henry, son of king Henry I. killed, 131.
- Fitz-Tancarad, Richard. See Tancarad.
- Fitz-William, Gerald, his death, and vengeance thereupon on men of Rhos, 99.
- Flemings, colony of, in Pembrokehire ; their gallantry in war, and commercial industry, 83.
their divinations from shoulder-bone of a ram, 87.
- Forests, ancient, laid bare on coast of Pembrokehire, in the winter of 1171-2, 100.
- Foster fathers, princes of Wales in habit of committing their sons to the care of ;
ill consequences therefrom, 211, 225.
- Franks, a Trojan colony, under Antenor, 193.
- Fratricides, frequent in Wales, 211, 216, 225. caused especially by the customs of gavelkind and foster-fathering, 211, 225.

- Frederick I., Roman emperor, 13.
 his impediments on the way to the Holy Land, 147.
 Fulke, Master, his expostulation with Richard I., 44.

G.

- Gavelkind, custom of, prevalent in Wales, 69, l. 12 ; 134, l. 15.
 ill consequences of it, 211, 225.
 Geoffrey, bishop of St. David's, temp. John, 104.
 Geoffrey's British History, how treated by evil spirits, 58.
 fabulous and lying, 179.
 quoted, 80, 101, 215.
 Germans, their cold nature, from their cold northern locality, 193.
 Germanus, St., of Auxerre, roots out the Pelagian heresy in Britain, 120, 202.
 Welsh customs handed down from his teaching, 202.
 Gildas, taken by Giraldus as his model in writing history, 158.
 never has a good word to say of his countrymen, 208.
 wrote a history of Arthur and his exploits, but destroyed it, 209.
 quoted, 207, 208.
 Giraldus Cambrensis ; Manorbier castle, Pembrokeshire, his birth-place, 93.
 of English and Welsh descent, 226, l. 4. calls himself archdeacon of St. David's (archidiaconus Menevensis), 82, 110, 119, 124, 144.
 the first person in Wales to take the cross, 14.
 wonderful effect of his preaching, 83.
 his gracious sermons at Shrewsbury, 144.
 left by the archbishop to preach at St. David's, 110.

Giraldus Cambrensis—cont.

- finds a copy of Merlin Silvester's prophecies at Nefyn, Carnarvonshire, 124.
 his observations on dogs, 71.
 quotes his own poetry as that of a "quidam sapiens," 51, n. 3.
 his devotion to literature, 7, 163.
 blamed for it, 162.
 blamed for his choice of subjects, 156.
 his reply to this, 157.
 expects no reward for his labour, 162.
 takes Gildas for his model, 158.
 wrote the Top. Hib. for Henry II., the Exp. Hib. for Richard, 7 ; giving three years' labour to the first, two years to the second, 155.
 presents a copy of the Topographia to archbishop Baldwin, 20.
 his purposed Topography of Great Britain, 12, n. 1 ; 158, 208. See vol. V., 162, 403.
 his purposed De Principis Instructione, 8, 53, 66, 158.
 his purposed Speculum Ecclesie (Liber de ecclesiasticis ordinibus), 47.
 Glamorganshire (Wlatmorgan), coast road through, 138.
 called the "maritima dextralis Kambricæ via," at p. 62.
 Glanville, Ralph de, accompanied archbishop Baldwin as far as Radnor, 14, 16.
 Glasbury (Glasbiria), Brecknockshire, 21.
 Glasewm, Radnorshire, St. David's handbell in church of, 18.
 Gloucester (Glovernia, or Claudiocestria), supplied with venison and iron from the forest of Dean (Danubia), 55.
 Llantoni abbey near, founded, 40.
 Gogaun, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
 Goldeliff, on the Severn, not far from Caerleon, why so called, 56.
 Gorwist, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
 Gospel of St. John, powerful against evil spirits ; of St. Matthew, used by St. Barnabas to cure the sick, 58.

- Gower. See Gwhyr.
- Grayling (Umbraë, or Thymalli), a fish of the river Wye; plentiful at Milan, and extolled by St. Ambrose, 33.
- Gregory, St., quoted, 44, 147.
- Greyhound, gallantry of a, in defence of his master, 69.
instance of one watching his master's dead body for eight days, 138.
- Gronwy (Wroneu), wood of, and bad pass, 47.
- Gruffudd ab Cynan (filius Canani Griphinus), meets archbishop Baldwin at Towyn, Merionethshire, 122.
- Gruffudd ab Llywelyn, sovereign of all Wales in middle of 11th century; his granddaughter wife of Bernard de Newmarch, 28.
- Gruffudd ab Madog, prince of part of Powys; generally known as Gruffudd Maelor; meets archbishop Baldwin at Oswestry; abjures his consin wife, 142.
called Gruffudd de Bromfield, 145.
his great generosity, 145.
- Gruffudd ab Rhys (Griphinus filius Resi), prince of South Wales, possessed of only one comot, in Henry I.'s time, 34.
testimony of the wild fowl of Llyn Savaddan to his rightful princship, 34.
death of his wife Gwenllian, and a son, in battle, 1136; another son being taken prisoner, 79.
his defeat of the English near Cardigan, after death of Henry I., 118.
- Gruffudd, son of Rhys ab Gruffudd, 111.
has Nevern castle given him, 112.
- Gwaidanus, dean of cantrev Mawr, his trick upon an envoy of Henry II., 81.
- Guianus, bishop of Bangor, entertains archbishop Baldwin; is compelled to take the cross, 125, and n. 3.
- Gurnuen, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Guy de Lusignan, king of Jerusalem, 13.
- Gwendraeth (Wendraith), rivers of Caermarthenshire, 78, 172.
- Gwenllian (Gwendoloena, or Guenliana), daughter of Madog prince of Powys, wife of prince Rhys ab Gruffudd; dissuades her husband from taking the cross, 15.
- Gwenllian, wife of Gruffudd ab Rhys, prince of South Wales; her death in battle, in 1136, 79.
- Gwent (Guinta, or Winta), chieftains of, treacherously slaughtered in 1175, in Abergavenni castle, 49, n. 2.
men of, warlike, most skilful archers, 54, 177.
- Gwent Iscoed (Winta inferior), ravaged by Howel ab Iorwerth of Caerleon, 60.
incubus demon in, 60.
- Gwerthrynion (Warthrenniaun), province of, 17, 19.
- Gwhyr, or Gower (Goer, Goher), province, 9, 73, 138.

H.

Haernneu, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

Hafren (Haveren), the Welsh name of the river Severn; from Hafren, daughter of Loerinus, who was drowned in it by her step-mother, 171.

Hagurnel, Gilbert, gives birth to a calf, 28.

Harold, his adoption of the Welsh mode of warfare, and complete subjugation of Wales; many memorial stones testifying his victories, 217.

escaped, badly wounded, from the battle of Hastings; fled to Chester, where he lived as a holy anchorite, and where he died, 140.

Harp, general use of, in Wales, 183.

Hastings, Harold escaped, badly wounded, from battle of, 140.

- Haverfordwest, Pembrokeshire, sermons at, by archbishop Baldwin and Giraldus, 82.
miracle at, 83.
stratagem of a prisoner in castle of, 84.
- Hay (Haia or Haya), Brecknockshire, sermon at, 20.
- Hector, a taker of the cross at Radnor, 16.
this a regular Welsh name, derived from their Trojan ancestors, 194.
- Helen (Helena nostra), mother of Constantine, 207.
- Helenus, son of Priam, 196.
- Henry I., places a colony of Flemings in Pembrokeshire, 83.
Wales fully subjected by him, 103.
gives the heiress of Bernard de Newmarch to Milo son of Walter the constable of Gloucester, 29.
lakes bursting on night of his death, 19.
- Henry II., his expedition into North Wales in 1157, 130, 137.
sends a fleet to Anglesey, which is driven off, with much loss; his son Henry, by the princess Nest, being killed, 130.
his expedition into South Wales in 1163, 62, 138, 227.
his passage then over Nant Pencarn, and Merlin Silvester's prophecy, 62.
trick played upon his messenger to Dinevor castle by the dean of cantrev Mawr, 81.
an old Welshman's reply to him as to subduing Wales, 227.
his expedition into Powys in 1165, 138, 143.
reasons of his bad success in these expeditions, 138.
his Norway hawk and the Pembroke falcon, on his way to Ireland in 1171, 99.
at St. David's, on his return from Ireland in 1172, the speaking stone, the abusive Welsh woman, 107-9.
his strange visitor, and warning, at Cardiff, 64.
- Henry II.—cont.
rebellion of his sons, 1173, 65.
proceeds to Ronen, besieged by the king of France, 1174, 60.
orders the treacherous slaughter of the chieftains of Gwent in Abergavenni castle in 1175, 50, 51, n. 3.
his usurpations of church property 22; how rebuked for this by a Welsh chieftain, 145.
his letter to Manuel, emperor of Constantinople, containing a description of Britain, 181.
presage of his death, 19.
his obstinacy, and hardness of heart, and incorrigible contempt of all warnings to amend his life, 66.
the Topographia Hibernica written for him by Giraldus, 7.
- Henry V., Roman emperor; his last years of penitence, and death at Chester, 139.
- Henry, son of Henry I. by the princess Nest, killed in Anglesey in 1157, 130.
- Henry, son of Milo earl of Hereford, lord of Brecheiniog, 29.
- Hereford, archbishop Baldwin sets out from, on his progress through Wales, 13; and returns to, after his circuit, 146.
- Hereford, Henry de, uncle of William de Braose, killed by the men of Gwent, 51, n. 3.
- Hermits, of Wales, 204.
- Hildebert of Mans, quoted, 214.
- Hodni (Hotheni), river, Brecknockshire, 20.
- Hodni (Hotheni), river, Monmouthshire, 37.
- Horace, quoted, 42, 50, 74, 81, 164, 193, 201, 205, 210, 221.
- Horn, of St. Patrick, brought into Wales, 26; how a man punished for presuming to sound it; its spontaneous melody, 27.
- Horses, noble breed of, in Powys, from horses imported from Spain, 143.

- Howden, Yorkshire, miracle at, 24.
tomb of St. Osana, sister of king Osred, in church of, 24.
- Howel ab Iorwerth (Hoelus filius Iereverdi), of Caerleon, ravages Gwent Iscoed, 60. occupies Usk castle; mortally wounded at its re-capture, 61.
an ally of the English, 145.
- Howel ab Maredudd (Hoelus filius Moreduci), of Brecheiniog, lays the province waste, 21.
his onslaught on the English, upon death of Henry I., 78.
- Hubert, archbishop of Canterbury, the promoter of Geoffrey to the bishoprick of St. David's, 104.
the first edition of the Descriptio Cambriae dedicated to him, 155, notes.
- Hugh, bishop of Lincoln, second edition of the Itinerary dedicated to him, 3, n. 1; 7, n. 3; 13, n. 2.
a copy, or possibly new edition, of the Description of Wales addressed to him, 155, notes.
- Hugh, a chaplain in Brecknock castle; his vision about William de Braose, 21.
- Hugh, earl of Shrewsbury, conqueror of Anglesey, temp. Rufus, 128; his pollution of a church, his death, 129.

I.

- Iestin, the sons of, lay waste Brecheiniog, 21.
- Iewan, bishop of St. David's, one night only, 104.
- Iltydd (Eltutus), St., hermit at Llanhamlech, Brecknockshire; his half-stag horse, 28.
- Incestuous marriages, viz. of cousins; these common in Wales, 133, 134, 213.
common in Bretagne also, 214.

- Incubus demon, in Gwent Iscoed, 60.
the son of one a valuable household servant, 96.
Merlin begotten by one, 133.
- Iorwerth Drwyndwn (Ierverdus Troyn-dun), the only legitimate son of Owain Gwynedd, 134.
- Isaac, emperor of Constantinople, 13.
- Israelites; the ten tribes shut up by Alexander the Great in the Caspian mountains, 199.
- Ivor Bach (Yvor modicus), lord of Senghennydd, surprises Cardiff castle, and captures earl William of Gloucester, his wife, and son, 63.

J.

- Jerome, St., the comparative value of his writings and the riches of Cræsus, 5.
quoted, 78, 197.
- Jerusalem, kingdom of, conquered by Saladin, 13.
Guy de Lusignan, king of, 13.
- Jew, Abelard's retort upon a, objecting against the Christian faith the fact of churches, &c. being struck by lightning, 95.
witticism of a, travelling in company with an archdeacon and dean of Salop, 146.
- Joseth, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Julius, St., one of the first British martyrs, at Caerleon; his church there, 56.
- Juvenal, quoted, 7, 30, 117.

K.

- Kamber, son of Brutus, king of Wales, from him called Kambria, 178.
- Kemmes (Kemmeis), a hundred of Dyved; noteworthy events in, 110-112.
Llanhyver its principal castle, 111.

Kenelm, St., 25.

Kenen, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

Kuiehm, bishop of St. David's, 104.

L.

Lacy, Hugh de, first patron of Llantoni abbey, 40.

Lakes, bursting of two, in Elvael, 19.

changes of colour in water of, 21, 35.

lake with floating island on Snowdon, 135 ; another with one-eyed fish, 136.

Lampeter. See Llanbedr.

Laugharne. See Talacharn.

Lay abbots, frequent in Wales and Ireland, 120.

Lechlavar, i. e., Llech Llafar, the speaking stone, at St. David's, 107.

Leominster (Leonis monasterium), Herefordshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 146.

Leudiwit, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

Light-armed troops, adopted by Harold in his subjugation of Wales, 217.

necessity of, in Welsh warfare, 220.

Literature, decay of, 4.

no value for, amongst great men, 161, &c.

labours attending it, 163.

but such labours delightful, 164.

Llanafan Fawr (Lanavan), Brecknockshire, punishment of irreverence in church of, 16.

Llanbadarn Fawr (Lanpadern Maur), Benedictine abbey, Cardiganshire, archbishop Baldwin at; its lay abbots, 120.

a cell of St. Peter's, Gloucester; once a cathedral church, 121.

Llanbedr Pont Stephan, or Lampeter (Pons Stephani), Cardiganshire, archbishop Baldwin at, preaches there, 119.

VOL. VI.

Llandaf (Landaph, Landavensis sedes), Glamorganshire; William, bishop of, accompanied archbishop Baldwin through his diocese, 55; entertains him at Llandaf, 67.

extent of diocese of, from Abergavenni to river Neath, 73.

number of cantreys in diocese, 170.

archbishop Baldwin celebrates mass at the high altar of the cathedral, 67.

Llanddewi Brefi (Brevi, or Landewi Brevi), Cardiganshire, archbishop Baldwin passes through, 119.

rising of hill at, under St. David's feet, 102, 119; at the great council against the Pelagian heresy, 120.

Llanddud (Landu), Brecknockshire, where Giraldus's prebendal residence; sermon at, 20.

Giraldus's love of the place, 47.

Llanfaes (Lanmays), Brecknockshire, miraculous punishment of a boy for robbing a pigeon's nest in church of, 23.

Llanfair (Lanmeir), Merionethshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 122.

Llanhamlech (Lanhamelach), Brecknockshire, where St. Ilydd a hermit, 28.

Llaningad, or Dingatstow (Landinegath), near Monmouth; Ralph Poer building a castle at, defeated and killed by the men of Gwent, 52.

Llanstephan (Landestephan), Caermarthenshire; castle of, taken by Rhys ab Gruffudd, on death of Henry II., 80.

Llantoni (Lanthotheni, or Landewi Nanthotheni) abbey, in vale of Ewyas, Monmouthshire; its site described, 37.

first founded by two hermits, 37; viz. William a knight, and Ernisius a priest, 40.

Hugh de Lacy their patron, 40.

a house of Austin Canons, 41.

bishop Roger of Salisbury's high admiration of it, 39.

S

Llantoni—cont.

- supplanted by the daughter house near Gloucester, 38; of which Milo, earl of Hereford, the founder, 40.
- its priors, 39.
- Parian, or free-stone, at, of which the church "egregie constructa," 45.
- Llawddog (Leudocus), St., his church, mill, &c., at Cenarth, Caermarthenshire, 114.
- Llawhaden, or Llanaeddau (Lanwadein), Pembrokeshire, 82.
- Lleurwg ab Coel (Lucius), king of Britain, sends to pope Eleutherius for missionaries, 202.
- Lleyn (Lhein), a province of Carnarvonshire, 123.
- Llychwr, or Loughor (Locher, Lochur), river, Caermarthenshire, 78, 172.
- Llyvni (Leveni), river, running through Brecknock Mere, 21.
- Llywel (Luel), Brecknockshire, church of, burnt, 18.
- Llywelyn (Luelinus), son of Iorwerth Drwyndwn, prince of North Wales, expels his uncles who had invaded his inheritance, 134.
- Locrinus, son of Brutus, king of Loegria, 178.
- Loegria, i.e. the part of Britain between the Humber and Severn, 178.
- London, Maurice de, lord of Cydweli; defeats the princess Gwenllian, in 1136, 79.
- trick put upon him by his wife, 79.
- Loughor, river. See Llychwr.
- Lucan, quoted, 42, 180, 187, 207, 209, 213.
- Lucius. See Lleurwg.
- Ludlow, Shropshire, its noble castle; archbishop Baldwin at, 146.
- Lunuerc, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Lupus of Troyes, his mission into Britain with Germanus, 202.

M.

- Macrobius, quoted, 192.
- Madog (Maidocus), prince of part of Powys; his daughter Gwenllian, wife of prince Rhys ab Gruffudd, 15.
- his sons, 142.
- Maelgwm (Mailgo), king of Britain, his sinfulness, 215.
- Maelgwm ab Cadwallon, prince of Maelienydd, takes the cross, 16.
- Maelgwm, son of Gruffudd ab Rhys, taken prisoner, in 1136, 79.
- Maelgwm, son of Rhys ab Gruffudd, has Nevern castle, 112.
- resolves to accompany archbishop Baldwin to Henry II.'s court, 119, 122.
- discovers a ford over the river Maw, 122.
- Maelienydd (Mailenia, or Mailenith), province, 16, 19, 138, 146.
- Maenor Pyr, or Manorbeer (Maynaurpir), castle, Pembrokeshire; description of, 92.
- Giraldus's native place, the most delightful spot of all Wales, 93.
- Magnus of Norway, leader of an expedition against Anglesey in 1098, kills Hugh, earl of Shrewsbury, 129.
- Mahel, son of Bernard de Newmarch, disinherited; his Welsh mother falsely swearing that he was not his father's son, 29.
- Mahel, nephew of the above, son of Milo earl of Hereford, lord of Brecheiniog, 29.
- his cruelty, persecution of bishop of St. David's, and death, 31.
- Mailswid, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Mala Platea, an "arcta via et prærupta" between Shrewsbury and Wenlock, 146.
- Malpas (Malus Passus), Cheshire, 146.
- Man (Mania), isle of, 127.

- Mangunel, William, and his incestuous wife, 87.
- Manual, emperor of Constantinople, writes to Henry II., asking for a description of Britain, 181.
- Marches of Wales, the troops of, the best for Welsh or Irish warfare, 220.
the counsels of the lord marchers ought to have been followed in Welsh matters instead of that of Angevins and Normans, 219, 220.
- Maredudd (Moreducus, or Meredutius), son of Caradog ab Iestin, 69.
- Maredudd, son of Cynan, meets archbishop Baldwin near Llanfair, Merionethshire, 123.
- Maredudd ab Gruffudd, nephew of Owain Gwynedd, a prince in South Wales, his early death, 145. [This was Maredudd, son of Gruffudd ab Rhys, prince of Ceredigion and Dyved, who died in 1154, according to the Brut y Tywysogion, in the 25th year of his age.]
- Margan, Cistercian abbey, Glamorganshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 67.
its great charities, &c., 67, &c.
punishments of enemies of, 68.
miracles at, 68.
- Marriage, without previous cohabitation, unusual in Wales, 213.
girls hired from their parents on trial, 214.
incestuous marriages with cousins frequent, 213.
- Marseilles (Marsilia), archbishop Baldwin sails from, to Palestine, 151.
- Martial, quoted, 162.
- Maud, the empress, makes Milo lord of Brecheiniog earl of Hereford, 29.
- Maw (Mavia, or Man), river, Merionethshire, 176.
a bifurcate river; crossed by archbishop Baldwin; a ford over it found, near the sea, 122.
- Maximus, exhausts the strength of Britain, by his levies of all the young men, 203.
- Maximus—cont.
colonizes Bretagne with his British soldiers, 166.
- Meilyr (Meilerius), a prophet and wise man at Caerleon, his great familiarity with evil spirits, 57, 60.
his description of them; his power of detecting falsehood, 58.
his information from them of the sins of two abbots, 59.
his prophetic assurances to Howel ab Iorwerth, 60.
- Meirionydd (Merionyth, &c.), the southern province of North Wales, in diocese of Bangor, 122.
its rugged and mountainous character, 123, 177.
use in, of long lances, 123, 177.
called "Terra filiorum Canani," 122, or "Terra Canani," 122, 134, 177.
- Mercros, Philip de, a knight in attendance on Henry II., in 1172, 65.
- Merlin Ambrosius, begotten by an incubus demon at Caermarthen, 80, 133.
prophecies before Vortigern, at Dinas Emrys, 133.
foretold the translation of the metropolitan see from Caerleon to St. David's, 56.
foretold the coming of the Saxons, and of the Normans, 196.
foretells the recovery of Britain by the Britons of Wales, 216.
himself and his prophecies defended, 197, 199.
- Merlin Silvester, or Celidonius, origin of the two names; lived in the time of Arthur, 133.
a copy of his prophecies found by Giraldus at Nevin, Carnarvonshire, 124.
prophecy of, as to the ford of Nant Pencarn, 62.
foretold the coming of the Saxons, and of the Normans, 196.
himself and his prophecies defended, 199.
- Merioneth. See Meirionydd.

- Mervyn, son of Rhodri Mawr, prince of North Wales, 166, 167.
- Milan (Mediolanum), grayling a plentiful fish at, 33.
- Milo, son of Walter the constable of Gloucester, marries the daughter and heiress of Bernard de Newmarch, and in her right becomes lord of Brecheiniog, 29, 34.
their five sons, 29.
made earl of Hereford by the empress Mand, 29.
founder of Llantoni abbey, near Gloucester, 40.
- Miracles; at Llanfaes, 23; at Bury St. Edmund's, 24; at Howden, 24; at Wincheombe, 25; at Margan abbey, 68; at Haverford, 83; of St. David, 102; at spot near Cardigan, where archbishop Baldwin preached, 113; miraculous stone of Anglesey, 128.
- Mon (Monia), Anglesey, number of vills and cantrevs in; character of; its great fertility in grain, 127, 177.
miraculous stone of; the hill of hearers, 128.
Hugh de Montgomery's mad dogs, in church of St. Tyfrydog of, 129.
English power in lost, after Hugh's death in 1098, 129.
fleet sent against, by Henry II., in 1157, and gallantly repulsed, 130.
tailless dogs in, 131.
archbishop Baldwin at, 126.
- Monastic orders; the Austin canons the best, 41, 46.
Benedictines wealthy and luxurious, 41.
Cistercians avaricious and grasping, 41, 43, 96; but most abstinent and charitable, 43, 46.
Clugniacs and Cistercians compared; extravagance and gluttony, and cruel uncharitableness of the former, 45, 46.
- Monmouth (Monemuta, or Munemuta), 51, 55.
- Montgomery (Mungumeri), Ernulf de, founder of Pembroke castle, 89.
Hugh de, earl of Shrewsbury. See Hugh.
- Morgan ab Owain, of Caerleon, and Iorwerth his brother, slay Richard de Clare in 1136, 48.
- Morgan, son of Caradog ab Iestin, 69.
archbishop Baldwin's guide on coast of Glamorgan, 72.
- Morgan, son of Gruffudd ab Rhys, killed in battle in 1136, 79.
- Morgenennith, Bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Morgeneu, bishop of St. David's; the first of them to eat flesh; killed by pirates; his vision to a bishop of Ireland, 104.
- Moruge mountains; the Plinlimmon range so called by the English, 119, 170.
See Elenith.
- Morwal, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- Murrough (Murchardus), prince of Leinster, his remark on William Rufus's threat of invading Ireland, 110.
- Music, skill of the Welsh in, 186.
- Musical instruments, three used by the Welsh, viz., "cithara," "tibiae," and "chorus," 187.

N.

- Nathan, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Nedd, or Neath (Neth), river, Glamorganshire, its quicksands, 72.
its source, &c., 172.
abbey, 73, 172; castle, 172.
- Nefern, or Nevern (Nanhever), the principal castle of the cantrev of Kemmes, Pembrokeshire, 111.
taken by prince Rhys from William Fitz-Martin, his son-in-law, and given to his son Gruffudd, but soon after in the hands of his son Maelgwm, 112.
prince Rhys imprisoned in, 112.

Nefyn, or Nevin (Nevin, or Newein), Carnarvonshire, archbishop Baldwin preaches at, 124.

here Giraldus found his copy of Merlin Silvester's prophecies, 124.

Nergu, bishop of St. David's, 104.

Nest, daughter of Gruffudd ab Llywelyn, sovereign of Wales, 28.

Nest, her daughter, called Anneis by the English, wife of Bernard de Newmarch, 28, 29.

her adultery, and shameless perjury, 29.

Nest, sister of Gruffudd ab Rhys, prince of South Wales, wife of Girald de Windsor, constable of Pembroke castle, 91.

her son Henry, by Henry I., and another son, Robert Fitz-Stephen, 130.

Newgall (Neugol) sands, Pembrokeshire, 86.

denudation of an ancient forest at, 100.

Newmarch (de Novo Mercatu) Bernard de, the first Norman occupier of Brecheiniog; married Nest, granddaughter of Gruffudd ab Llywelyn, 28.

their son Mahel disinherited, 29.

their daughter and heiress given by Henry I. to Milo, afterwards earl of Hereford, 29.

Newport (Novus Burgus), Monmouthshire, 55, 61, 65.

Nightingale, never known in Wales, 125.

Northumberland, marvellous hill in, 129.

Not, William, of the province of Pembroke; his house troubled with unclean spirits, 93.

Novis, archbishop of St. David's, 102.

O.

Origen, quoted, 198.

Osana, St., sister of king Osred; her tomb in Howden church, and miracle at, 24.

Oswestry (Oswaldestreo), Shropshire, on the border of Powys; archbishop Baldwin sumptuously entertained at, by William Fitz-Alan, 142.

Ovid, quoted, 5, 6, 12, 41, 42, 43, 50, 95, 112, 137, 187, 216.

Owain (Oeneus), son of Caradog ab Iestin, killed by his brother Cadwallon, 69.
his faithful greyhound, 69.

Owain Cyveiliog (Oeneus de Keveiliauc), prince of a large part of Powys from about 1130 to 1197; his gift of talking, and his wise government; his adherence to and familiarity with Henry II., 144.

conspicuous for justice, &c., 145.

treacherously slays his cousin Owain ab Madog, 142.

excommunicated by archbishop Baldwin for not meeting him, 144.

Owain, son of Gruffudd ab Cynan, generally known as Owain Gwynedd, prince of North Wales, 1137-1169; his moderation and wisdom and trust in God, 144.

conspicuous for justice, &c., 145.

his tomb in Bangor cathedral, 133.

had been excommunicated by St. Thomas of Canterbury; archbishop Baldwin therefore directs his body to be removed from the church, 133.

his sons, Iorwerth Drwyndwn, David, Rhodri, 134.

his daughter Angharad, 142.

Owain ab Madog treacherously slain by Owain Cyveiliog his cousin, 142.

P.

- Parian, or free-stone, at Llantoni, 45.
- Paschal, pope, imprisoned by the emperor Henry V., 140.
- Patrick, St., horn of. See Horn.
- Payn Fitz-John, lord of Ewyas, 34.
- Peak, Derbyshire; deer of, trampling men and dogs to death, 182.
- Pebidiog, the district near St. David's, rocky and barren, 127.
- Peche (Peccatum), Richard, archdeacon of Salop, 145.
- Pelagian heresy, rooted out by St. Germanus of Auxerre, 120; and Lupus of Troyes, 202.
springs up again; council against, at which St. David made archbishop, 120.
- Pembroke, a province of Dyved, adjacent to province of Rhos, 89.
the most beautiful part of Dyved, 93.
its castle, the capital of Dyved, first built by Ernulf de Montgomery, 89.
the province ravaged by Rhys ab Gruffudd on death of Henry II., 80.
evil spirits of, 93.
falcons of, 99.
- Pencader, Caermarthenshire, where Rhys ab Gruffudd submitted to Henry II. in 1163, 81, 138.
- Pencarn, Nant, a river in Gwenllwg, near Newport, the river Ebwy probably; prophecy of Merlin Silvester as to, fulfilled in Henry II., 62.
- Penguern, or Shrewsbury, anciently the royal court of the principality of Powys, 81, 169.
- Pen y Crug (Crukeri castrum), at Old Radnor, 16.
- Percelly (Presseleu) mountains, Pembroke-shire, 111.
- Persius, quoted, 3.
- Peter, bishop of St. David's, temp. Henry II., 104.
takes the cross, 14.
- Peter, bishop of St. David's—cont.
with archbishop Baldwin on his progress; entertains him at St. David's, 100.
accompanied him as far as the river Dyvi, the boundary of his diocese, 122.
- Petronius, quoted, 42.
- Philip, king of France, 13.
- Pimble Mere (Pemmelesmere), or Bala lake, source of the river Dee, 139, 176.
- Pistildewi, a spring at St. David's, flowing with milk, 109.
- Pliny, quoted, 71.
- Ploughing, Welsh fashion of, 201.
- Poer, Ralph, "vicecomes" of Hereford, the contriver of the treacherous slaughter of the chieftains of Gwent in Abergavenni castle in 1175, 50, 51, n. 3. defeated and killed by the men of Gwent at Dingatstow in 1182, 52.
- Pont Stephan. See Llanbedr.
- Powys, one of the three principalities of Wales, 166, 143.
number of cantrevs in, 169.
princes of, 142.
its noble breed of horses from a Spanish stock, 143.
invaded by Henry II. in 1165, 138, 143.
- Priestholm, or Puffin island. See Ynys Glanach.
- Priscian, quoted, 77.
- Prophets, Trojan and British, 196.
- Pyran, St., chapel of at Cardiff, where Henry II. made his devotions on his return from Ireland in 1172, 64. (Leland speaks of "a chapelle in Shoemaker streat of S. Perine." Rees's Welsh Saints, 336.)

Q.

- Quendred, sister, and murderess of St. Kenelm; legend about, 25.
- Quicksands at mouth of river Nedd, Glamorganshire, 72.
on coast of Flintshire, 137.
- Quotations in these treatises. See Ambrose, Augustine, Anlus Gellius, Bede, Bernard, Cæsar, Cicero, Claudian, Enodius, Fabius, Geoffrey's British History, Gildas, Gregory, Hildebert, Horace, Jerome, Juvenal, Lucan, Macrobius, Martial, Merlin Ambrosius, Merlin Silvester, Origen, Ovid, Persius, Petronius, Pliny, Priscian, Sallust, Seneca, Sidonius Apollinaris, Solinus, Statius, Suetonius, Terence, Trogus Pompeius, Virgil; and the Topographia Hibernica, and Expugnatio Hibernica of our author.

R.

- Rabanus, English books of, written in the idiom of the south of England, 178.
- Radnor (Radenoura); archbishop Baldwin's first stage to, on his progress through Wales, 13.
his sermon there, 14.
punishment of lord of, temp. Henry I., for irreverence in a church, 16; his death in the holy land, 17.
For Old Radnor, see Pen y Crug.
- Rats, man worried to death by, 111.
- Reaping, Welsh fashion of, 201.
- Reiner, bishop of St. Asaph; his successful preaching of the crusade in Powys, 142.
- Relics of saints, reverence of, in Wales, &c., 27.
- Retherth, bishop of St. David's, 104.

- Rhaiadr Gwy (Raidergoe), Radnorshire, castle of, built by Rhys ab Gruffudd, 18.
- Rhodri Mawr (Rothericus Magnus), prince of all Wales; his three sons, 166, 167.
- Rhodri, youngest son of Owain Gwynedd; North Wales divided between him and his brother David, 134.
meets archbishop Baldwin in Anglesey, 126.
refuses to obey the archbishop's monitions, as to his incestuous marriage with a daughter of prince Rhys; and soon afterwards expelled by his nephews, 127.
expelled by Llywelyn, son of Iorwerth Drwyndwn, 134.
- Rhos (Ros), province of Dyfed; vengeance on men of, temp. Stephen, for death of Gerald Fitz-William, 100.
ravaged by Rhys ab Gruffudd, on death of Henry II., 80.
- Rhuddlan (Ruthelan or Rudhelan), Flintshire; a noble castle on the river Clwyd, 137, 176.
belonging to David, son of Owain Gwynedd, who there entertains archbishop Baldwin, 137.
- Rhydderch (Rederth), a priest, suspended by bishop David of St. David's; his trick upon him, 73.
- Rhymni or Rumney (Renni, Remni), river, Monmouthshire, 62, 172.
its source and course, 172.
the bridge of, 65, 172.
- Rhys ab Gruffudd (Resus Griffini filius), prince of South Wales, 1136-1197.
his descent from Rhodri Mawr, 167.
succeeded to the principedom, though the youngest of many brothers; these all dying young, 85.
submits to Henry II., in 1163, 81.
meets archbishop Baldwin at Radnor, 14.

- Rhys-ab-Gruffudd—cont.
 resolves to take the cross, but dissuaded by his wife, 15.
 refuses to stop the archbishop's progress, at the solicitations of the canons of St. David's, 15.
 meets archbishop Baldwin again near Cardigan, 110.
 entertains him there, 112.
 escorts him as far as the river Dyvi, the boundary of his kingdom, 122.
 on death of Henry II., takes the castles of Talacharn and Laugharne, and ravages Rhos and Pembroke; and lays siege, unsuccessfully, to Caermarthen, 80.
 his iniquitous treatment of William Fitz-Martin, his son-in-law, 111.
 retribution for this; defeated, and imprisoned by his sons, in Nevern castle, 112.
 conspicuous for his love of freedom, and courageousness, 145.
 his sons; Gruffudd, 111, 113, 119.
 Maelgwm, 112, 119.
 Cynvrig, 119.
- Rhys ab Tewdwr (Resus filius Theodori), prince of South Wales, 167.
 killed in battle, in Brecheiniog, in 1091, 90.
- Richard I.; Giraldus writes the Expugnatio Hibernica for him, when he was count of Poitou, 7.
 his retort upon master Fulke, about his daughters, 44.
- Richard, archbishop of Canterbury, St. Thomas's successor; his remissness in following up the Martyr's victory, 149.
 his death-bed dream, 150.
- Robert de Belesme, earl of Shrewsbury; his importation of a noble breed of horses into Powys from Spain, 143.
- Roger, bishop of Salisbury; his great admiration of Llantoni abbey, 39.
- Roger, prior of Llantoni, 39.
- Roger, son of Milo earl of Hereford, lord of Brecheiniog, 29.
- Romans, from Troy, under Æneas, 193.
- Rome, with the empire of the west, given to pope Silvester and his successors by Constantine, 215.
- Rouen, besieged by king of France, and relieved by Henry II., in 1174, 60.
- Rumney river. See Rhymni.

S.

- Sacraments, inefficient against illusions of unclean spirits, 94.
- Sadurneu, archbishop of St. David's; two of this name, 102.
- St. Asaph's (Lanelvensis sedes); a "pauperca ecclesia," a "pauperca cathedra," 137, 170.
 number of cantrevs in diocese, 170.
 Reiner, bishop of, 142.
 archbishop Baldwin celebrates mass at, 137.
- St. Clare's (Sancti Clari), castle, Caermarthenshire; murder of a Welshman by archers from, 82.
- St. David's (Menevia), Pembrokeshire; description of, 102.
 its site called the valley of roses, 107.
 Ireland visible from, 109.
 number of cantrevs in the diocese of, 169.
 metropolitan see translated hither from Caerleon, by St. David, 56, 101, 120.
 archbishops of, from David to Sampson, 102.
 how the pall lost, 103.
 bishops of, from Sampson to the time of Henry I., 103, 104.
 bishops after these, 104.
 bishops of, always consecrated the other bishops of Wales, and were themselves consecrated by them, until Henry I.'s time; no subjection to Canterbury, 103.

St. David's—cont.

- recovery of its ancient rights unlikely, 107.
- canons of, try to persuade prince Rhys to stop archbishop Baldwin's progress through Wales, 15.
- archbishop Baldwin celebrates mass at, at the high altar, 110.
- altar of St. Stephen in church of, 87.
- river Alan at, and the speaking stone, 107.
- St. David's spring at, flowing with milk; the tame jackdaws of, 109.
- its harbour, Porth Mawr, 165.
- St. Dogmael's abbey, Pembrokeshire; archbishop Baldwin at, 112.
- St. Harmon's (S. Germani), Radnorshire; crosier of St. Curig at, 17.
- St. Ismael's (S. Hysmaelis), in province of Rhos, Pembrokeshire; St. Caradog's place of retreat, 86.
- Saints of Wales, as of Ireland, vindictive, 130.
- Sallust, quoted, 46.
- Salmon, of the Wye, in season in winter, of the Usk in summer, 33.
- the river Teivi famous for; its salmon leap at Cenarth; the mode of leaping described, 114.
- Salt, agreement of names of, in many languages, 77.
- Sampson, last archbishop of St. David's, 102.
- afterwards archbishop of Dol, in Bretagne, 103.
- Sanctuary, rights of, in churches of Wales; especial privileges in the more ancient and venerated churches, 203.
- Saxons, their cold nature from their cold Northern locality, 193.
- their coming into Britain foretold by the two Merlins, 196.
- Seisyll, abbot of Ystrad Fflur, 119, 126.
- Seisyll ab Dyvnwal, a chieftain of Gwent, treacherously slaughtered with others in Abergavenni castle, 49, n. 2.
- Seisyll, son of Eudas, his warning of the attack on Abergavenni castle, 50.
- Seisyll Longshank (Seisillus Eskeirhir), worried to death by toads, 111.
- Seneca, quoted, 41, 59.
- Severn (Sabrina), river, its source and course, 171.
- the ancient boundary of England and Wales, 171, 178.
- origin of its name, 171.
- Severn Sea, 66, 170, 171.
- Shrewsbury, archbishop Baldwin rests at, for some days, 144.
- earls of. See Hugh, Robert de Belesme. See Penguern.
- Shropshire, anciently part of Powys, 169.
- Sicily, king of. See William.
- Sidonius Apollinaris, quoted, 4, 164, (under name of Seneca.)
- Silver mines in Flintshire, 137.
- Silvester, pope, has the western empire with Rome left to him by Constantine, 215.
- Singing in parts, not in unison, peculiar to Wales and Yorkshire, 189.
- Snowdon (Ereri), range of mountains, description of, 135.
- their prolific pastures, 135, 170, 177.
- lake with floating island, 135, 170.
- lake with one-eyed fish, 136, 171.
- fabulous eagle of, 136.
- place on, where Merlin Ambrosius prophesied before Vortigern, 133.
- Solinus, quoted, 71.
- Sow, the sporting, 27.
- Spain, horses imported from, into Powys, 143.
- Spirits, evil; familiarity of a man of Caerleon with, 57-61.
- their exposure of the falsehood of Geoffrey's British History, 58.
- their doings in Pembrokeshire, 93, 96.
- woman possessed by one in Poitou, 94.
- one, in form of a priest, in family of an archbishop of Denmark, 98.
- Stakepole, Elidor de, of Pembrokeshire, has the son of an incubus demon for a servant, 96.

Statius, quoted, 5, 210.
 Stephen Langton, archbishop of Canterbury, third edition of the Itinerary dedicated to him, 3, 7, 13.
 and second edition of the description of Wales, 155.
 Strata Florida. See Ystrad Fflur.
 Strata Marcella. See Ystrad Ma rhell.
 Suetonius; the De Animantium Naturis of, quoted, 70.
 Sulghein, bishop of St. David's, 104.
 Sulhithuai, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
 Sulidir, bishop of St. David's, 104.
 Sunday, the better observance of, enjoined on Henry II. by a strange visitant at Cardiff, 65.
 Swansea (Sweineshe), or Abertawe, Glamorganshire. See Abertawe.

T.

Taf, or Tav (Thaph, Taph), river of Glamorganshire; Cardiff castle on, 62.
 Llandaf takes its name from, 67.
 its source and course, 172.
 Taf, or Tav, river of Caermarthenshire; one of three rivers crossed by archbishop Baldwin between Whitland abbey and Haverford, 82.
 Its source and course, 172.
 Talacharn, or Langharne, Caermarthenshire; castle of taken by Rhys ab Gruffudd, on death of Henry II., 80.
 Talgarth, mountains, Brecknockshire, 36.
 Tancard, and Richard his son, castellans of Haverford; intercourse of the latter when a boy, with St. Caradog, 85, 86.
 Tawe, river, Glamorganshire; its source and course, 172.
 Tegeingl (Tegengel), province, 137, 190.
 Teilo (Teleaucus), St., Bishop of Llandaf, 67, 170.

Teivi, river, Cardiganshire, has the finest salmon of all the rivers of Wales, 114, 173.
 its fishery at Cenarth, 114.
 the only river of all Wales and England where still beavers, 114, 173.
 its source and course; separates cantref Mawr and Ceredigion, and afterwards Dyved and Ceredigion, 173.
 Terence, quoted, 3, 205.
 Tewdwr (Theodorus), prince of South Wales, 11th century, 167.
 Theliau or Eliud, archbishop of St. David's, 102.
 Thomas, St., of Canterbury; his glorious victory, won by martyrdom, nullified by the remissness, &c., of his successors, 149, 150.
 excommunicated Owain Gwynedd because of his incestuous marriage with his cousin, 133.
 Three sit together at meals amongst the Welsh, not two as elsewhere, 183, 203.
 this in memory of the Trinity, and a custom handed down from the teaching of St. Germanus of Auxerre, 202, &c.
 Tithe, the great; what consisting in, 203.
 gift of, to archbishop Baldwin, 73.
 Toads, a man worried to death by, in province of Kemmes, 110.
Topographia Hibernica, took Giraldus three years to write, 155.
 favourable acceptance of, by archbishop Baldwin, 20.
 quoted, or repeated from, 26, 27, 38, 114, 130, 141, 186.
 Torque, of St. Cynawg of Brecheiniog, one of the most virtuous and venerated of relics, 25, 26.
 abducted by Rhys ab Gruffudd to Dinevor castle just before his defeat and imprisonment by his sons, 112.
 Traeth Mawr and Traeth Bychan (Trait-maur et Traitbochan), inlets of the sea at north-west corner of Merionethshire, 123.

- Traeth Mawr and Traeth Bychan—cont.
rivers running into these inlets also so called, 176.
- Tramerin, bishop of St. David's, 104.
- Trial by hot iron entreated for, to confirm his claim, by one asserting himself to be a son of Rhys ab Gruffudd, 191.
- Trogus Pompeius, quoted, 137.
- Trojans, prophets amongst the, 196.
three colonies of, into Europe, viz., the Romans under Æneas, Franks under Antenor, and Britons under Brutus, 193.
- Troy, destruction of, in consequence of its excessive sinfulness, 215.
Constantine purposed to refund it, but warned against rebuilding a second Sodom, 215.
- Trumpeters (Cornhiriez), of Henry II.'s army, 62.
- Tyfydog (Tevredaucus), St.; pollution of his church in Anglesey by Hugh de Montgomery; punishment and death of Hugh in consequence, 129.
- Tyre (Portus Tyrensis), archbishop Baldwin lands at, 151.
- Tywi, or Towy (Tewi, Flumen Tewiense), river, Caermarthenshire, 80.
its source and course, 172.
- Tywyn, or Towyn (Teweyn, or Townen), Merionethshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 122.

U.

- Urban III., pope, 13. (In 1188, according to Giraldus; but he died October 19, 1187.) His rebuke of archbishop Baldwin, 149.
- Usk (Oscha, or Osca), river, at Aberhodni, 20; at Abergavenni, 47; crossed three times between Usk and Newport, 55; enters the sea at Newport, 61.

- Usk (Oscha, or Osca)—cont.
its fishes; salmon of, in season in summer, but of the Wye in winter, 33.
its source and course, 171.
- Usk castle, in possession of Howel ab Iorwerth, and captured from him, 61.
sermons at, by archbishop Baldwin and the bishop of Llandaf, 55.

V.

- Valery, St. (S. Walerico), Maud de, the virtuous and excellent wife of William de Braose, 23.
- Vere, earl Alberic de; his wife, daughter of Henry de Essex; their son Alberic, 132.
- Virgil, quoted, 4, 5, 6, 52, 57, 66, 72, 81, 135, 162 (Catalecta), 163, 179, 180, 181, 184, 188, 193, 196.
- Vortigern, Merlin prophesies before, 133.

W.

- Wales: origins of its names, Kambria and Wallia, 178, 179.
dimensions of; its mountains, forests &c., 165.
two mountain ranges of, whence rise its rivers, 170.
the worst corner of Britain, full of woods, and mountains, and bogs, 226 (last line).
anciently comprised all to the west of the Severn, 171, 178.
divided into three principalities by the three sons of Rhodri Mawr, 166.
the three courts of its princes, 81, 169.

Wales—cont.

- genealogies of the princes preserved in the ancient books of the bards, 167.
 - four cathedral sees of, 169.
 - seven bishops of, in time of St. Augustine, 105.
 - saints of, like those of Ireland, vindictive, 130.
 - more ancient and venerated churches of; privileges of these, 203.
 - custom of Gavelkind prevailing in, 69, 134, 211, 225.
 - custom with the princes of, of committing the education of their sons to foster fathers, 211, 225.
 - peculiar customs of, handed down from the teaching of SS. Germanus and Lupus, 202.
 - often subdued by the English; by Offa, Ethelfrid, and Harold especially, 217.
 - fully subdued by Henry I., 103.
 - in full subjection to the three first Norman kings, 217.
 - why able to rebel under their successors, 218.
 - how to be effectually subdued, 218, &c.
 - how to be governed when subdued, 222, &c.
 - bad treatment of, by many English rulers, 223.
 - how to be subdued without loss to the English, 225.
 - how it may rebel successfully, 226.
 - notable princes of, in Giraldus's time, 145.
- Wales, North (Norwallia, Venedotia), one of the three principalities of Wales, 166.
- separated from South Wales by the river Dyvi, 122.
 - number of cantrevs in, 169.
 - a more defensible country than South Wales, with more robust men, and a more fertile soil, 176.

Wales, North—cont.

- language of, purer than that of South Wales, 177.
 - excels in the use of the lance, 123.
 - Henry II.'s expedition into, in 1157, 130, 137.
- Wales, South (Sudwallia, Deheubarth, or Dextralis Kambria), one of the three principalities of Wales, 34, 62, 122, 166.
- number of cantrevs in, 169.
 - a more plain and pleasant land, especially in parts of Ceredigion and Dyved, than North Wales, 176.
 - excels in the use of the bow, 123, 177.
 - Henry II.'s expedition into, in 1163, 62, 138, 227.
- Wallicus, everything foreign so called by the Saxons, and hence the name Wallia, 179.
- Wallingford, Brian de, lord of Abergavenni in 1136, 48.
- Walter, son of Milo earl of Hereford, lord of Brecheiniog, 29.
- his massacre of Welsh chieftains in Abergavenni castle, 51, n. 3.
- Weasel, anecdote of the, 91.
- Well, ebbing, near Rhuddlan castle, 137.
- Welsh language derived in great measure from Greek and Latin, 194.
- very like that of Cornwall and Bretagne, 177.
 - purest in North Wales; though, according to some, in Ceredigion, 177.
 - never to cease in Wales, 227.
- Welsh people, wholly given to arms; their agriculture, and food, 179.
- live in woods, in wattled huts; have no orchards, gardens, &c.; their fashions of ploughing and reaping, 201.
 - no trading amongst them, no mechanical arts, 180.
 - their coracles, 201.
 - their patriotism and love of liberty, their valour, their arms, 180.

Welsh people—cont.

generally fight on foot; their training when young; Henry II.'s testimony to their bravery, 181.
 their mode of warfare, 209, &c.; very different from that of the Normans, &c., 220.
 their temperance and hardihood, their hospitality, 182.
 their visiting customs, their skill in the harp, their evening meal, 183.
 how they sleep, 184.
 how they wear their hair; their great care of their teeth, 185.
 their acuteness; their skill in music, 186.
 their powers of rhetoric; their love of alliteration, 187.
 their singing in parts, 189.
 their ready wit, 190.
 their boldness of speech, 192; this a part of their hotness of nature from their Trojan descent, 193.
 which descent proved by their names of men, and by their language, 194.
 their diviners or frenzied prophets, 194, &c.
 their love of high birth, and care of their genealogies, their love of race, and vindictiveness, 200.
 their devout pilgrimages, their reverence of churches, relics, &c., 203.
 their holy hermits and anchorites, 204.
 their inconstancy, untruthfulness, and perjuries, 206.
 their rapine, thievishness, and disregard of solemn treaties, 207.
 their unjust occupation of lands, 211.
 their abstinence in need, and wolfish gluttony in plenty, 212.
 their incestuous marriages; cohabitation general before marriage, 213.
 their hiring of girls on trial, 214.
 their abuses in church matters, 214.
 summary of their grosser and common sins, viz., perjury, robbery, rapine, homicide, fratricide, adultery, and incest, 216.

Welsh people—cont.

their confident expectation of recovering Britain, 216.
 their freedom from all servile works and exactions; and hence their determined patriotism, 222.
 their good faith never to be trusted to by any English ruler, 224.
 three things their ruin, viz., the custom of gavelkind, of foster-fathering, and their obstinate refusal to submit to one prince, 225.
 advised to use the French mode of warfare more, and to be unanimous; would be insuperable, if inseparable, 226.
 not to be extirpated by power of man, 227.
 Wenlock (Gueneloc), Shropshire, archbishop Baldwin at, 146.
 Whitchurch abbey (Album monasterium), Shropshire, 142.
 Whitland (Alba Landa, Alba Domus), Cistercian abbey, Caermarthenshire; archbishop Baldwin at, 82.
 Cynan, abbot of, 59.
 John, abbot of, 119.
 Wight (Vecta), isle of, 127.
 Wilfred, bishop of St. David's, 90, 104.
 William II., of England; his invasion of Wales; at St. David's; his threat to invade Ireland, 109.
 William II., of Sicily, 13.
 his death a great loss to the cause of the crusade, 147. [He died in November 1189.]
 William, earl of Gloucester, son of earl Robert, lord of Morganwg, captured in Cardiff castle by Ivor Bach, 63.
 and obliged to submit to his terms, 64.
 sends a greyhound to Henry II., 69.
 William, a knight, first founder of Llantoni, 40.
 William, prior of Llantoni, 39.
 William Longchamp, bishop of Ely; first edition of the Itinerary dedicated

- William Longchamp--cont.
 to him, or at least a copy of it presented to him with a dedicatory preface, 3, n. 1.
- William, son of Milo earl of Hereford, 29.
- Winchcombe (Winchelecombe), Gloucestershire; Quendred's psalter at, and miracle, 25.
- Windsor, Gerald de, constable of Pembroke castle, under Ernulf de Montgomery, 89.
 his successful artifices when besieged by the Welsh, 90.
 Marries Nest, sister of prince Gruffudd ab Rhys, 91.
- Wiriet, Stephen, of the province of Pembroke; his house troubled with unclean spirits, 93.
- Wolf, its poisonous tongue, 71.
- Women, their malice, 30.
 one, without hands, a clever sempstress with her feet, 141.
- Woodpecker (Picus, Gallice Spec), 125.
- Wye, river (Waia, Vaga, Waiense flumen), 19, 55.
 separates South Wales from England, 139, 171.
 its source and course, 171.
 fishes of, 33. See Grayling, Salmon.

Y.

- Ynys Enlli, or Bardsey island (Insula Enthli, or Berdescie); its monks, its marvellous salubrity; burial place of numberless saints, 124.
- Ynys Glanach (Enislannach), Priestholme, or Puffin island, Anglesey; its hermits, and its mice, 131.
- Ynys Pyr (Enispir), or Caldey island, Pembrokeshire, 92.
- Yorkshire, part singing in, 189.
- Ystrad Fflur, or Strata Florida (Stratflur, Estratflur), Cistercian abbey, Cardiganshire: Seisyll, abbot of, with archbishop Baldwin, preaches at Pont-Stephan, 119; and in Anglesey, 126.
- Ystrad Marchell, or Strata Marcella (Estratmarchel), Cistercian abbey, Montgomeryshire; sad fall into sin of Enocus, abbot of, 59.
- Ystwyth (Eseud), river, Cardiganshire, its source and course, 175.

END OF VOL. VI.

1160 (69)

